

Mounties to Comb Osland File

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL

Two top-flight RCMP homicide investigators have been brought in to assist Victoria and Saanich police in their eight-month-old search for the murderer of William Osland.

Victoria Police Chief John Gregory announced his request for outside help at a press conference Wednesday, following an earlier meeting between himself, Mayor Hugh Stephen and Deputy Attorney General Gilbert Kennedy.

"Far from being concluded," said Chief Gregory of the investigation into the death of the 35-year-old businessman who disappeared Feb. 3 and whose body was discovered 22 days later wrapped in a plastic sheet at the bottom of Victoria Harbor.

"A completely fresh approach," said the chief, will be taken by the two "highly qualified" RCMP officers.

"This team will examine all the evidence already collected and statements obtained.

They may even talk to previously questioned persons."

Both men, in their late 30s, were described by RCMP Superintendent Harold Price as "very experienced" in the investigation of murders. They are Inspector R. H. Simmonds of the Burnaby RCMP detachment and Sgt. E. L. Naaykens of Kamloops, formerly with the force's Criminal Investigations Branch.

Supt. Price said he was instructed by the attorney-general's department to "handpick two top investigators" to look into the Osland case.

Without giving any names, Chief Gregory at the press conference in his office indicated that at least one of the people already questioned knew something about the murder.

"Certainly somebody on the ship knew something about it," said the chief, referring to the Robert M. Emery, an old U.S. vessel being converted in Victoria at the time of the murder for use in San Francisco as a restaurant-display ship.

Police questioned numerous people known to have been on board the Robert M. Emery on Feb. 3, the day Mr. Osland disappeared. The ship left under tow Feb. 5. In San Francisco, its name was changed to the St. Tarantino, and five more people were questioned and the ship carefully inspected when Victoria and Saanich police visited the ship's new port.

Mr. Osland, lawyer David Hummel and contractor Siegfried Marquardt were partners in Diversified Management and Development, which operated a dozen companies and was carrying out the conversion of the display ship.

At 1:30 p.m. Feb. 3, Mr. Osland told his secretary, Mrs. Conny Yasyszczuk, that he was going to the ship and then to the Red Lion Inn. He left the office at 1106 Cook. According to testimony at a coroner's inquest, which ruled Osland's fate to be murder, Mrs. Yasyszczuk was the last known person to see Osland alive.

On Feb. 26, navy divers entered the Inner Harbor and promptly brought up Mr. Osland's body. It had been wrapped in a plastic sheet, tied with quarter-inch rope and weighted down with a 150-pound valve flange.

Mr. Osland died from three crushing blows to the head. His ankles and wrists were bruised, apparently before he was thrown overboard. Continued on Page 7

Truscott's Time Up

OTTAWA (UPI) — Steven Truscott has been released from Collins Bay penitentiary, George Street, chairman of the National Parole Board, confirmed late Wednesday in Ottawa.

Street, however, refused to say when the release took place and said it took place under an assumed name.

Truscott, now 24, has been the centre of a lengthy dispute since his conviction for murder at the age of 14.

"I don't think he (Truscott) could survive with every newspaper in the country hounding him," Street said. An official statement will be issued this morning he added.

ELIGIBLE IN JUNE

Truscott was eligible for parole in June of this year. Prison and parole authorities have expressed the hope that Truscott could be paroled quietly and without publicity.

Truscott became the youngest person to be sentenced to hang after he was convicted in 1959 in the rape-slaying of 12-year-old Lynne Harper, near the air force station at Trenton, Ont. The youth has steadfastly denied his guilt.

NATION AROUSED

The imposition of the death sentence on such a young person aroused national indignation. A few months after the conviction, the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

A reconstruction of the youth's trial formed the basis of a book by Toronto writer Isabel Lebourdais. The book, The Truscott Case, rearranged the

Spy Charge

Czechs Free B.C. Man

PRAGUE (Reuters) — A Czechoslovak-born Canadian citizen, Rudolph Holata, detained by Czechoslovak security police since last January on a charge of spying for Britain, has been released from prison, Canadian embassy officials reported Wednesday night.

The doors of Littermeir Prison opened to Holata, 47-year-old employee of the Canadian transport ministry at Vancouver airport, and he took a local bus to Prague where he telephoned the Canadian embassy.

Holata originally left Czechoslovakia in 1951. He admitted at his trial that he returned to spy for Britain a few months later on a promise by British intelligence that he would receive forged documents to bring out his wife as well.

In North Vancouver, Mrs. Holata, told of the news by a reporter, said: "That's wonderful, that's wonderful. I'm over-joyed. This is so sudden."

Ship Afire, All Safe

LONDON (Reuters) — All 10 passengers and 19 of the crew of the cargo liner Loch Loyal were picked up Wednesday night by two West German vessels after fire broke out aboard the British ship off the Azores.

The remainder of the 58-man crew have stayed on board the 10,405-ton liner and are in no danger, the Royal Mail Line spokesman said.

House to Probe Young Helpers

By RICHARD JACKSON

Just-ended session produces "innovation and reform." Page 37

OTTAWA — With Conservative and Creditiste support, the Liberal government is going to put the controversial Company of Young Canadians through a parliamentary committee investigation.

Only the New Democrats object. The decision to probe the company was the first government decision announced Wednesday when the Commons reopened to prorogue the last session of Parliament and set the stage for the new. Making the announcement, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier made it quite plain that the investigation was required because of charges by "usually responsible sources" that the Young Canadians had been used "to cover the furtherance of subversive activities."

The most recent authorities to make this accusation were the municipal leaders of Montreal who called on the federal government for a royal commission investigation following the looting, shooting and fire-bombing that savaged the city streets during the 16-hour police strike.

Leaders of other cities and towns across Quebec have fallen into line behind Montreal. Objections to the pattern of protest and dissent that the company has followed since its founding by former prime minister Lester Pearson three years ago, have come from many other sections of the country, especially the west.

The company welcomes the opportunity "to confront our accusers before a parliamentary committee."

Lebanon Premier Quits Over Fights

From CP

Lebanese Premier Rashid Karami resigned Wednesday after bloody clashes between the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas. The fighting unleashed a storm of protest at home and abroad and brought threats from other Arab countries.

Iraq offered the guerrillas military aid. Syria closed its border with Lebanon, Libya recalled its ambassador, and Algeria threatened to break diplomatic relations with Lebanon.

Thousands of Arabs demonstrated in the streets of Beirut. Elsewhere in the Middle East, there were these developments:

● The Middle East news agency reported from Damascus, Syria, that Israeli forces invaded Lebanese territory and occupied the southern village of Kafr Kala on Wednesday night.

● In Israel, four bombs rocked a residential area of Haifa, killing one person and injuring 12. Arab guerrillas were blamed. Another Israeli was killed in a later blast.

● The Egyptian military command sent a number of Israeli jet aircraft tried to bomb Egyptian military positions along the Suez canal Wednesday but were driven off by anti-aircraft fire.

Who Made No-Standing Bar Rule?

Chairman Didn't Stay in Chair

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chairman of the British Columbia Liquor Inquiry Commission said Wednesday he personally tested the no-standing-and-drink regulation enforced in the province's beverage rooms and was ordered to sit. County Court Judge C. W. Morrow said he was ordered to sit down when he visited the Devonshire Hotel beverage room and Hotel Georgia cocktail bar in Vancouver Tuesday night. He added: "I'm not sure who is responsible for the non-standing regulation, the B.C. Hotels Association or the Liquor Control Board."

In the "Devonshire Public House, which was quite crowded," he was served a glass of beer without ordering it.

He said the waiter looked "shocked" when he started a table hop.

"You should let me carry your drink for you," he quoted the waiter as saying.

The judge was travelling incognito.

From the waiter he eventually came to the attention of the manager who advised the judge the no-standing rule was worked out by the B.C. Hotels Association.

Judge Morrow said he concluded from this (the no-standing bar) was not a Liquor Act provision, but changed his mind when he tried a glass-in-hand table hop at the Georgia lounge.

"The waiter said it was against the law."

Here the judge dropped his incognito cloak and was then told it was a house rule.

Boyd Farria, counsel for the Hotels Association, says he's going to ask the LCB for the answers.

Closed-Door Discussion

Withdrawal's Aftermath Worries Asian Countries

By IAN STREET

The economic aftermath of an American withdrawal from Vietnam and the closing of British military installations in Southeast Asia were discussed behind closed doors at the Colombo Plan conference Wednesday.

Secretary-General John Haden said later that most delegates on the economic review committee felt the effects of the military withdrawals upon the economy of the region had been "somewhat over-estimated."

However, George Rosen, chief economist for the Asian Development Bank, who is attending the conference as an observer, said some Southeast Asian countries were worried enough to have requested a full-scale economic review.

"We have been asked by the Council of Ministers of Southeast Asian countries to conduct a look ahead at some of the problems and longer-term trends in the region that could result from the possible end of hostilities in Vietnam and the British military withdrawal from Singapore and Asia," he said.

The economic study will be conducted by the Asian Development Bank and the final report should be complete by June, 1970.

Mr. Rosen said it was expected that the end of the Vietnam war would create "a shock effect" in the region, but added that the countries concerned "think they may be able to absorb it—particularly if there is an aid increase."

If however, the American and British withdrawals are phased so they "fall off very gradually," he added, it was

Docks Silent Despite Warning

The company ran out of storage space, the same problem encountered by the lumber industry in B.C.

The Coal Operators Association of Western Canada said two other coal mines may have to close.

Warnings of possible widespread shutdowns came after striking members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union rejected a new contract Tuesday.

The rejection, heaviest among longshoremen in Vancouver, came even though the union's negotiators had recommended acceptance of the contract.

Although figures weren't released, it was learned that the Victoria local was the only one of the locals involved that voted in favor of the settlement.

Sources said the count for the Victoria local was close "almost right down the middle."

Working conditions and not money were blamed for the overall rejection.

Edward Strang, president of the B.C. Maritime Employers Association, said he wasn't actually surprised with the result.

The association is the body that bargained with the longshoremen.

Mr. Strang said that while the union's negotiating committee recommended the settlement, he understood some union officials entered a "minority report." This, he said, gave the membership reason for doubt.

Telegrams sent to Mr. Trudeau were from the Employers' Council of B.C., the B.C. Council for Forest Industries, the Vancouver Board of Trade and the B.C. Chamber of Commerce.

They demanded immediate action, pointing out that about 2,000 workers had already been laid off and other layoffs would follow.

Both the union and employers had no idea Wednesday as to when the next move might be made. The strike began 28 days ago. The Longshoremen were offered an increase of 85 cents an hour over two years on top of a base rate of $3.88.

Grain is the only product which has been moved throughout the strike. It has been loaded by the union because of a special commitment it made to the government beforehand.

Grain will be loaded aboard a freighter at Ogden Point today for the first time. The elevator has remained loaded since the strike began.

conceivable there would be no real economic shock because there would be time to offset possible ill effects.

The survey will pay particular attention to the impact of technological changes on the "green revolution" which is providing new sources of food for South and Southeast Asia. It will also lay much stress on methods of increasing employment.

"This—the need for new jobs—is the major problem of the 70s, regardless of anything that is done in the field of birth control, because the workers of the next decade are already born," Mr. Rosen said.

The study will deal with other major areas such as foreign trade, the effect of a Vietnam withdrawal on the foreign exchange position of the region, private foreign development in the area, and the future of such basic industries as rubber and tin, as well as the aspect of population growth.

The report will contain policy suggestions for the countries involved, he said.

The Asian Development Bank, with headquarters near Manila in the Philippines, was established in December, 1966, with a capital investment of $1,000,000,000. The U.S. and charges of subversion against the Young Canadians.

But these charges of "criminal activities," as he called them, were being investigated by the police, and "if substantiated would be dealt with by the courts in the normal manner."

And if substantiation was established, he warned, the government itself would "recommend necessary action to Parliament, either by way of amendment to the CYC Act or establishment of a trusteeship to oversee the activities of the company."

But if the charges proved unfounded, then, he made clear, "it will be necessary to reaffirm the good name of the CYC."

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield who had supported Montreal's demand for an investigation, said he was glad to see this "turnabout" by the government in agreeing to a parliamentary probe.

NDP leader T. C. Douglas supported the idea of the committee inquiry if the hearing was to be confined to "the program of work" the company follows.

But if, as the state secretary plainly had said, the probe would be of charges that the CYC had been used as a "cover" for subversive activities, then Douglas wanted none of it.

That sort of investigation,

warmed the NDP leader, would "set a dangerous precedent."

It would smack too much of "witch-hunting," he said, and would "emulate the sinister hunt through the U.S. state department for communists by the late senator Joseph McCarthy."

Later at a press conference, Pelletier pledged there would be no "witch-hunt," as Douglas had feared.

He wants the committee to get to work "as soon as possible," and at the moment the government is working on the guidelines for the inquiry which could run parallel to the police investigations into the company.

Finally he made it clear that if either investigation—by police or parliament—turned up anything "dramatic" in substantiation of the charges of subversion, the government would take immediate action.

Pelletier personally felt the company itself would be found to be in the clear, although certain unnamed members could be suspect.

Surgery Final Answer In Hemorrhoid Cure

By G. T. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You say hemorrhoids can be cured. I'm beginning to think surgery is the only remedy. My husband has been troubled for more than a year. They are very sore and even bleed. We have tried most everything. I wish we could heal those hemorrhoids.—Mrs. F.K.

To speak bluntly, you've evidently reached the point at which you are ready to accept the one positive cure for hemorrhoids—removal of them.

I've left out the details of the emulsions, ointments, sitz baths, and other things your husband has tried, but he pretty obviously has gone the whole unhappy route.

There are, really, only two things you can do about hemorrhoids, or "piles." If you can keep them from being too annoying, fine. When you can't, remove them.

With mild cases, it often is possible to prevent them from getting worse and from causing too much discomfort. (One of the most important things is not medication, but preventing constipation, and straining. Too many people do not realize the importance of that and how that salves or ointments will do the job for them.)

It is fruitless to think you can "heal those hemorrhoids" other than temporarily. Why? Because hemorrhoids are varicose veins, veins that have been stretched to the extent that they no longer can return to their original size. There is no known way to make them resume their former conditions.

Proper bowel habits, and the help of medications in some cases, may prevent enough irritation so that milder cases will not bleed or be too painful. But that is as far as you can go toward "healing" the problem.

When they have passed a certain stage, the sooner you have surgery, the more misery you will avoid. The operation is not exactly fun, a subject on which I can speak with both authority and sympathy, since I've experienced it. The soreness may be considerable for several days, but after that you begin to realize that you are beginning to feel better after all.

Pentagon Opposes Unilateral Stop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defence Secretary Melvin Laird said Wednesday the Pentagon is opposed to any U.S. ceasefire in Vietnam without assurances from the Communists that they too, will stop shooting.

Laird said he did not believe a unilateral ceasefire by U.S. troops could be successful.

Laird made his comments at a luncheon meeting of the Overseas Writers' Club where his remarks could not be attributed directly to him.

RADIO NEWS

But after Metromedia Radio News, which did not attend the luncheon, identified Laird as the source of news stories quoting "high defence department officials," the Pentagon said he could be quoted.

At the White House, presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Laird was "speaking for the Pentagon as a member of the administration" when he talked of the ceasefire.

Asked if he was serving as a spokesman for the administration, Ziegler only said Laird was "relating his point of view... he was referring to Pentagon attitudes."

Ziegler said President Nixon stood by his previous stand on ceasefires in Vietnam. In a May 14 speech, Nixon proposed an international supervisory group should police any ceasefire in the war.

Ziegler also said Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott was "speaking on his own" when he said the United States should fix a firm date for a ceasefire. Scott said the administration already had moved "quite close" to a ceasefire.

Laird said the best place for mutual assurances on a ceasefire would be worked out at the Paris peace talks.

Laird also clarified what the Pentagon means by the words "protective reaction" to describe recent U.S. battlefield tactics in Vietnam.

Senator Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) was quoted earlier as saying the tactics are something approaching a ceasefire.

ENEMY UNITS

Laird said "protective reaction" involves trying to keep down American casualties by going after attacking enemy units. An example, he said, was a movement of U.S. forces a short distance across the Laotian border against forces which had been subjecting the Americans to severe attacks.

The policy does not mean, he said, that U.S. forces will simply stand still and allow themselves to be fired on.

The term "protective reaction" has been used at least as far back as March. Other Pentagon sources have said it generally involved U.S. forces fighting in smaller units than they did earlier in response to a Communist switch to smaller-unit operations.

Post Office Hoax

Pussies Galore Willing to Fight

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal post office said Wednesday it is being swamped with telephone calls from people who want to send their cats to help the U.S. army in Vietnam.

The calls followed publication of a two-column advertisement in the French-language daily Montreal-Matin saying: "The American army urgently needs cats for South Vietnam. Inquire at your nearest post office."

A post office spokesman said the advertisement evidently was the work of a prankster.

A spokesman for the advertising department of Montreal-Matin said the advertisement was received by telephone from Ottawa just before deadline.

Canada Will Leave Despite U.K. Protest

UNITED NATIONS (CP)

Canada plans to withdraw its personnel from the International Control Commission in Cambodia and Laos despite reservations expressed by Britain and India, it was learned Wednesday.

Authoritative sources here said Canada has informed Britain, co-chairman of the Geneva Accords under which the ICC was created, of its plans.

Britain is reported to feel that any diminution of the organization, set up under two Geneva agreements to supervise the truce in Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam, is regrettable.

Canada's reason for its desire to withdraw its ICC personnel is said to be part of over-all government plans to reduce expenditures.

The ICC is made up of India, Poland and Canada. Its activities in recent years have largely been of little significance. But Britain and India, at least, feel that the ICC has the potential of being of considerable use if and when peace comes to Southeast Asia.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said in an interview in New York this week that Canada still is committed to the ICC.

It also was disclosed that Cambodia gave financial reasons for its decision to request the ICC to leave that country by the end of the year.

Britain announced earlier this week that Cambodia had informed her of its desires. But the British did not disclose the reason.

Canada has a six-member staff with the ICC in Cambodia and about the same in Laos.

Sources here said that if Canada does withdraw from the two countries, her ICC representatives in Vietnam would deal with all three countries.

Scott's Aim for Ceasefire 'Personal Hope' Attempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott proposed Wednesday that the United States unilaterally proclaim a ceasefire in Vietnam, but the defence department rejected the idea.

A top official declared defence department opposition unless the North Vietnamese agree in advance to stop shooting, too.

The official said the department does not believe a ceasefire, without some assurance the Communists would observe it, would be a successful approach.

WHITE HOUSE

Scott, the Nixon administration's chief spokesman in the Senate, said he was not signalling any White House intention.

"This is not a trial balloon for the president," Scott said.

He said he hopes President Nixon will set a date on which American forces would stop shooting unless attacked.

SOME MOVE

But Scott's expression of that hope, for a course long advocated by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, was certainly a heightening speculation that Nixon plans some such dramatic move in his Nov. 3 Vietnam report to Americans.

Scott said he himself was speculating.

"I wouldn't think anything could happen of that kind before Nov. 3," he said.

The defence department official, who stipulated that he not be named, cautioned against speculation on what Nixon will say in his Nov. 3 speech.

Both Scott and Mansfield said the administration's new battlefield policy of protective reaction represents a major step toward a ceasefire.

Under that policy, Mansfield said, U.S. troops fire only to forestall a Communist attack.

"This is certainly a far cry from the tactics of maximum pressure, and search and destroy," Mansfield said, "and to me is an indication that the president is moving toward a ceasefire and stand-still policy."

The high defence department official noted that Defence Secretary Melvin Laird first used the term "protective reaction" to describe the authority

U.S. commanders have been given to conduct border-area attacks as a means of defending their positions in South Vietnam. He said, for example, that U.S. troops were allowed to move into the edge of Laos to ferret out the enemy while under heavy attack.

"That was protective reaction," the official said. "It does not mean we are just going to stand still and be fired upon."

TIME HERE

Said Scott: "I think the time has come to move from protective reaction to an announcement that on a certain date, we will stop firing, and if we are not fired on, then a ceasefire will occur."

The Pennsylvania senator said that amounts to unilateral initiation of a ceasefire.

BOTH FACTIONS

"If they attack us, then that's up to the ceasefire," Scott said.

He said the ceasefire should still the weapons of South Vietnamese government forces as well as American forces.

Scott said he thinks the Communists might respond to such a ceasefire, in which there would be no formal agreement to stop the fighting.

"They don't want to lose face," he said. "What we don't want to lose is skin."

Brandt Tackles Bonn Problems

BONN (AP) — West Germany's new government under Social Democrat Chancellor Willy Brandt was sworn in Wednesday and quickly got down to work.

First task of Brandt's coalition of Social Democrats and Free Democrats was to round off the staffing of 15 ministries by assigning a parliamentary secretary to assist each cabinet minister.

MARK AVOIDED

Meeting in the Chancellery, the ministers did not touch on upward revaluation of the West German mark, one of the key issues facing the new government.

Informed sources said this decision may be made when the cabinet meets again today and announced during the weekend when foreign exchange markets are closed.

Some experts reckon on an upward shift of between 6.5 and eight per cent to bring the West German currency up to its true value.

The Brandt cabinet, which replaced the old coalition of Christian Democrats and Social Democrats under Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger, also named some top officials.

Conrad Ahlers was given the post of chief government spokesman. Former journalist Ahlers had been deputy to Guenter Diehl, head of the federal press office under Kiesinger.

ERA ENDS

The new left-centre coalition has a 254-to-242 majority in the Bundestag.

The papers also agreed that Brandt's elevation spells the end of the Adenauer era of post-war reconstruction.

The Prime Minister Speaks Out

PRIME MINISTER TRUDEAU'S recent venting of spleen upon separatists, the government of France and the Quebec provincial government might easily lead Canadians to conclude that at last he has seen the error and futility of Ottawa's long-standing policy of pandering to French Canada.

Though it cannot be said that Ottawa's permissive give-in-to-Quebec-at-any-price attitude originated with the Trudeau administration, it has to date done little to correct the highly discriminatory course set by previous governments.

Playing up to Quebec with its 75 seats in the federal House is of course a great temptation for all political parties—though these days they would rather pretend that policies which favor Quebec over all other provinces are not related to this political fact of life but simply directed toward the goal of achieving national unity.

Be this as it may, the results of pursuing this prejudiced and inequitable course have been disastrous for Canada—and for Quebec. Instead of strengthening the nation's unity, it has weakened it; instead of benefitting Quebec, it has damaged it.

The prime minister reports that Quebec's share of foreign investment in Canada has dropped in the 60s from 25 to 19 per cent of the total. He reports that Quebec's increase from last year was only 3.8 per cent compared with the Canadian average of 12 per cent and Ontario's 32 per cent.

The promise of a reawakening of Quebec beginning in 1960, he says, has not yet been realized. There is a climate of violence. People have begun to realize the social climate of Quebec is "crashing down." Surely a sadder and more tragic indictment of a Canadian province has never been made by any prime minister in our country's history.

He ended his appraisal of the situation with these words: "The folly of past years has lasted long enough."

It is to be hoped so. It is also to be hoped that Ottawa will waste no time in bringing Quebec back into Canada again as a province among provinces with its people becoming Canadians among Canadians, neither expecting nor being granted any special privileges over any other citizens of this nation.

Oil Exploration in the Gulf

THE COMPLACENCY with which Petroleum Resources Minister Frank Richter regards oil exploration in the Gulf of Georgia is disturbing. In brief, he sees no danger in the offshore operations that might follow the seismic search for oil. "It couldn't happen here" is his attitude. But there is every reason to believe that it — an oil-spill disaster — could.

The Fisheries Association of B.C. in its publication Facts on Fish puts it very well: "There are many examples of what could happen—Santa Barbara Channel, Gulf of Mexico, Caspian Sea. The problems would be emphasized in this case because of the nature of the Gulf of Georgia. It is virtually an inland sea surrounded by the greater part of British Columbia's population. It has important fisheries, it is B.C.'s prime marine recreation area, it is an important waterfowl area, it contains the incomparable Gulf Islands, it washes most of our important beaches, it is a harbor and transportation route for much of our industry. All of these can be damaged by oil leaks which we know can occur. The extent of probable damage is not a matter for speculation—we know what can happen."

Mr. Richter's expressed view, of course, is that the drilling regulations off Santa Barbara "were not as stringent as ours and anyway, if they'd been enforcing them properly, the Santa Barbara leak probably wouldn't have happened."

But this does not appear to be exactly the opinion of a U.S. presidential panel on oil spills, which has just warned of the possible consequences if the United States does not urgently seek more knowledge about oil blowouts and how to control and clean up spills. Of 8,000 offshore wells drilled since 1954, according to the science panel, one in a thousand had resulted in an oil blowout; if development continued to expand at the present rate with the same frequency of accidents, the United States could expect to have a major pollution incident somewhere every year by 1980.

Mr. Richter might like those odds but we doubt that many British Columbians, particularly those living around the Gulf of Georgia, will share his feelings.

As well as underwater oil blowouts, the hazards of tanker spillage and the lack of technical and operational ability to cope with either. Here again B.C.'s petroleum resources minister seems to be out of touch with reality. There are ships going up and down the coast carrying oil and any of them could be rammed or run aground, and "everyone thinks this is all right, but if you drill a well and have stringent controls everyone thinks you're wrong."

Everyone thinks this is all right? Nonsense. There is a strong apprehension of the dangers, especially with the prospect that giant tankers may carry Alaskan oil to Puget Sound. But the transportation of oil to turn the wheels of industry cannot stop to wait for advanced clean-up and prevention capability. The production of oil in the Gulf of Georgia can.

OUR READERS' VIEWS

Good Conservation Lacking at Dams

The recent letter from Mr. Golden of Vancouver, Washington, attacking conservationists as extremists is biased and wrong. The statements made on the Ramparts and Bennett Dams at least should be corrected.

Among other bad effects the Ramparts Dam would destroy a significantly large percentage of the continent's breeding grounds for wildfowl. The environmental damage would be so large that there is now fairly general agreement, even among non-conservationists, that this dam should never be built.

Mr. Golden fails a number of large dams as "good conservation" because they provide power, recreation, and flood control and implies that our Bennett Dam should be so regarded. It hardly qualifies. Power it does indeed provide but no flood control aspect exists on the Peace — indeed a serious low water problem on the lower Peace this year was aggravated by B.C. Hydro's refusal to release normal amounts of water while the reservoir is filling, and no recreation is possible because only enough clearing for industrial uses has been done.

This single benefit of power has been obtained by flooding 600 square miles of moose range and wild habitat along major river valleys. Most of this was spruce country, an enormous amount of excellent timber-growing land to eliminate without having a cent of value attached to it when the project was planned. And of the huge amount of timber that stood on this land much will go to waste, even though much more is being utilized than was originally thought possible.

We do not have good conservation on these projects because they are planned from the standpoint of power only. All other uses and values are either disregarded or fobbed off as cheaply as possible — witness the Mica Dam now building. Here a 130 mile lake will form with its two ends on our two

On Ten Mile Point we have one of the few remaining sylvan retreats close to the city. So far our secluded woods and quiet winding country roads have resisted a suburban sprawl, apartment blocks and all the traffic turmoil that comes with them. However, there is now a move afoot by Mayor Curtis and Saanich council to clutter up this delightful section with ugly street lighting.

It is to be hoped that residents will have the good sense to appreciate the natural charm they are blessed with by resisting this intrusion.

Cave Records

On October 6 the Toronto Globe and Mail carried a CP report from Victoria announcing the discovery by B.C. cave explorers of "Castro Cave" on Vancouver Island. The cave was described as very well decorated with stalactites and stalagmites and explored for a length of 4,000 feet to date. As such, "The find ranks as the largest natural cave system in British Columbia."

I would like to congratulate the discoverers on their find and their efforts to preserve it. But it would not appear to be the largest cave of B.C. at the moment. Under contract from the National Parks, my research group at McMaster University has explored and mapped some 18,000 feet of cave passages and chambers in the Nakimu Caves, Selkirk Mountains. The caves have an explorable depth of 880 feet which ranks them as the deepest system known in Canada. But Alberta holds the current length record. We are working on a cave there that has been explored for an estimated six miles, the first 3½ miles of which have been mapped.

Piglet Chase

I was quite shocked to see the coverage the Colonist gave to the cruel activities of the Salt Spring Island children chasing piglets and rabbits.

Surely we should have more consideration for the feelings of animals? And it must be bad for children to be brought up to think that it is quite all right to make use of animals for their own fun and entertainment.

The fact that the piglets and rabbits were chased around a field for a good cause seems to me to make it even more reprehensible — "the end justifies the means" sort of thing.

This type of activity tends to develop in children a lack of sensitivity to the feeling of animals, and I would think would also tend to develop a less than desirable sensitivity to other things, leading perhaps to juvenile delinquency.

Many adults chastise the hippies for their long hair and beards and alleged opposition to the use of soap — but they are generally speaking, far more humane than those who applaud the chastisement of piglets and rabbits.

To cap it all, the children are allowed to keep the animals they catch as a reward for their unkindness.

There is in Canada a "Kindness Club." Its pledge is, "I promise to be kind to animals."

The Muddle of Defence

Canada Leaves a Gap to Be Filled

By R. S. MALONE, in the Winnipeg Free Press

FOR some years after the Second World War, while the U.S. held a virtual monopoly of atomic weapons, it was considered that this vast superiority was a sufficient deterrent to any Russian advances in Europe. Large and costly land forces under NATO command, it was argued, were not really essential. The error in this assumption was soon recognized by two of Canada's former prime ministers, Louis St. Laurent and L. B. Pearson, who, together with such European leaders as Sir Winston Churchill, Harold Macmillan and others, were among the chief architects of a North Atlantic defence alliance.

Canadian troops were dispatched to Europe to remain "as long as they were needed." While Britain undertook a military commitment of 30 years, informed authorities estimated the commitment would more likely be required for about 30 years before any lasting peace could be won.

Today expert opinion is that a strong NATO alliance will be required for a period of a further six years. Indeed an appreciation of global security indicates that the next six years may well be the most critical period for the NATO alliance. It will be recalled that General Norstad, NATO's supreme commander in Europe, repeatedly warned that unless NATO remained strong enough to face a Russian conventional challenge, we may well have to face the appalling choice of surrender or all-out nuclear war.

At the time of his retirement from NATO command, General Norstad's final and urgent words of warning were pointedly spoken in Ottawa during his visit to Canada. They produced something of a shock at the time.

Although Canada's defence programs have been wasteful and confused for the past decade, all governments until the present have appreciated that any practical policy for Canada lay in collective security and that the focal point or area of greatest danger lay in Western Europe with global security interdependent on the NATO defences.

It is with this background that Prime Minister Trudeau has introduced his policy of Canada's phasing out of her NATO commitment. This announcement not only caught Canadians by surprise but it directly repudiated the advice of his own special parliamentary committee in addition to the views of five or six senior members of his cabinet.

The bitter realizations of our friends and allies in the NATO alliance were frankly and brutally registered with both Defence Minister Cadeux and External Affairs Minister Sharp during their visits to Europe this summer. Canada's reputation in the Western alliance has been severely damaged.

Two explanations have been advanced for Canada's surprise action. First, it is defended on the grounds that the need and importance of NATO has deteriorated; the factors have altered and Canada's participation is no longer essential. The second alibi is that Canada really cannot afford the cost of maintaining our small forces in Europe any longer.

Let us examine the first of these two explanations by reference to the recently published views of Dr. Geoffrey Williams in a study entitled "Natural Alliance for the West," dealing with global security. Dr. Williams is a member of the Strategic Studies Advisory Committee at the Royal United Services Institute in London, also a consultant to the defence ministry in England and a lecturer on defence in various universities as well as the staff college at Camberley. In his view it is erroneous to assume that the formation of a strategic reserve and the strategic nuclear force would diminish the need for manpower. In any collective security, all must bear their share. Failure to do so after the First World War undoubtedly led to the Second World War. Europe is still not strong enough to defend herself alone without the backing of the United States and Canada.

We cannot live alone in isolation. History has surely taught us the futility of such a dream. As Sir Winston Churchill warned . . . "only through full-hearted co-operation can all men in all the lands find their way home together."

Dr. Williams also confirms that tactical nuclear weapons have become a necessity in NATO planning. There has been much confusion in our thinking as to the respective moral values of large nuclear bombs, small nuclear weapons for tactical use and so-called conventional weapons. Ottawa has announced that Canadian troops overseas will soon be rid of nuclear weapons. Seemingly this will improve our image of morality and ease the conscience of Parliament. With a moment's thought, however, it will be seen that actually the reverse is true.

If we believe in supporting NATO, surely our obligation is to do so with the most effective weapons that are available to us. To do otherwise and allow our troops to remain in a position of danger, inviting advances through having inferior weapons is the height of hypocrisy and immorality. Unless we are prepared to equip our troops with weapons comparable to a potential enemy, morality suggests we should withdraw our men at once. In past history, leaders who have negligently left their troops exposed to needless dangers have been impeached on the grounds of immorality, treason and stupidity.

Had Russian policy been to limit or withdraw nuclear weapons there would be some justification for Canada's move but today Russia's military program is toward a global expansion and she is testing new nuclear weapons.

I Beg to Differ . . .

Kitchen Handicaps

By FRANK LOWE

WHEN people approach me, as they often do, to complain that this column is not sufficiently serious, or dignified — "Why don't you write about the Crisis on the Campus?" — I try to explain to them that this is the fault of my environment. Somehow, no matter how I would like things to be different, I find it difficult to be profound and thoughtful when I am typing on a kitchen table, and using a typewriter that has a built-in cough from having lived in so many draughty pawn shops.

Mind you, this is not my doing. When I was an aspiring writer I envisioned a much finer way of life. I remember once getting in to see the editor of The Times of London. His office was a big, comfortable room with a fire burning in the grate and not a typewriter in sight. I guess he used quill pens.

This really impressed me, as did the operating methods of several eminent authors I have seen from time to time in line of reportorial duty. These gentlemen use fancy dictating machines, and a corps of pretty stenographers, to get their meaningful prose across to the public.

However, when column writing became a part-time thing with me, the kitchen became my workshop. True, I do have a desk. But the only chair in it is too low to allow me to reach up to the top of the desk unless I chin myself with one hand — a feat, I must say — while I pound the typewriter keys with the other. Also, this kind of thing can be very tiring.

There is also the problem of sufficient light. Each time I get a bulb bright enough to illuminate this hideaway, it lasts no longer than a night or so. In our place "The Dark at the Top of the Stairs" is not a play — it is Daddy's Den.

So the only place to go is the kitchen. And this, while bright and warm and handy to such inspirational sources as the refrigerator, does have its drawbacks.

There is, for instance, my wife. She feels that the only time I am working is when the typewriter keys are clacking. When they fall silent, as I desperately attempt to think of an idea, she immediately plunges into such inspirational topics as bills (how to pay same), roofs (how to repair same), or paint (why am I allergic to same?).

While I hate to criticize her it seems to me that these topics are not calculated to help someone write about the more meaningful side of life.

Then, during some periods of the year, there is the complication presented by my daughter. I no sooner complete typing a ringing sentence — "It is five minutes to midnight and unless a true leader appears the end result will be . . ." than she drapes herself across my shoulder and comments: "I don't know what you're talking about Daddy-O, but it sure sounds dullsville to me."

This makes me re-read the sentence and realize that in my eagerness to placate my critics and write something meaningful, I am really sounding like a cut-rate Lippman.

The third distraction with my kitchen workshop is my mother-in-law. Mind you this is the woman who claims she never eats and has an appetite like a bird.

But somehow the noise of my typewriter starts the salivary, and I have known her to come in and prepare at least three snacks before I am well into my third paragraph.

However, this kind of thing does keep me in my proper milieu — writing about the everyday things in this life we lead.

Not the big events that startle and shock us — the little things that simply drive us mad.

And one thing I will say for this mode of work — I am one of the few columnists I know who can simultaneously write a column and demolish half a cold chicken which just happens to be resting on the sideboard within easy reach.

Everything, in one way or another, does have its own compensations.

For some years now the Canadian brigade in Europe with its supporting armor and tactical nuclear weapons have taken their place in the fire with our allies in the so-called "bowling alley," a sector of critical importance. Our currently announced reduction of this formation means that our remaining troops will have to be withdrawn to a reserve position as their effectiveness will be reduced by 80 per cent, apart from the effect of this on our allies and the doubts it cast on Canadian credibility. It poses a serious problem for SACEUR at this important juncture. It must impose a greater load on our allies as someone must fill the gap.

One of Ottawa's chief arguments for reducing our NATO commitment is the need for economy in our national budget. As regards our obligations towards collective security and in the eyes of our allies, surely this must appear as a sham. This is not to say that our defence expenditures of $1.5 billion a year have been wise or effective, quite the contrary. In light of our current affluence, the amount, however, will not stand relative comparisons with our neighbors. As a percentage of our gross national product the picture in 1967 was as follows:

Defence costs as percentage of GNP
U.S.A.	9.47
U.K.	7.15
Germany	5.56
Holland	4.81
Belgium	3.81
Canada	3.27

During the same year Canada spent nearly $1.5 billion on alcoholic beverages, over $3 billion on cars, nearly a billion on cigarettes and tobacco and $750 million on TV sets, radios, etc. The obvious conclusion is that the government wishes to give us more butter and social services which are always more popular than paying our way in collective security.

In a final article in this series an attempt will be made to assess Canada's current defence policy with a little realism and outline a few of the practical steps which might be undertaken to restore the situation.

Floating Proof

Peking Wooing Masses

By ROBERT S. ELEGANT
From Hong Kong

Only occasionally do China-watchers, barred from the country, actually get the opportunity to watch things Chinese. Most of the time they listen and read.

One such opportunity came along the other day when three small, box-like Chinese freighters came into Hong Kong harbor from Canton. The remarkable aspect of the freighters was what they did not display.

Three months ago, those ships would have been covered with slogans exalting Chairman Mao Tse-tung of the Communist Party and exhorting greater efforts to "carry out the great proletarian cultural revolution."

But they were quite conventionally painted. Except for their five-starred red flags, they look like any other ramshackle coasters.

One sighting was, in this case, worth 10,000 words in clarifying certain strange noises emanating from China during the past several weeks. There had been a spate of references from regional sources to "unified collective leadership" of the Communist Party, as well as the revolutionary committees, which in theory rule the Chinese hinterland.

Suddenly, last week, those references were cut off, confirming in specialists' minds their original feeling that the provinces had revealed a secret Peking preferred not to publicize abroad.

Questions Remained

But the questions still remained: why collective leadership, a term which has a highly specific meaning in the communist dictionary? and why collective leadership now?

The absence of slogans on the freighters was evidence of a trend almost as important as collective leadership itself, the trend which probably forced collective leadership. The Communists' obvious purpose now is to slow down the cultural revolution before China disintegrates into a welter of feuding provinces, and even counties.

Collective leadership at the top obviously means that the rulers of Communist China cannot agree on either a dominant personality or policy. Those titular rulers are primarily generals elevated because of the number of troops they command in critical areas. Their personal interests differ and, sometimes, conflict.

Collective leadership of revolutionary committees down to the individual "production brigade" of a few hundred families obviously reflects the indecision in Peking.

But there are other and more pressing reasons.

It is, for example, starting to find the dominant "representatives of the Peoples Liberation Army" on revolutionary committees ordered to implement collective leadership. If the Liberation Army is not in command, who is?

The answer, illuminated by the ships' lack of slogans, is that the "monolithic leadership" formerly attempted has alienated more Chinese than it has compelled to obedience. Peking is, therefore, seeking to woo the people.

Old Fear Returns

The new stress lies upon involving the people — workers, peasants, soldiers, and intellectuals — in the proceedings of the revolutionary committees.

It is somewhat ironic that a country turned topsy-turvy by enthusiastic response to the slogan, "the masses should manage the state," now must implore those same masses to participate in the executive process.

The reasons are, however, clear.

The Chinese have, above all, reverted to their traditional fear of involvement.

Besides, participation in collective leadership does not really mean participation in making decisions. Ultimately it means carrying out orders — and the Chinese are tired of obeying orders.

Finally, an amorphous "underground government" apparently operates in China, just as it did when secret societies resisted the rule of the alien Manchu invaders. That concealed regime has no desire to yield its power, however diffused, by joining the collective leadership.

The ultimate irony is now taking shape. Mao started the cultural revolution to break the power of the centralized bureaucracy. A new decentralization is appearing, but it is anti-Maoist.

Monkey Proved Space Work Unsafe for Humans

Bonnie Didn't Die in Vain

By JOSEPH L. MYLER, from Washington

A male pigtail monkey nicknamed Bonnie has convinced scientists that mankind is not ready to design mammoth space stations in which human beings could work safely and effectively for long periods.

That was the conclusion Wednesday in a preliminary report on an ill-fated space flight of the little monkey last summer.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) has been considering space station missions of at least a year's duration. One conclusion from the report is that construction of the stations for long habitation now "would be premature."

Bonnie, a 14-pound package of eager vitality, was launched into orbit June 28 aboard the biosatellite 3 spacecraft on what was intended to be a 30-day study of the physiological effects of weightlessness.

He was fitted with a variety of sensors which provided measurements of body functions which the scientists said were "without parallel in any single previous experiment on earth or in space." Technicians watching the reports from Bonnie's body knew a great deal more about what was happening to him than they knew about their own insides.

Their report is rich in data on Bonnie's sleep life, his loss of fluids and bone calcium, the odd behavior of his "central venous pressure," and his ultimate decline into a state of drowsiness.

Bonnie's condition "deteriorated sharply" on his eighth day in orbit. He no longer took the food and water available to him, his heart beat rate fell from 170 beats a minute early in the flight to 39. So the order went out: deorbit. When Bonnie was recovered at sea in his coffin-like capsule, he was found to be cold with "vital signs scarcely perceptible." He was rushed to an "intensive care" ward and for a while responded to treatment.

But 12 hours after recovery Bonnie's heart started beating in a furiously irregular fashion and, said the report, "further attempts at resuscitation were unsuccessful."

Because he was merely a research animal, Bonnie was subjected to stresses no human astronaut has yet had to experience. But some of the things that happened to him were similar, if more pronounced, to some of the things that have happened to human astronauts.

Can what happened to Bonnie be applied to human beings? Dr. W. Ross Adey, a University of California at Los Angeles professor who was "principal investigator" of the biosat 3 flight, said that until results of animal experiments are refuted "they must be allowed to stand."

In any case, he said, it is obvious that "it would be premature" to start building big space stations for long habitation by men until much more is known about the physiological effects of weightlessness and why they killed Bonnie.

"It's a good painting but I don't think it looks like him."

Astrology Cult Sweeps U.S.

Millions Look to the Stars

By CHARLES FOLEY, from Los Angeles

"Are you an Aquarian?" asks the pretty, worried-looking girl. Her lips tremble as the young man pauses before replying: "No—Plases." Both parties smile blissfully and fall into each other's arms.

The scene occurs in Easy Rider, the film by a young Californian director which deals in the ways of hippie-oriented youth, and it is a scene that is repeated in real life countless times a day on Californian beaches and streets. In this state of many fads, few have captured the mass imagination as thoroughly as astrology.

No doubt California, with its notoriously superstitious film colony and its rootless, insecure population provides fertile ground for such a cult. But the phenomenon has spread across the U.S. with a sweeping inclusiveness.

It has become big business. An estimated 10,000 people are making a full-time living from astrological forecasting, and a further 200,000 are engaged in it on part-time basis. Radio stations that regularly broadcast astrological predictions are common in California, and if they have not yet caught on throughout the States, they will.

Zodiacal signs are appearing on everything from paper napkins to perfume bottles. Tiffany's, the celebrated jeweller, is advertising its new line of zodiacal gem designs, starting at a few thousand dollars a set. Woolworth's is peddling cocktail glasses bearing the same symbols.

Even the bookshops around Harvard Square, that centre of national intellect and enlightenment, are selling tarot cards and the whole range of occult literature from palmistry manuals to do-it-yourself witchcraft courses. Their clients are graduate students and assistant professors. The occult is the "in" thing with the over-educated and sceptical as well as the under-educated and credulous.

Pop groups and folk singers record zodiacal songs. Bookstalls in supermarkets overflow with astrological magazines. Well-known British astrologer Maurice Woodruff was brought over to star in an hour-long television "prediction spectacular."

Nor has astrology been excluded from the American zeal to computerize everything in sight. One company is turning out 10,000 computerised horoscope readings a month.

The astrological renaissance has coincided with the rise of the hippie movement, and both have found expression in Hair, the wildly successful "tribal love rock musical" now in its second year in Los Angeles and still booked up for two months ahead.

The cast of Hair have a staff astrologer (who gets a program credit) and it opens with the song: "When the Moon is in the seventh house And Jupiter aligns with Mars Then peace will guide the planets And love will rule the stars."

This advent of peace and love will be due to the world's entry into the "Age of Aquarius," a 2,000-year period which, astrologers agree, is going to be more fun than the last 2,000, spent under the zodiacal sign of the fishes.

"An age of joy, of science and of accomplishment," says the most famous and best-paid of America's public astrologers, Carol Righter. His day-by-day horoscopes appear in more than 300 newspapers read by some 40,000,000 people. (His closest rival, Sydney Omarr, has 225 papers.)

Righter operates from a film-star home in Hollywood, decorated with signed photographs of clients like Marlene Dietrich, Peter Lawford, Susan Hayward and Ronald Reagan. Omarr is also based in Los Angeles. Both enjoy earnings in the six-figure range.

It is reported that film-star clients pay them yearly retainers which permit them to call whenever they need to know what the stars foretell. Fees for private consultations with the top seers range from $50 with Woodruff, who—like Hair—is booked up for months to come, to $100 upwards for Al Morrison, president of the Astrologers' Guild of America.

What lies behind the appeal of astrology in the America of the 1960s? The fact is, say psychologists, that people want it to work, and so indicate some kind of order in the universe. Astrology's origins lie in primitive religious beliefs (sun and moon influence earth and seas; planets named after gods move through star constellations at set seasons influencing human destiny).

Astrology is also closely linked with feelings of insecurity—which make people seek signs and portents in natural events, a search that is as old as man himself. It is no accident that the cult flourishes most strongly in times of change and transition, such as the last days of the Roman Republic, the Renaissance or the present day.

The fading of traditional religious belief leaves a blank in many lives which astrology can fill painlessly. It provides a ritualistic substitute for faith in God, and it makes no demands.

Some psychologists would add that astrology is helping people who find themselves unable to cope with responsibility for their course through life by offering a rope they can cling to: the thought that the stars are controlling that course.

Russians To Build Stations In Space

By HENRY SHAPIRO
From Moscow

Communist Party secretary Leonid Brezhnev said Wednesday the Soviet Union intends to build a series of orbiting "cosmodrome" stations that will serve as "mankind's highway to space."

Brezhnev sketched future Soviet plans in space in a speech honoring the seven cosmonauts, who last week successfully completed the first mass orbital flight. It involved three spaceships and included experiments in welding, which will be necessary in the construction of space stations.

The success of the seven-man flight in the three Soyuz spacecraft, Brezhnev said, "shows the great possibilities of our industry, its great might."

The Soviet Union has an extensive space program drawn up for many years ahead. Soviet science is looking toward the creation of orbital stations with shifting crews as mankind's highway to space. They can become cosmodromes in space, the launching pads for future flights to the planets.

Meet the family.

Our TV's. From 13½-inch Panasonic, world's smallest TV—to 20-inch Panasonic. Every one of them made with the legendary Panasonic quality.

At Panasonic, size has nothing to do with quality. Every model we make, we make like it was our only get.

And we don't skimp on features that make viewing simple. Like slide-lever controls that let you adjust your set with precision. And automatic circuits that make sure it keeps put.

Like dark-tinted screens that shade the picture from glare and reflection. So you don't see halos when a not-so-saintly character is on.

And Speed-O-Vision. Which means you never need an appointment with your television. Click... and on come sound and picture. Instantly.

A lot of other features we don't skimp on include direct vision tubes for better viewing, illuminated channel selectors, dipole antennas for clear reception, and earphones for privacy. And a lot more.

So if size has nothing to do with a good black and white TV, what does? Quality. Quality and a lot of innovation. The type you get from a company with 2,500 scientists and research engineers. With 60,000 technicians in over 80 factories. And with experience in selling 4,500 products in 120 countries.

'People Won't Tolerate Coup'

Chileans Overcome Crisis in Army

SANTIAGO (AP) — With a warning that the people of Chile will not tolerate military coups, President Eduardo Frei said Wednesday the country's crisis has been overcome and that rebel soldiers will be tried by military tribunals.

Frei told his people during a broadcast speech that the country would remain under a "state of siege" until normality returns. He said he had ordered a full investigation into the gun fire wounding of 14 civilians Tuesday night.

ONE DEMAND MET

The president made no mention that he had bowed to at least one of the demands made by the rebels, headed by Gen. Roberto Viaux, who surrendered at daybreak Wednesday and is under house arrest.

Shortly before noon, Frei removed from office Defence Minister Gen. Tulio Marín and replaced him with Sergio Ossa, until then the minister of public works and transportation. The rebels had demanded Marín's ouster and appointment of a civilian.

REALLY STRIKE

Frei said the rebellion, which amounted to little more than a strike by officers and men of the Tacna Regiment of the 2nd Division, had created tremendous interest abroad, where people asked: "Can Chile lose a democratic regime?"

"Today, they have the answer," Frei said. "In Chile, the armed forces do not accept indiscipline, and the people do not tolerate coups d'état."

Chile has not had a military coup in more than 30 years.

NO REPRESSION

Thanks to the response of the people, Frei said, "these acts cannot be repeated."

Frei, elected to office five years ago for a six-year term, disclosed that a special military tribunal had been set up to try the offenders, who were balking mostly about low pay. Some 40 officers, in addition to Viaux, face military trial.

Frei thanked students, the Congress, political parties, unions and private citizens for supporting him.

Now, he said, the best course is for everyone to return to work.

Frei thus appeared to be closing out the chapter of Chile's worst political crisis in 30 years.

HOUSE ARREST

At daybreak Wednesday, Viaux turned over command of Tacna Barracks, the rebel stronghold, to Gen. Alfredo Mahu, then returned to his home under house arrest.

Except for schools and banks, which remained closed, the Chilean capital was near normal Wednesday. An official tally showed 14 persons injured, all civilians wounded in a brief flurry of gunfire Tuesday night.

IN COMMAND

For the moment, at least, Frei and his Christian Democratic government appeared firmly in command.

Unsolved is the basic problem of low salaries and poor equipment for the Chilean armed forces. Although the problem surfaced to the surface in the Tacna Regiment, the rebels had wide sentimental support throughout the armed forces. Unless resolved—and any solution would tax Chile's hard-pressed economy—the problem could return to plague Frei.

In surrendering, Viaux issued a communique re-stating the rebels' "absolute loyalty" to the president and constitutional authority, and stating that their movement had no political intent.

SOLE AIM

Viaux said the 24-hour movement was aimed solely at a "solution to the material and humanistic institutional problem of the army."

Viaux had been ordered into retirement from a division command in northern Chile after he wrote a letter to Frei complaining that a worker in the American-managed copper mines earned more than a lieutenant-colonel with 25 years' army service.

Balking at the order, Viaux was ordered to Santiago for a hearing. He arrived in the capital Monday night and at daybreak Tuesday took command of the rebel movement.

Sweden Admits More Deserters

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Sweden has granted 15 more American deserters permission to remain in the country, the immigration department said. This brings the total number of U.S. deserters in Sweden to 307. Another 15 applications to stay now are being considered.

The Osland File

death, and there was a small wound over his right eye. Mr. and Mrs. Rolf Osland of 1300 Yates both identified their son. The coroner's inquest ended March 14.

Mr. Osland had been missing for 22 days before he was found. A total of $2,000 was put up by his family and friends as a reward for information leading to his discovery.

Mr. Osland's wife also hinted that more was known than had been generally publicized. Mrs. Kathleen Osland said, "I'm sure things are progressing and will come to a head soon. It's a very long story and one day it will all come out."

Unofficially, police are thought to have a prime suspect in the case but lack material evidence.

Mr. Osland was described as the "financial brains" of the Diversified Management group of businesses.

He had two sons, Andrew, 5, and John, 3.

Because Mr. Osland lived in Saanich, at 2831 Sea View Drive, Saanich police began the investigation. The navy divers began to search at area near his home off Ten Mile Point. Then, when the divers moved to the Inner Harbor and promptly turned up the body, authority was shifted to city police.

Men from both forces went to San Francisco to examine the display ship. They were assisted there by local police. And they interviewed the crew and project manager Egon Kuhn, 33, of 3929 Woodhaven.

Chief Gregory's decision to call in the RCMP came as a surprise, even to Saanich police, who were apparently not informed of the plan beforehand.

"To ensure that every possible avenue of investigation is explored to the fullest extent," said the chief, "and that no stone is left unturned in our continuing investigation into the Osland case, it was decided that a review of the evidence and statements, by a fresh team, completely new to the case, may prove beneficial to the final outcome."

"The Osland case is still under active investigation by the Victoria city police and is far from being concluded."

He said his announcement was made according to his policy that any "significant change" should be made public.

Mr. Osland's mother was reported a month ago as saying "After seven months, it's hard to keep my mouth shut. But if I make a statement, Bill's murderer could escape."

Philip Says Awards Find Youth Worthy

TORONTO (CP) — The Duke of Edinburgh awards scheme was coolly received in some quarters at first because some "renewal and social aid organizations refused to admit that youngsters of 16 could be trusted or trained to be of any use," Prince Philip said Wednesday.

Speaking to a combined service club audience of 1,200, the prince said that once this initial reserve was overcome, the organizations "agreed to give it a try, and I know of none who have been disappointed."

"Most of them discovered to their astonishment that these young people showed as much, if not more, enthusiasm, concern and responsibility than many adults."

The luncheon address was just one stop in another busy day in the prince's private, 15-day Canadian tour. Earlier, he watched high school girls model home-made clothes and circulated among displays of food, sewing, crafts and sports in a school gymnasium.

In his speech, he again outlined the purpose of the award system, and described his philosophy as "simply participation."

"It is severely practical and no one need feel morally, politically or in any other way compromised because they have gained or attempted to gain an award."

Prince Questions 'High Priest' Aims

TORONTO (UPI) — Prince Philip wondered aloud here Wednesday if "high priests" of science recognized their "obligation to notice" the effects current radical scientific and technological changes are having on human existence.

The prince, addressing a group of scientists and technicians at a suburban research centre here, said that science — and economics — had become the new religions.

After expressing concern about the obligations of scientists, Philip added:

"This may be asking rather a lot of the high priests, because traditionally their terms of reference do not include an injunction to care for the total well-being of our environment. Their concern is with the truth, and not, uncharitably, it turns out that it is the truth which can conveniently be ascertained or which promises some practical return which gets all the reward."

The royal visitor noted that science had produced "a whole armory of chemicals" for various purposes but it was the layman who first sounded the warning about their indiscriminate use.

"It is the science-based industrial complex which produces their water pollution," said the prince, "but it was the laymen who first drew attention to the dangers in the environment."

Besides the United Kingdom, the scheme is in operation in 17 Commonwealth countries and similar schemes under different names function in two other countries. It has been in operation in Canada since 1963.

Prince Philip called the public service and rescue training section of the scheme the most important because it "provides a real and valuable encouragement and opportunity to become involved in some form of voluntary community service."

Officers Serve Writs While Students Chant

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two New Westminster County sheriff's officers darted in and out of student picket lines Wednesday to serve 11 British Columbia Supreme Court writs on striking students at Simon Fraser University.

The writs claiming damages and interim injunctions banning disruption of classes were delivered personally either in the picket lines or in the cafeteria of the Burnaby campus.

Similar writs were served to three striking faculty members of the political science, anthropology and sociology department, through their lawyer.

SFU CLAIM

The university claims the 14 have been acting unlawfully in picketing and obstructing classes during a four-week flareup of a long-standing dispute in the PSA department.

Eight faculty members are currently under suspension from teaching and face dismissal hearings soon.

The 14 served with writs were to appear in court today.

The sheriff's officers, who refused to identify themselves, had to walk through marching and chanting students to hand out the writs.

The students had arranged to meet them at noon, but the officers were late and the students began to picket an education class before they arrived.

Those named in the writs were pointed out by a university security officer.

A fire was started briefly with paper but a student stamped the minor blaze out.

Following the serving of the writs, the students moved to halt a geography class started as a substitute for courses out when the eight faculty members struck.

Lumber Prices Level Off With 'No Boost in Sight'

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia lumber producers hope for a levelling-off of low prices, but don't expect to be back in the big money for some time.

Following a rapid decline which followed an equally rapid rise last spring and summer, lumber prices now are near the levels of two years ago.

Recent quotes set green Douglas fir two-by-four, at U.S. Atlantic seaboard railheads, at $76 per 1,000 board feet. Last spring, they hit an all-time high of about $140.

SLOWER STARTS

Anti-inflationary pressures in Canada and the U.S., a slowdown in housing starts and tight money are blamed for the decline.

"We expect a continuation of depressed lumber and plywood prices in North America due to the decline in housing starts," said a spokesman for MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.

"The construction industry is quick to respond to deflationary action by government; thus the high interest rates for mortgages and the generally tight money have reduced construction of housing."

Gordon Draeseke, president of the Council of Forest Industries of B.C., agreed and said "there is no evidence" of a buildup in inventories for next spring.

"Barring unforeseen events, a buildup does not appear possible before late 1970."

Partly to blame, said lumber producers, is the B.C. longshoremen's strike, which began Sept. 25. The strike "has interfered with (overseas) shipments of lumber with the result that more lumber was available for the North American market," a spokesman said.

Mr. Draeseke said: "There have been considerable layoffs and the effects of the strike will linger for several weeks, even if it's settled in the next few days."

A series of cutbacks in mills have been announced since the port strike began, the latest affecting 450 men employed in three mills of Rayonier Canada (B.C.) Ltd., where two of three shifts have been curtailed.

In all, about 2,000 men are out of work in cutbacks attributed by producers in the north of B.C. and on southern Vancouver Island to the strike.

Mr. Draeseke said prices "appear to have bottomed and any further drop in prices would probably result in extensive shutdowns."

PWA Enters Hotel Business

Atlantic Fare Cuts Lauded

CALGARY (CP) — Government approval of fare reductions for group trans-Atlantic travel would benefit both the public and airlines, the president of Pacific Western Airlines said Wednesday.

R. H. Laidman of Vancouver said if planned fare reductions by Air Canada are approved other carriers would probably receive permission to lower their fares also.

"This would open up a new market of travellers who cannot afford fares on regular flights."

"It would be a move in the right direction to encourage a wider segment of the public to use air travel."

Laidman and other PWA directors were in Calgary for a meeting and to open a drive-in ticket office.

The company president said Pacific Western is moving into the hotel business.

"We now are building a 100-room hotel at Yellowknife, with provisions for additions. The hotel and airline business seem to go together and it is a convenience for our customers to be able to book a flight and a hotel room at the same time."

"If the Yellowknife hotel is successful we will be looking at the same idea in other parts of the country and possibly outside the country, for example, in the Caribbean."

September Big Money-Mover

September was the second biggest month of the year in Victoria so far as movement of money through the banks was concerned.

The total debits to individual banking accounts in the area rose to $703,000,000 during the month. Only May with a total of $710,500,000, had previously topped the $700,000,000 mark this year.

The September total, in addition to being the second biggest of the year, compared with $536,100,000 in the same month of 1968 and $589,100,000 in August.

The Canadian Bankers Association figures show the nine-month total of debits to be running at a record level. The total to Sept. 30 is $5,473,400,000 against $4,503,600,000 in the same period last year, which was also a record.

FRESHWATER RELATIVE

Victoria's Island Tug and Barge Co. has acquired a new freshwater relative in Peace Navigation and Transport Co., which operates a fleet of small vessels on Williston Lake.

The association comes through the purchase of Peace Navigation by Genstar of Montreal, the parent company of Island Tug.

Peace Navigation is primarily engaged in the business of salvaging fallen timber from behind the Bennett Dam as the level of the Williston Lake rises.

Genstar says it will buy new tugs, barges and a reconnaissance aircraft in anticipation of the start of a new logging industry in the area after 1970.

BANK PESSIMISTIC

A pessimistic view of the economy on the near term is expressed by the Toronto Dominion Bank in its quarterly business review.

The bank says a mild recession may be hard to avoid next year and the economy may even now be experiencing a setback.

It defines a recession as a decline in national output for two successive quarters.

The peak of economic expansion in Canada was probably reached in the fourth quarter of 1968.

The bank believes the policies of economic restraint will be continued both in Canada and the United States until early next year.

Canadian National Railways has announced plans for the construction of a truck-rail transfer unit, including a ramp and gantry tower and relocation of about 950 feet of track.

The concentrates will be trucked by Chapman Transport of Kelowna, a CNR subsidiary.

Imports Curb Shaved

LONDON (CP) — The British government Tuesday decided to maintain its curbs on imports through the import deposit scheme for another year and to make no immediate change on restrictions on British tourist spending abroad.

Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, said he hopes to abolish the curbs on tourist a distance of 34 miles from the mine to the transfer point at the rate of 220 tons of copper and 25 tons of molybdenum concentrates a day.

CNR will move the concentrates to Vancouver in gondola cars which will take them to a bulk-loading terminal for export by ship.

Brenda, a large low-grade open pit mining operation, expects to be in production by next year. It is controlled by Noranda Mines.

VAN LINES MERGED

Two western Canadian companies in the storage and distribution industry have been bought up by Greyhound Van of Canada, a subsidiary of Greyhound Van Lines of the U.S.

They are Crone Moving and Storage of Vancouver and Robertson Transfer and Storage of Calgary. Both Canadian firms had been associates for some time, as members of the Tri-Met Transportation System.

BONDS FOR ROYNAT

Two maturities are being offered by Roynat Ltd., in a new $10,000,000 debenture that will pay 9 per cent for a term of either five or 10 years.

Both the 1974 and 1979 maturities are being offered at par.

CARBIDE SALES RECORD

Record sales and improving profits are reported by Union Carbide Canada for the first nine months of 1969.

Net earnings were $7,661,000 (77 cents a share) compared with $6,266,000 (63 cents) a year ago.

Sales rose to $134,187,000 from $121,165,000.

The first gasoline-driven road vehicle built in North America was made by Americans J. Frank and Charles E. Duryea in 1893.

Imports Curb Shaved

LONDON (CP) — The British government Tuesday decided to maintain its curbs on imports through the import deposit scheme for another year and to make no immediate change on restrictions on British tourist spending abroad.

Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, said he hopes to abolish the curbs on tourist the goods is deposited with the government for six months.

Canadian and other exporters had hoped the government would eliminate the import deposit scheme when the present regulations came to an end in December.

Canadian officials also have been concerned over the travel curb which prevented many Britons from spending their holidays in Canada. The curb, imposed in November, 1966, puts a ceiling of £50 ($130) on the amount of foreign exchange a British tourist can take out of the country each year.

Impressive Bobby Orr Leads NHL Scorers

A defenceman winning the Hart Trophy might well be improbable but the way Bobby Orr has started this season takes it out of the realm of the impossible.

The 22-year-old Boston superstar, who last season set records for goals (21) and points (64) by defencemen in one season, has taken the National Hockey League scoring lead and looks as if he is capable of holding it.

Playing in front of 14,583 impressed Minneapolis fans Wednesday night, Orr dominated the game and scored his second goal and made his seventh assist to lead Bruins to a 3-2 win over Minnesota North Stars.

PERFECT PASS

Orr, who had been a stand-out penalty-killer while Phil Esposito served a penalty late in the first period, opened the scoring after taking a perfect pass from Esposito, who stepped out of the penalty box to get the puck at mid-line.

Kramer Unveils Rich Plan: A World Tennis Grand Prix

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Kramer emerged from seven years of semi-retirement Wednesday as architect of a plan for a $2,000,000 Grand Prix world tennis circuit.

It was an open declaration of war against pro promoters. There would be no more under-the-table payments to the professional troupes, he said. Tennis would be placed solidly in the hands of the national associations.

HAS BACKING

"I already have a firm commitment from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Sweden and the United States," Kramer said. "I expect all other tennis playing countries to follow suit."

The matter is to be brought before the International Lawn Tennis Federation at its meeting in Brussels Dec. 5. A committee will be set up then to run international tennis. If not, our game is in deep trouble.

Kramer said that he had not approached the two leading professional promoters—George MacCall of the National Tennis League and Lamar Hunt of the World Championship Tennis, Inc., who control most of the top pros.

NEWCOMER HAPPY

He said, however, that the plan had drawn a hearty endorsement from John Newcombe of Australia, president of the International Tennis Players Association. Newcombe belongs to the Hunt troupe.

"There is no way they can avoid playing in these tournaments," Kramer said. "This is where the money and the prestige will be." To qualify for the Grand Prix bonus, a player must compete in 80 per cent of the tournaments.

STEPPED OUT

Kramer was the czar of pro tennis at one time. After a long and bitter feud with Pancho Gonzales, he stepped out as promoter in 1962.

The promoters have threatened to boycott tournaments unless they are paid special fees above prize money for use of their talent. The associations have joined in opposing such payments.

Portland Buckaroos climbed into a share of first place in the Western Hockey League Wednesday with a 5-2 win over Seattle Totems at Portland. The loss dropped Totems into last place as San Diego Gulls edged Denver Spurs, 4-3, in a game at Denver.

Cordova Bay defeated Saanichton, 17-9, in a pre-midnight game; Brentwood downed Cordova Bay, 14-10, in a midday boys contest, and Cordova Bay beat Brentwood, 25-17, in a barman boys game Wednesday in Peninsula Basketball Association play at Cordova Bay Community Hall.

Montreal Defeat Could Help B.C. Bid for Winter Games

DUBROVNIK, Yugoslavia (CP-AP) — The battles appeared to be between Montreal and Los Angeles and Vancouver and Denver in Wednesday's preliminaries to the awarding of the Olympic Games sites for 1976.

The agenda for full International Olympic Committee and international sports federations meetings in Amsterdam next May are being shaped at this Adriatic coast resort.

Bids for the 1976 Summer Games have been made by Montreal and Los Angeles. Vancouver and Denver are seeking the winter festival.

Other cities are in the running, but the U.S. and Canadian bids appeared to have the inside track.

U.S. officials here are hoping the fact that 1976 is their country's bicentenary will help them win both Games.

SPLIT EXPECTED

Syd Young, vice-president of the committee of candidature from Vancouver, feels that if Los Angeles gets the Summer Games, Garibaldi, B.C., just outside Vancouver, will beat out Denver for the Winter Games.

The IOC usually votes first on the summer site.

Young, here to press the B.C. bid, said the strongest point in favor of Garibaldi is that all facilities will be within a two-mile radius.

"The facilities in Denver are all spread out and more difficult to get to," he said.

OTTAWA WILL HELP

Young said the Canadian government has promised full financial support to complete the job if the bid goes to Garibaldi.

Denver delegates also were optimistic.

Robert Pringle, president of the Denver candidature committee, said that if Los Angeles wins, "it doesn't mean we'll pack up and go home."

John B. Kilroy, a Los Angeles businessman heading the city's delegation, said Los Angeles already has 90 per cent of the facilities necessary to hold the summer event.

"The only things we need to build are a new Olympic-size swimming stadium that will hold 25,000 to 30,000 persons and new equestrian facilities. They have already been planned."

Montreal, considered Los Angeles' chief rival, is reported having difficulty raising the necessary funds.

A European national committee member said it would probably cost Munich, site of the 1972 Summer Games, about $500,000,000 to prepare for the event.

"The huge cost may be prohibitive in the case of Montreal," he said.

In Montreal, a city spokesman said a three-man delegation is representing Montreal at the Yugoslav meeting.

No serious discussion of finances has started, he added, but the city is preparing its formal bid, which will contain answers to any questions regarding financing, facilities and other aspects of the games.

He scoffed at suggestions that Montreal is reported having difficulty raising funds because "funds haven't even been brought to light yet."

Asked about Young's remark that the federal government has promised full financial support to the Garibaldi bid, he said: "If this is true, how can the federal government refuse to do the same thing for Montreal?"

Bench, Seaver Lead All-Star Poll Killebrew Second at Two Positions

NEW YORK (AP) — A batting average apparently isn't everything in the race to make an all-star baseball team.

Pete Rose of Cincinnati, the National League's leading batter with a .348 average, and second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota, best in the American League with .332, made The Associated Press' 1969 all-star major league team announced Wednesday.

SOME SURPRISES

But more than a dozen .300 hitters received nothing more than honorable mention in the nationwide poll of 283 sports writers and broadcasters.

Failing to make either the first or second team were such hitting stars as Cleon Jones of the New York Mets (.340), Matty Alou of Pittsburgh (.331), Alex Johnson of Cincinnati (.315), Reggie Smith of Boston (.308) and Tony Oliva of Minnesota (.308).

Heading up the all-stars were Johnny Bench of the Reds and Tom Seaver of the world champion New York Mets.

HUGE MARGIN

Bench, who shrugged off the traditional sophomore jinx with a .295 average, 29 homers and 90 runs batted in, led the voting with 264 votes. He was such an overwhelming choice for catcher that his nearest rival, Bill Freehan of Detroit, received only eight votes.

Seaver, top winner in the majors with a 25-7 mark, was next with 237 votes as the team's right-handed pitcher. He was the only Met to make either the first or second team.

The other selections were Willie McCovey of San Francisco (.320) at first, Rico Petrocelli of Boston (.287) at shortstop, Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs (.287) at third, and outfielders Hank Aaron of Atlanta (.298) and Frank Howard of Washington (.296).

AARON LEADS OUTFIELD

Aaron, who hit 44 homers and collected 96 RBIs, was tops in the outfield balloting with 224 votes.

Carew was a solid choice over the Cubs' Glenn Beckert for second baseman, 217 votes to 42, while Petrocelli, a .297 hitter with 40 homers and 96 RBIs, had a big margin over another Cub, Don Kessinger, at short with 234 votes to 40.

McCovey's 45 homers, 126 RBIs and .320 average made him a solid choice at first. Although Santo had only a .287 average, he had 129 RBIs, and 29 homers last season.

Cuellar, 22-11 during the regular season, beat out teammate Dave McNally as the left-handed pitcher, 141 votes to 49.

Seaver was almost unchallenged as the righty, attracting 211 votes more than runner-up Denny McLain of Detroit, who finished 24-9 last season after winning 31 games in 1968.

Frank Robinson of Baltimore (.308), Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh (.345) and Reggie Jackson of Oakland (.276) with 47 homers were the three runners-up in the outfield voting. Jackson edged out the Mets' Jones by three votes for the final outfield spot on the second team.

Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota wound up as both the first and third baseman on the second team because of some vote splitting.

Killebrew (.277), who led the majors with 49 homers and 140 RBIs, played both positions during the season and the voters gave him 53 votes at first and 83 at third.

However, his total vote for both positions—136—would still have left him behind either Santo at third or McCovey at first.

All-Star Opener On Friday Night

Stockers' North Americans face a formidable lineup Friday night at 8:15 when the Vancouver Island Hockey League opens its season with its eighth annual all-star game at the Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Stockers, who swept league and playoff honors last season, will face an all-star team made up of a goalkeeper, two defencemen and three forwards from each of the other three teams in the league.

TOP LINE

Representing Queen's Own Rifles will be goalkeeper Joe Rozon, defencemen Tod Barnes and Rene Taillefer and forwards George Ede, Len Desjardins and Dave Stones.

The forward line was the top production unit in the league last season with Ede and Desjardins tying for individual scoring honors.

University of Victoria Vikings are contributing goalkeeper Fred Terzaci, defencemen Stan Ruzicka and Jim Haddrell and forwards Bill Westover, Bob Buie and Gary Hales.

Butler Bros. lineup has a definite UVic ring with forwards Paul Bion, Mike McAvoy and playing-coach Terry Foreman all graduating Vikings. The defencemen are Ron Marshall and Dunc McLean and Ed Hastings is the goalkeeper.

League play commences the following weekend. Each club will play an 18-game schedule.

There is a kind of man who tries.

Racing boats are touchy at the best of times. Put a man in one who won't take second place for an answer and you'll see some action. He gives it the full shot. There is a whisky like that.

The full shot. Gold Stripe. It will put 100% full, laughing taste in your mouth with every sip. And quietly leave. Without biting. If you'd like a little honest taste, maybe you should try Gold Stripe. And get the full shot.

Twins Seek Rigney

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — President Calvin Griffith of Minnesota Twins says he has offered the job of manager to Bill Rigney, who is expected to accept it Thursday.

Rigney, 51, had a two-year contract with the California Angels, also an American League baseball club, when he was fired on May 28.

Griffith added: "The only thing holding up the signing is that Rigney wants to make a settlement with the California Angels on his 1970 contract."

Rigney would succeed Billy Martin, who in his first year as a major league manager piloted the Twins to the AL Western Division crown.

Fan Fights for Life After Soccer Beating

LONDON (Reuters) — The latest victim of Britain's growing soccer violence lies semi-conscious in a hospital bed, his head savagely kicked by fans of a rival team.

Barrie Hedges, an 18-year-old supporter of London's West Ham United team, is in poor condition. Surgeons performed a five-hour operation to remove a blood clot from his brain.

TOUGH ODDS

He was attacked by about 20 supporters of Coventry City, a Midland team in the English League, held by his team to a 2-2 draw Oct. 11. Doctors say it will be several weeks before they know whether he will fully recover.

His wife, Teresa, who has a four-month-old son, said: "I never want Barrie to go to another away game again. I always wondered if he would be brushed after reading so much in newspapers about violence."

THEY'RE INVENTIVE

Hedge's fight for life spotlighted a steady increase in soccer hooliganism. Police regularly remove offensive objects from so-called fans.

At a recent London game, their haul included coins with sharpened edges, ball bearings, razors, sawdust, knives and daggers, as well as normally innocent items such as nail files and screws, deadly in the hands of a thug.

Steel-tipped boots are banned in many stadiums. At a recent match in the Midlands, police ordered heavily-booted potential troublemakers to watch the match in stocking feet.

DANGER IS OUTSIDE

Violence inside the grounds is being steadily controlled. Closed-circuit television, high-powered binoculars, enforced separation of rival fans and more policemen among the crowds have been used to good effect.

Clashes before and after a match now are the chief danger.

Most incidents occur outside the stadiums, where the fans can escape the vigilance of the police in a maze of narrow, winding streets.

The current policy of fines for soccer hooligans has been criticized by the minister for sport, Denis Howell. He said:

"I don't think anyone knows the answer to soccer violence."

Indeed, many claim the hooligans have no interest in the game, and Howell, in a parliamentary debate, said: "It is something deeper. It is a blot on our society."

A government report, commissioned by Home Secretary James Callaghan after an incident in which 500 rowdy fans were thrown off a special train, may provide fresh answers.

Run Planned On Saturday

An all-comers, cross-country run sponsored by Victoria Y.M. Y.W.C.A. will be held Saturday at Beacon Hill Park starting at 2 p.m.

Open to runners between 10 and 15 years of age, the meet will be divided into three age groups and distances range from 1.09 miles to 2.86 miles.

No entry fee is required and registration will take place 20 minutes before the start.

Toomey Retires Again Had Record in Grasp

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bill Toomey's on-again, off-again decathlon career—a discouraging search for the world record—in off again.

For the 32nd time in his life and the ninth time this year, both records in themselves, the Olympic champion fell short in a challenge for the record this week.

He needed only to run the 1500 metres in 4:23 minutes to break the record of $319 points set two years ago by Kurt Bendth of West Germany. But Toomey, who has done the distance in 4:12, broke too quickly, ran out of steam and did a 4:30.4 which left him with only 8270 points.

"I think this is it. I've been in this too long," Toomey said.

It was the second retirement of the year for Toomey. He previously announced before a meet that it would close out his career, but he changed his mind after ending up with 8277 points for a U.S. record.

Mystery Caller To TV Show Mystery Killer?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A man who identified himself as Zodiac, mystery killer of five persons in the San Francisco Bay area this year, telephoned a television talk show Wednesday and demanded to speak with one of the participants, lawyer Melvin Belli.

"I'll kill," he told the KGO-TV show's host, Jim Dunbar, unless he could talk with Belli.

He made five telephone calls, each heard live by the TV audience, between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. He also called San Francisco police at 2 a.m., saying he wanted to speak to Belli or another well-known lawyer, F. Lee Bailey.

The man talked with Dunbar and Belli each time he called KGO. In the fourth call, at 7:33 a.m., the man described bad headaches he said he was suffering.

Suddenly he said: "I'm going to kill them. I'm going to kill all those kids."

In a letter last week to the San Francisco Chronicle, a writer, identified as Zodiac by police handwriting experts, said he planned to make a busload of school children his next victims. He said he would lay in wait, put a bullet through a bus tire, then pick off the children "as they come bouncing out."

Ottawa Advises Consumers:

Unwanted Mail Should Be Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — The department of consumer and corporate affairs is advising Canadians to refuse to accept merchandise mailed to them when they have not requested it.

In its latest bulletin on the perils besetting the modern consumer, the department reminds citizens that under the terms of the Post Office Act, "any individual has the privilege of refusing mail."

The bulletin notes that packages of greeting cards often are mailed to a home and the recipient is requested to mail his payment to the firm. Other unsolicited goods mentioned include religious music sent to churches and miniature cameras sent to names chosen from telephone books.

Post office regulations require that a notice be included with the shipment stating the recipient does not have to pay return postage and is under no obligation either to purchase the goods or return them.

The bulletin says:

"It is entirely up to the consumer to decide whether he should keep or return unsolicited material. In your own best interest, however, it would be wise in most cases to return the material to the post office."

The bulletin also notes the "particularly objectionable practice" of sending merchandise on a cash-on-delivery basis to persons who have recently died, leaving survivors to believe the goods were actually ordered. Such a practice, the bulletin states, is against the law.

If an individual decides not to accept a piece of mail, all he need do to be rid of it is to mark it "refused", sign it and return it to the post office where it will be disposed of in accordance with postal regulations.

Asians Look to Canada

Aid Request Welcomed

The countries of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam have asked Canada to increase its technical assistance to them.

The request was made at Wednesday's meeting of Colombo Plan delegates in Victoria. Secretary-General John Hadwen indicated the Canadian delegation welcomed the request, which was made on the basis that Canada is the only developed country within the plan which could offer the services of French-speaking technicians.

Political TV Plug Costs Cut in Half

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two of the three major American television networks, hoping to head off a congressional crackdown on the cost of election campaigning, said Wednesday they will slash rates for political advertisements.

The National Broadcasting Co. said it will reduce rates in next year's congressional elections by 50 per cent. The American Broadcasting Co. said its rates will be cut by 33 1/3 per cent.

The announcements came as the presidents of NBC, ABC and CBS testified before a Senate commerce committee.

Julian Goodman, president of NBC, said the 50-per-cent discount will apply to the five television stations it owns, but he said the network is seeking ways to help the 195 TV stations it serves to offer time at reduced cost to local candidates.

Goodman said plans also are in the making to offer reduced-rate time slots to the 1972 presidential contenders.

Another plan would make available some free half-hour segments, he said, if Congress waives the law that requires broadcast stations to give equal time to candidates seeking the same office.

President Leonard Goldenson of ABC said his network has already granted political discounts of 33 1/3 per cent for spot announcements on its own TV stations and that the rate will be extended to radio.

In the 1972 presidential election, Goldenson said, ABC will establish a 33 1/3 per cent reduction in both spot announcements and selected program time for the top candidates.

Flight Made in U.S. Simulator

Russians 'Soar to Moon'

HOUSTON (UPI) — Two visiting Russian cosmonauts, one a live wire, the other a deadpan, went on a make-believe trip to the moon Wednesday in an American spaceship.

"Oh boy, oh boy, oh boy!" the Soviets shouted in English.

The joy ride came during a hectic tour of the Manned Space Centre by Maj. Gen. Georgiy Beregovoy of the Russian air force and scientist cosmonaut Konstantin Feoktistov.

The Soviet spacemen, who got a pen and a pendant from President Nixon during a White House visit, are on a two-week American tour.

Beregovoy, the live wire, and Feoktistov, the deadpan, both made it to the moon in a practice machine used to train

American astronauts for lunar landings.

But the Russians failed in an attempt to rendezvous and dock in space simulators. Flight controllers blamed it on a faulty computer.

"We're out of time so I'll take control and bring it in manually," said an official in the control room at the end of the docking try.

Beregovoy orbited the earth some four days last year in a Russian Soyuz spacecraft. Feoktistov spent a day in Earth orbit aboard a Voskhod spaceship with two other men in 1964.

The two visiting Russians had lunch with U.S. astronaut Col. Frank Borman in the executive dining room at the giant space centre outside Houston.

Mobster Eased Transaction When Foundation Formed

By JEAN HEALIER
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A major source of financial support for the foundation which Justice William O. Douglas of the U.S. Supreme Court headed for nine years came from a deal set up by Meyer Lansky, one of the most notorious mobsters in the United States.

Under a contract signed by Albert Parvin, Lansky was paid $200,000 for acting as middle-man in setting up the 1960 sale of the Flamingo Hotel here.

Parvin, former head of the Parvin-Dohmann Co. of Los Angeles, was president and 30-percent owner of the company seeking to sell the hotel-casino, Hotel Flamingo, Inc.

The Flamingo was sold to a group which included Florida hotelmen Samuel Cohen, Morris Laneburg and Daniel Lifter.

The $200,000 was a fee which Lansky received for introducing the sellers to the Florida men interested in buying the hotel.

Parvin used a portion of the proceeds from the sale of the Flamingo to help set up the Albert Parvin Foundation. Parvin said Douglas aided him in creating the foundation. Douglas later served as its president and only salaried officer.

Douglas

It could not be determined if Douglas ever learned of or was told of the background of the Flamingo sale at any time during his association with the foundation. Douglas was asked for comment but declined to discuss the matter. Parvin could not be reached for comment.

A federal grand jury in New York is reported to be investigating the dealings of Parvin, Parvin-Dohmann Co. and other individuals and companies, but this investigation apparently is unrelated to the Flamingo sale. Lansky's name has come up repeatedly in recent investigations of organized crime. Sen. John L. McClellan's permanent investigations subcommittee, for example, describes Lansky as "one of the country's top gangsters."

The purchase price of the Flamingo was $10,500,000. Parvin was the principal stockholder with more than a 30-percent share of the company which sold the hotel-casino. Harry Goldman, Parvin's partner in Parvin-Dohmann — a multi-million-dollar-a-year hotel supply business in Los Angeles—held 7 1/2 per cent. Other stockholders included singer Tony Martin and actor George Raft.

Parvin said in an interview in 1964 that four years earlier he sought Justice Douglas's help in setting up the foundation. Douglas agreed.

Tax records of the Parvin Foundation dating back to 1962 show that Douglas was serving as president at an annual salary of $12,000. Proceeds from the Flamingo sale show up regularly through 1968 as one of the foundation's largest assets.

Douglas came under congressional criticism last spring for his involvement with the foundation, especially when it was disclosed that he wrote Parvin telling him that an Internal Revenue Service investigation of the foundation was "a manufactured case."

In May, Douglas resigned as president of the foundation.

The Parvin Foundation also has had an interest in several Las Vegas hotels and casinos by virtue of the Parvin-Dohmann stock it held. Parvin-Dohmann owns three casinos here, the Aladdin, the Fremont and the Stardust.

Harvey Silbert, secretary of the foundation, said it severed all its gambling ties in May — the same month Douglas resigned as foundation president — when it sold its shares of Parvin-Dohmann. Silbert also said the Flamingo mortgage was paid off earlier this year.

Parvin has sold out his interest in Parvin-Dohmann as well, but still maintains the foundation.

In June, after Parvin sold out, Parvin-Dohmann and Denny's Restaurants Inc. announced they would merge, but the plans were cancelled earlier this month. Several days later both firms and their officers found themselves embroiled with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

An SEC complaint, filed in Federal District Court in New York, alleges violations of anti-trust, report-filing and credit provisions of the Federal securities laws in connection with the now defunct merger plans. The SEC also accused Parvin of filing a false and misleading proxy statement with the commission.

It is not known how long Lansky and Parvin knew each other prior to their 1960 business dealings, but Lansky had known the three principal purchasers of the Flamingo for some time.

A report prepared by the gaming control board's investigative staff on the sale of the Flamingo said all three individuals acknowledged that they knew Meyer Lansky and his brother, Jake, but stated:

"We have never received any money from Meyer or Jake Lansky, or any of their associates; never paid any money to them; and, there has been no association where they might say they have any part of our business in any way."

This gadget can save up to 18 cents from every dollar spent on heating oil.

You'll find it in the new Shell Furnace.

Choosing a Furnace? Read how you'll save money by trapping 'left-over heat'. The gadget is a complicated boxful of steel tubes. It traps left-over heat—heat most furnaces waste up the chimney. The gadget—a special heat-exchanger—is unique to the Shell Oil Furnace.

Here's how it saves heating dollars. The heat-exchanger sits between the combustion chamber and the chimney outlet (see cutaway diagram). Hot waste gases from the combustion chamber flow through the tubes, making the tubes hot. Cool Room Air is drawn over the hot tubes and becomes heated.

How much will you save? Because this heat-exchanger saves 'left-over heat', you save money. How much you save depends on two things: the efficiency of your old furnace, and the efficiency of the rest of your heating system. A typical 15 yr. old furnace runs at 65-70% efficiency. A new Shell Furnace can reach an efficiency of 80% in an ideal heating system.

For each dollar spent on oil for the old furnace, a new Shell Furnace can save up to 18 cents.

You may make even greater savings. Just phone us at the number below. We'll show you—absolutely free of charge—how much lower your fuel bills can be. This service puts you under no obligation at all. Call us.

Tuck it in a corner
The new Shell Furnace is only 3 1/4 ft. high, 2 ft. wide and 4 3/4 ft. deep. Tuck it in a corner and save basement space. Controls are hidden by an attractive walnut-grain panel.

The furnace is rust-proof, with a wipe-clean enamel finish. Cabinet is built of heavy-duty steel—welded to eliminate rattles. Even the motor is cushioned to reduce noise.

Summer cooling fan
A special Summer Fan sends a cool breeze through your home. Permanent filters remove airborne dust.

During Winter, automatic controls hold room temperatures steady within two or three degrees. There's no chilly wait before the furnace cuts in.

10 years to pay, installed in a day
There's no down-payment, and installments can be as low as the figure quoted below. You are billed on your heating-oil statement, so there's just one cheque to write.

Installation usually takes less than a day. We also check ducts, pipelines, thermostats and tank to make sure the whole system works properly.

W. J. Brown, right, helps New Zealand delegate Graham Fortune.

Colombo's Soup-to-Nuts Chef

'All Problems Must Be Solved Yesterday'

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL

"When a problem comes up, it has to be solved yesterday."

This wry comment comes from Nat Burden, a former RCAF wing commander whose official title is deputy secretary-general, operations, of the Colombo Plan conference currently polishing Victoria's sector of the Pacific Rim.

Castling about for ways to fill his retirement years, Mr. Burden filled out a public service application form in Ottawa and wound up with signing powers on a $500,000 blank cheque from the treasury board.

Early Example

His job: to organize the soup-to-nuts operations of a full-scale international conference.

At the time he was hired — September, 1968 — Mr. Burden had no idea that he, and the Colombo Plan conference, would end up in the retirement-years city plus ultra, which, by the way, presented the first instance of how soon problems had to be solved.

He suddenly found out that hotels customarily insist on two years' advance notice of a conference this size. Since the final decision to come to Victoria was made only last February, Mr. Burden thought he would have to solve the accommodation problem more than a year before he knew where it was going to take place.

However, the importance of the Colombo Plan had its way, the Empress did a little "juggling," says Mr. Burden, and the way was opened for Victoria to welcome the most cosmopolitan conference of its conference career.

Meanwhile, Mr. Burden was the sole member of the conference secretariat; just him and a large organizational chart with more than 100 blank spaces.

To start with, Mr. Burden travelled to South Korea, where the 1968 conference was held. In bare terms, he had to copy the show put on by the Korean government, sometimes referring to other conferences, notably the 1967 edition in Japan.

In Korea, he noted, there were dozens of students, more than willing to offer their services free of charge as hosts and aides. Every last one of their Canadian counterparts are on full salary, from locally hired stenographers (about 50) to advisers, clerks, assistants and information officers (about 10) borrowed from federal departments in Ottawa.

Electronics

Visitors to the main conference room—legislative chamber of the parliament buildings—will notice a great bank of electronic equipment set in the northeast corner. This provides the channels for the complex simultaneous translation and speech recording necessary to the conference.

Borrowed from the armed forces, and operated by forces men, it functions well enough but doesn't match up in terms of modernity to the Japanese system used in 1967. At that conference, Japanese industry just handed over a full set of transistorized equipment, only a fraction of the bulk of the older, tube-operated set that was the only one Mr. Burden could find in Canada big enough for the job.

While most delegates to the conference speak English, there are some French-speaking visitors from Vietnam and Cambodia.

Cogs Turning

Filling the blanks in his organization chart wasn't easy. Mr. Burden had to "beg, borrow and steal" people from every level and every department in the federal civil service. These people, on leave lasting about five weeks, have so far succeeded in turning the cogs in Mr. Burden's instant administration.

Have there been any foul-ups? None of a "major" character, he says. "It's the detail that kills you." Is there enough paper in this office? Enough water-jugs in that conference room? Is there water in the jugs? Are there washrooms available?

What couldn't be predicted was the peculiarity of wishes and needs of people from Eastern cultures. Mr. Burden was able to warn the Empress — where the 150 delegates are billeted — that there would be an increase in demand for Oriental dishes, as well as purely vegetarian diets. And Victoria's Chinese restaurants have had new customers lately.

Beer Cheaper

Victoria's regular tourist amenities are ready and waiting for requests — one delegate caught a 16-pound salmon. But other requests had to be turned down. Victoria just doesn't have that kind of night life.

Those with a taste for beer have been pleased to find it doesn't cost $1.20 a bottle, as it did in Korea. And security measures aren't even noticeable.

able — quite the opposite from the conference last year, only 20 miles from the demilitarized zone dividing Korea.

Special consideration had to be given to the CBC international service, which writes, edits and sends out news stories for consumption in the 24 participating countries. The Canadian National Film Board is everywhere, pointing cameras and thrusting microphones, gathering material for Canada's cinematic culture bank.

Many Details

Quite separate from the main sessions of the conference in the Legislative chamber, there are working parties and committee sessions and a whole separate conference of information officers, who review each year the methods of distributing Colombo Plan information to those directly involved in carrying out the decisions made here.

Delegates are in demand as guest speakers at local club meetings and at schools. The secretariat has to arrange all this, and more.

The three-week conference is considered a long one of its type, and when it ends Oct. 31, the work will be far from done. About a week later, everybody will have left Victoria, and provincial civil servants will be back in their offices usurped by the conference.

Space Filled

Conference officials now occupy almost all the government offices that are normally used during the B.C. legislative session, as well as space in the just-completed archives buildings beside the provincial museum.

After that, the entire debriefing will take until February, with publication of the 20th annual report of the Colombo Plan. Then Mr. Burden will be looking for a new job.

Rugby Player Listed 'Poor'

University of Victoria rugby player Peter Cubis, 25 remains in poor condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital today following surgery for a blood clot Saturday. He collapsed after a game in Nanaimo and was rushed to hospital here.

Two Reminders Today

Did Victoria Forget Big Sports Festival?

By PAT MURPHY

When city council meets today it will receive two letters asking why something hasn't been done about Victoria's participation in British Columbia's big two-week festival of sports in the spring of 1970.

The letters will be from the provincial department of travel industry and the Victoria Visitors' Bureau.

John Buckley and R. E. Walker of the provincial department were present at a meeting of the bureau Wednesday to ask it to intercede with city council and try to get some action on the matter.

Mr. Walker said the deadline for participation in the festival was months ago, but an application would still be considered.

He added that more than 70 responses had been received from B.C. communities, and Vancouver and Victoria were the only holdouts.

What was wanted from Victoria was an indication that a viable organization would be formed, assurance that district facilities would be made available, and possible underwriting of the local aspects of the event.

Victoria's contribution would be repaid, Mr. Walker added, as all events were to be self-supporting.

At this point Ald. Percy Frampton and Ald. Thomas Christie, who were present at the meeting, said the whole thing was a complete surprise to them.

Mr. Walker said no letter had been written, but full-page newspaper advertisements had been taken in the spring to publicize the project and solicit municipal participation.

He added that two representatives of his department visited the mayor about a month ago and came away with the impression that something would be done.

If letters were written immediately, said Ald. Frampton, he would personally see they reached council today.

Mr. Buckley observed the event, which could be annual, promised great things for the tourist industry and particularly Victoria, which could use a shot in the arm in May, just before the summer season began.

Bureau directors adopted in principle a proposal that the slogan "Follow the Birds to Vancouver Island — Canada's Island in the Pacific" be pushed.

Sam Lane told directors there was a tremendous resurgence of tourist traffic in the Pacific, and Vancouver Island's location on the Pacific Rim should be hammered home.

A proposal to buy the Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure for a small amount, will be carried to city council by Ald. Frampton.

At a recent bureau executive meeting, it was proposed the carrier, which will be withdrawn from service, be bought, stationed in the area and used as a museum.

"Haven't we got enough museums already?" asked director Bob Wright.

Mr. Lane, who was in charge of the cruise ship program stop over undertaken by the bureau this year, announced negotiations were in progress to have ships call more often and for longer visits.

One positive step had already been taken and the

Italy, which interrupted its tour during the summer for Victoria stopovers totalling 223 hours, would stop for a total of 468 hours in 1970.

The directors passed a resolution of commendation and thanks for Mr. Lane's work on the action committee which handling the cruise ship stop-over program.

Directors discussed a proposal to hold a seminar during which ideas would be advanced and discussed by representatives from all branches of the tourist industry.

The hope was expressed that out of the meeting would come some sort of authoritative voice which could speak for the Greater Victoria tourist industry.

Aldermanic Runner

Army Career Background For Candidate

Alfred Hood Wednesday became the third candidate to declare he would run for an aldermanic seat on Victoria council in the December municipal election.

A retired army colonel, Mr. Hood said Wednesday he could offer the city experience in the south field and personnel management and in the application of organizational principles gained in his final two service appointments.

Because he is retired he can devote full time to civic affairs, he said.

He said he would work to ensure efficient financial management of the city budget, and would be concerned, among other things, with the hospital situation and the plight of older citizens.

Mr. Hood now is one of three members on the Greater Victoria Library Board representing the city of Victoria and a member of the housing committee of the Bishop Ordre Centre for the Family, formerly the B.C. Protestant Orphanage.

Mr. Hood was born in Victoria in 1912, and was raised here. He began his career with the provincial public works department and was working there as an auditor when his regiment was called up at the outbreak of war in 1939.

He retired in 1965 with the rank of colonel after a military career that took him to England and Europe during the Second World War and after the war to India and Pakistan with the United Nations and to Poland as military attaché with the Canadian embassy.

Before retirement he was director of manpower control and management and director of organization in Ottawa during the initial phases of integration-modification. He was administrative director of the Children's International Summer Village held in Victoria last July and August. He was active in all sports in his younger days in Victoria, and is a member of the Royal Colwood Golf Club and the Victoria Men's Canadian Club.

Beatle on Trip —Not Dead

LONDON (AP) — "I am alive and well and unconcerned about the rumors of my death," says Beatle Paul McCartney. "But if I were dead, I would be the last to know."

At least, that's what the Beatles' business organization Apple said he said. The million-dollar pop musician was on a motor tour somewhere in England with his wife, two children and a dog and refused to let it be known where he could be found.

Apple said Wednesday that McCartney telephoned the denial of his demise to London on Tuesday night.

"Paul refuses to say anything more than that," said Derek Taylor, Apple's chief spokesman. "Even if he appeared in public just to deny rumors it wouldn't do any good. If people want to believe he's dead, then they'll believe it—the truth is not at all persuasive."

Apple and news media have been flooded with telephone calls, cables and letters about rumors in North America that McCartney has been dead for years.

"They are all ridiculous," Apple said.

"It's a lot of nonsense," said fellow Beatle John Lennon. "The rumors are too stupid to bother denying," said George Harrison, another member of the famed quartet.

Beatle drummer Ringo Starr could not be reached for comment.

The rumors claim the Beatles have been dropping clues since 1966 about McCartney's supposed death.

A disc jockey for a Detroit radio station claimed to have assembled numerous clues.

A record-spinner in New York was pulled off the air for re-

counting the rumors that brought a flood of telephone calls from Beatles fans and jammed the radio station's switchboard.

Most of the clues supposedly appeared on Beatles album jackets.

The cover of the Beatles' Magical Mystery Tour album is supposed to disclose a phone number in London, which, when dialed, answers: "Paul McCartney is dead." The number is 231-7436. No such number exists on the London telephone exchange.

Another supposed hint was the license number of a car in the picture on the cover of Abbey Road.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (Reuters) — Nathan Sloane, a biochemist at the University of Tennessee here, has discovered a new protein which may help control the population explosion. It was announced Wednesday.

"The new protein is unique in that it accelerates the growth of both normal and malignant cells," Sloane said in a statement released by the university.

"If we immunize the mother... against the protein, we have a chance of causing sterility in the female. If we give antibodies against this protein, we might be able to cause termination of conception in an uncomplicated, safe way."

Sloane said the protein, which he called embryonin, is in the embryo.

"The idea is to inject an antibody against the protein and stop the growth of the embryo." "Since the protein is in the embryo and not the mother, it won't hurt the mother."

Study Indicates New Planet Scientists Claim

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI)—A Cornell University scientist reported Tuesday his research team may have discovered a new planet, about the size of the Earth, orbiting around a pulsar about 6,000 light years from our solar system.

The discovery is a result of observations by a team of astronomers at Arecibo Ionospheric Observatory in Puerto Rico headed by Dr. Thomas Gold, chairman of Cornell's radiophysics and space sciences department.

The existence of the planet, according to Gold, is indicated by a wobble in the pulsation rate from NP0532, a pulsar or neutron star in the Crab Nebula.

The planet is about the same size as Earth and is approximately the same distance from the neutron star as Mercury is from the Sun, Gold reported.

"There is no other case of any astronomical observation of planets as small as the Earth in the vicinity of other stars," Gold said. He added it is far easier to detect a planet orbiting a pulsar than to find a body orbiting a star similar to the Sun.

Conditions on the NP0532 planet, if it exists, would be greatly different from the Earth according to Gold. "The total power output from the pulsar is very much greater than that from the sun," Gold said. "And any planet at such a distance would be exceedingly hot."

SLIGHT VARIATION

The Arecibo team discovered, Gold said, that NP0532 emits a "slight but remarkable variation in its pulsing rate."

"This variation, over three months, amounts to 6-10,000ths of a second. This may be interpreted as a wobble in the position of the pulsar," according to Gold. Wobbles have not been observed in other pulsars, he said.

The wobble involves a distance of about 200 kilometers, Gold said, and "such a wobble could be due to the presence of a planet."

"It is by no means clear yet whether an explanation in terms of a planet around the pulsar is the only possible one," Gold explained, "but the possibility exists."

Federal Post Far Cry From Apron

As a promising young man in the federal civil service, Terry Leung has changed somewhat from the white apron days in his family's grocery at Fort and Blanshard.

His typical rig nowadays is a double-breasted, dark-colored suit, color-coordinated with white tie and green shirt. But this is only window dressing — a trim, like small outfit leading up to an Extra-Large brain. When he left Victoria High back in 1960, Mr. Leung walked off with the Governor-General's Silver Medal for the highest marks in B.C. Since then, he has won so many scholarships that he often had trouble choosing which ones to accept.

STILL ON WAY

It's not surprising, then, that he considers himself on the way to, rather than arrived at, the pinnacle of his career.

On loan from the federal department of finance, Mr. Leung is visiting his home town these days as special assistant to Colombo Plan Secretary-General John G. Hawdon.

His duties at this conference are not easily defined, he says, and not really aligned with his work in the finance department's international economic relations branch in Ottawa. The closest approximation would be the work of those legendary executive assistants who burn themselves out after a couple of years of devotion to a cabinet minister.

KEPT BUSY

He's not likely to burn himself out on the five-week stint as special assistant, but he's nevertheless busy and found time only at supper hour for an interview.

A description of his regular job is difficult. He points out that Ottawa's civil service is huge, outwardly obtuse, inwardly acute and easy to misinterpret. His work involves the "trade" side of international economic relations — receiving, giving, sifting, appraising, criticizing, approving bits of policy at a level, Mr. Leung adds, that is in no way final.

"No, no, no" — this is not a case of home-town boy makes good, he insists, because at the age of 27, there is hopefully much more to come. He only ventured into the finance department three years ago with the idea of putting some of his abundant theoretical knowledge to a practical advantage.

VARIED STUDIES

This untired resource, by the way, included science at Victoria College, a bachelor's degree in honors mathematics at UBC, a master's in math at the University of Toronto, and a catchall year back at UBC in 1966 where he concentrated on political science and Asian studies — the whole sprinkled liberally with first-class honors.

And besides, it was hard to turn down those scholarships that kept rolling in. At high school, Mr. Leung played good chess, bowled, was in the French Club, and active in the mock-United Nations. Now living in Ottawa's west end, he skis in the Gatineau Hills while not serving the public.

FAMILY STORE

His father, Chew Chung Leung, came to B.C. from China back in 1906, and from 1929 until recent years was head chef at Government House. Now he and Mrs. Leung, a native Canadian, continue running their grocery store. They live at 1346 Harrison.

Brother Ken is a computer technician with Datatech here. The elder Leungs are understandably proud of the family.

Other Ways

Diabetics Not Troubled

WINNIPEG (CP) — Frank Pearson of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Diabetic Association, said Wednesday diabetics are not troubled by the government's ban of the artificial sweetener, cyclamate.

He said the association always has stressed moderation in the use of the sugar substitute.

Products containing cyclamate and used widely by diabetics, are to be off the shelves by Sept. 1, 1973. Pearson said this gives diabetics sufficient time to adjust to new diets.

OTHERS THERE

The CDA president said he was not disappointed by the government's action because there are other sugar substitutes available for diabetics. Several companies, he said, already have announced the availability of substitutes.

Pearson said the most widely used artificial sweetener among diabetics is calcium cyclamate which is used mainly by persons with heart ailments.

The federal government followed up recent bans in the United States by ordering a phased withdrawal of cyclamate-containing products from the market.

Bolivia Plans Compensation

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — The government will compensate the U.S.-owned Bolivian Gulf Oil Co. for properties nationalized by the government, Mines Minister Marcelo Quiroga, Santa Cruz said.

Quiroga said indemnification would be determined under terms of the Bolivian constitution. However, he said the company would not be paid for its reserves of gas and petroleum "as they belong to the people of Bolivia."

Cholera Costly

JAKARTA (Reuters) — About 600 persons have died of cholera in the Indonesian province of Djambi in south Sumatra during the last month, a health ministry spokesman said.

School Superintendent:Drugs Problem Smaller Here

Some high school students have been found in possession of drugs but Greater Victoria's problem doesn't appear to be on the scale of Vancouver's, A. J. Longmore, the district school superintendent, said Wednesday.

Mr. Longmore spoke following disclosure that scores of teenagers in Greater Vancouver had been suspended or transferred in the past year for possessing illicit drugs.

It was reported that students in Greater Vancouver were being moved to get them away from the atmosphere that started them using drugs; that police dogs were being used to sniff out marijuana caches on school grounds; and that one school board had a youth officer working full-time on student drug cases.

LAST FRIDAY
Last Friday it was announced that five students were dismissed from Handsworth high school in North Vancouver for having drugs on school property.

Mr. Longmore said Greater Victoria's drug cases totalled "nothing near scores of students."

"We haven't had police dogs sniffing on school grounds, and we haven't detected any pedlars on school grounds," he added.

"If we discover a student with drugs, we notify the RCMP right away. However, most cases have been handled within the home."

The superintendent said special counsellors, medical and psychological staffers conferred on any student drug case.

"If it's in the best interest of the student to stay in school, he does," said Mr. Longmore.

TIME MARKED

He added that educators here had been "marking time," awaiting an overdue report on drugs in B.C. schools from the Narcotic Addiction Foundation of B.C. Greater Victoria high school students were surveyed last spring in a lengthy questionnaire as part of the study.

The report is expected in a few weeks.

Bert Hoskin, director of the foundation, said in Vancouver that student drug abuse had doubled in the past 18 months and now involved 20 per cent of the school population.

He said his estimate was based on the survey, and the situation had deteriorated recently.

Charge StayedWitness Status
Halts Inquest

A coroner's inquest into the shooting death Oct. 4 of Norma Maureen Desjardins, 41, of 323 Island Highway was adjourned Wednesday until Oct. 30 to allow counsel representing Arthur David Shepherd to consider what action he plans to take.

Mrs. Desjardins was also known as a Norma Maureen Shepherd, the Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre told the jury. Lengthy legal argument arose between Crown counsel Cecil Branson and Mr. Shepherd's counsel, Dr. J. J. Gow, as to whether Mr. Shepherd should have to give evidence.

Dr. Gow argued that as the Crown had called for a stay of proceedings against Mr. Shepherd, who was originally charged with non-capital murder in connection with the shooting, that he was not a compellable witness. He said the stay left the charge hanging over Mr. Shepherd's head.

Mr. Branson said the Crown took the view that Mr. Shepherd was both a competent and compellable witness and should be called to give evidence.

Pointing to the several comparable cases cited by both counsel, the coroner said this case presented a new problem. He held that Mr. Shepherd's giving evidence did not constitute a jeopardy and ruled that for the purpose of the inquest only, he was a compellable witness.

The inquest will resume at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 30 in the Victoria Law Courts.

Self-Dousing Lights Fool Some Mariners

New and brighter navigation beacons that turn themselves off in the daytime to save power have fooled some mariners into reporting them out of order, a transport department official said Wednesday.

District Manager L. E. Slight said the older lights burned day and night, and anyone seeing one not working anytime knew it was on the fritz.

The new ones use more power, and have sun switches to conserve it.

Mr. Slight has asked mariners to include the time of day when non-working lights are seen, so the department can determine whether they are really out of order.

Baby Bars Jail Stay

A 33-year-old mother of four was told Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court that she would have been held in jail pending the preparation of her probation report if it weren't for her one-month-old baby.

"She deserves to stay in jail, but I think one must view the interest of a baby as transcending the interest of the public," Judge William Oatler said.

Larue Bongard of Lake Cowichan had pleaded guilty to seven charges of false pretences.

Court was told Mrs. Bongard had obtained cash and goods valued at approximately $280 by issuing worthless cheques to Victoria food and department stores.

The offences had taken place over a period of three months, court was told.

She was remanded for sentence until Nov. 4.

William R. Giles, 19, of 670 Strandlund, was fined $25 for possession of liquor at Esquimalt Lagoon. Giles had pleaded guilty to the charge.

Timothy B. Hodgstra, 20, of 580 Ladbroke Road, was fined $20 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing liquor.

"Yes, I have something to say, your honor," said William M. Cosgrave, 20, of no fixed address.

"I have spent two weeks in jail, waiting for my probation report, and I have found out that it's definitely not the place for me."

Cosgrave had pleaded guilty to a charge of theft under $50. Court was told at an earlier hearing that he had stolen a transistor radio from a parked car on Yates.

Two citizens observed the accused and managed to hold him until the police arrived.

I think my short stay in jail has changed my entire outlook on life," said Cosgrave.

He was fined $50 by Judge

Toronto Murder Arrests

Police Hunted Right to Brazil

TORONTO (CP) — Painstaking, step-by-step investigation, through more than 500 lines of inquiry that stretched as far as Brazil, led police Wednesday to what they said was the solution to the slaying of a Toronto policeman.

Charged with capital murder was Vincenzo Fazzari, 22-year-old laborer who came to Toronto three years ago from the Reggio district of Italy. In court, he was remanded to Oct. 30 for preliminary hearing.

Held as material witnesses and remanded in custody until Oct. 28 were Dee James, 25, of Toronto, and Joseph Maye, 34, of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Constable David Goldsworthy, 25, was shot three times and severely beaten the night of Oct. 5, while he was on solitary patrol in a lonely industrial area of northern Metropolitan Toronto. He was believed to have been investigating a factory burglary.

His body was found early Oct. 6 in a field, not far from where his patrol car had been left with its lights on and engine running.

The constable's revolver was missing but beside the body was a notebook. In it, apparently freshly written, were the names Betty and Jeffrey, his wife and two-year-old son, "thank you," a man's name and "black goatee."

Police said the break in the case came 10 days ago when the owner of a restaurant five miles from the scene of the slaying checked a faulty toilet. In the tank he found a revolver, a Brazilian-made copy of a Smith and Wesson. Part of the mechanism was missing and a part had to be ordered from Detroit before the weapon could be fired for ballistic tests.

Through the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the revolver was traced from a factory in Brazil to Miami, then into Alabama and several east-coast states to a town in northern New York.

Early Wednesday, 20 detectives surrounded a house in a Toronto suburb. Fazzari was arrested in a bedroom without resistance.

James, who worked with Fazzari at a west end cement plant, was arrested on his way home from work Tuesday. Maye was taken into custody later at his Niagara Falls home.

Sentence Next Monday

Ralph Dale Gardner, 25, of 1335 Miles, who was to have been sentenced Wednesday in Supreme Court for dangerous driving, will be sentenced Monday.

Gardner was convicted Monday by a 12-man jury which had reduced the charge to dangerous driving from criminal negligence causing the death Aug. 13 of Brian Modesto of 1977 Modesto.

Vanished Complainant Ordered to Pay Costs

A woman who first laid a charge of common assault against a Victoria man and then didn't show up for the trial in Victoria Provincial Court was ordered Wednesday to pay $35 or face a jail term of two weeks.

The order was made after a charge of common assault against Wesley Anderson of Suite 1, 41 Toronto Street, had been dismissed because the complainant didn't appear in court.

Rosina Green of Suite 2, 41 Toronto, swore the information against Mr. Anderson about a month ago. Mr. Anderson pleaded not guilty at the time and was remanded for trial until Wednesday.

"The Crown's witness has not appeared, your honor, and I have no evidence," Prosecutor Cory Stoltz said.

He told court the informant had moved away from her former address, and no summons could be issued.

"If you can show me how I can make this woman pay, I'll gladly do it," Judge William Oatler said, turning to Dermot Owen-Flood, defence counsel for Mr. Anderson.

Mr. Owen-Flood was able to supply the necessary information, and the order for payment of costs to Mr. Anderson was made.

"This practice must be stopped," Judge Oatler said.

"These people lay an information, and then they haven't even enough interest in the case to show up in court or advise the

He said it was unfortunate that Mr. Anderson had to go through all the trouble of hiring a lawyer and calling his witnesses.

Bank Robbed Inside Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Five hooded bandits carrying revolvers and walkie-talkies hit a downtown bank from the inside Wednesday and escaped with about $100,000.

Police and security guards said they are still trying to find out how the bandits got into the Provincial Bank of Canada branch before it opened for business. They may have been hiding in the basement.

Two Driving Charges

Fines Total $1,250 for Sailor

A 19-year-old sailor was fined $1,250 Wednesday after a jury of one woman and 11 men found him guilty in Supreme Court of dangerous driving and driving while impaired.

Warren Green of CFB Esquimalt stood at attention in the prisoner's dock as Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton pronounced sentence.

"In time of war, you are the men who give us protection at home," Mrs. Justice Wootton said. "You are a young man of previous good character with every opportunity of being useful to your country, and with that in mind, I shall not send you to jail."

He imposed fines totalling $1,250 — $750 for dangerous driving and $500 for impaired driving. He also prohibited Green from driving anywhere in Canada for three years.

Court was told the fines would be deducted from Green's pay at the rate of $100 a month.

Mr. Justice Wootton said Green would be liable to six months' imprisonment if he failed to pay the fines.

"I hope you become a good sailor and never get into this kind of trouble again," he said.

Green was originally charged with criminal negligence causing the death of Verda Lynne Fawns, 19, of 441 Thetis Crescent. She was killed in a two-car collision on the Old Island Highway shortly after midnight on March 3.

The jury found Green not guilty of criminal negligence but guilty of dangerous driving and impaired driving.

Queen Asked to Reconsider

Royal Words Wanted

LONDON (CP) — Labor MP Anne Kerr is to ask the Queen to reconsider scrapping her TV Christmas message to Britain and the Commonwealth.

Mrs. Kerr, who represents the navy dockyard riding of Rochester and Chatham in Kent, said the annual broadcast means a great deal to families, "particularly to our elderly, handicapped and sick people."

She added: "I hate to see our bonds with the Commonwealth further eroded."

The Daily Telegraph noted that Commonwealth reaction to the Queen's decision was "overwhelmingly a feeling of disappointment."

TV columnist Marsland Gander said a petition is being organized in Britain to ask the Queen to change her mind.

Heading the appeal is Mary Whitehouse, self-appointed watchdog over British TV in matters of sex and violence.

Mrs. Whitehouse, whose Viewers' and Listeners' Association claims a country-wide membership of 1,250,000, said Christmas would not be the same without the broadcast.

The mass circulation Daily Mirror Wednesday front-paged a jocular suggestion by Prince Philip in Canada that one way out of the difficulties of putting the Queen's message across might be to "dress it up and call it The Queen Show."

In what the newspaper described as an exclusive interview, Philip explained that with the film Royal Family being rerun on Christmas Day, plus televising of the Queen attending church, "we thought that may be people would be seeing too much of her on Christmas day."

Philip made it clear that the decision did not mean there would never again be a Christmas TV message.

"We thought we would see how it goes this year and then scratch our heads about what we will do in future years."

He added that another factor in the decision was the difficulty of TV for this kind of message.

It was easier when it was a radio broadcast, he suggested.

"Somehow it's not just the same to have the Queen looking into a television camera. It's hard to know how we can get over this."

Our Shoe, the Star

If all you want in a shoe is everything, then you'd better get Ferragamo. It doesn't try to be glamorous. But its suede construction is so soft, you feel like you're tramping around Europe or wherever in your stocking feet. And if that weren't enough, the crepe rubber sole literally ripples away tired feet when you're out all day stalking bargains. So let those other shoes go to cocktail parties and balls. Our little Ferragamo walking shoe will be content just getting all those compliments, fans, friends. Munday's exclusively in Canada, in Sahara brown or moss green suede, 29.95. Telephone or mail orders promptly filled.

Single Parents Cope with Life

By HELEN MORRIS

There are 350,000 single-parent families in Canada, says Cecil Drummond, president of the Victoria chapter of Parents Without Partners, and father of three girls.

And in Victoria, Mr. Drummond says, "Divorce courts are booked until Christmas, so that gives you some idea of the situation here."

Parents Without Partners, an organization for "anyone who's raising their children by themselves," whether widowed, separated, divorced or unwed, tries to solve, or at least ease, some of the problems of single parenthood.

The problems are both physical and emotional, and vary from family to family.

Tangible problems are the easiest to solve.

Mr. Drummond says, "My problems are things like mending. The girls select their own clothes, but I try to keep them in simple, unfussy, wash-and-wear things."

members friends with whom they do have something in common.

And what they have in common is children.

The organization centres around weekly excursions for the children. Each Sunday members and their children spend a day swimming, or hiking or visiting the museum — any activity which gives parents and children a chance to enjoy themselves together.

And if a parent has a problem concerning one of his children, "there's probably someone who's handled the situation before, and they can help."

Facts for Girls

"How would I go about explaining the facts of life to the girls? It seems the obvious thing that I'd call on a female member of PWP. Otherwise, it'd be embarrassing for the girls, and darn embarrassing for me."

And although Mr. Drummond stressed that PWP "is not a dating organization," it can help ease a parent out of, or maybe into, the problem of that first date.

Mr. Drummond says that PWP "stresses honesty. Don't make a big thing out of going out on a date. Most kids will understand that a parent is going to go out."

And having PWP members of the opposite sex around at those weekly excursions, and over for the occasional dinner, helps.

Mr. Drummond said that "some people join and expect the organization to be a cure-all, and it isn't."

Serious Problem

"I've had people come in here and do mending for me... One of our members that lives in this area drops by quite often and takes my kids swimming when I can't."

The most serious problem of single parenthood is intangible.

"You feel isolated to begin with. You just stay home. You simply don't have much in common with old friends."

So PWP compensates by giving its

Philippine Party Planned

Indonesian Envoy Visits Nicholsons

Rear Admiral R. Darmo-Bandoro, Ambassador for Indonesia, will pay an official call on Lieutenant Governor John Nicholson this morning at Government House.

Later in the day the Nicholsons will cross to Vancouver where they will attend the annual banquet of the Vancouver Consular Corps.

The lieutenant governor will attend the United Nations Day ceremonies in Centennial Square, Court House, Vancouver on Friday. Wing Cmdr. T. J. MacKinnon will be the aide-de-camp.

That evening the Nicholsons will attend the annual Trafalgar Ball of the Naval Officers Association of British Columbia and receive the debutantes. Cmdr. A. A. Henley will be the aide-de-camp.

Miss M. Bolanos, Miss M.

DOROTHY WROTNOWSKI

Velasco and Miss Z. Regalado are in charge of arrangements for the party the Philippine group of Victoria is giving at the Red Lion on Sunday evening for the delegates from the Philippines to the Colombo Plan conference.

Honored guests will be Secretary C. Virata and Ambassador G. Binar, head and co-chairman of the ministerial delegation, respectively, Ambassador P. S. Castrence, Mr. E. Leung, Mr. B. Villavicencio, Vice-consul E. Recalado and Miss Z. Pacumio.

Hadassah members were just a little worried that the change of site, from Holyrood House to the Fellowship Hall,

Mr. Maurice Greene, Mr. A. Libby, Mr. L. Shaffer, Mr. M. Shafroon, Mr. H. Israel, Mr. C. Boas and Mr. M. might not bring them a full house for their bazaar on Wednesday.

They needn't have because it was bigger and better than ever. Even before the opening time of 11 o'clock the crowd was arriving in droves.

The snack bar staff had a time keeping up with the orders. People were packed solidly in front and two lines stretched out across the hall. The workers here said they didn't even know what time it was until about 1 o'clock.

When she saw me coming in Aileen Barer, who was handling publicity, said to Mrs. A. Klenman, one of the conveners "Quick, what will I tell her? I've been so busy, I haven't seen anything yet."

"Just tell her," she replied seriously, "that I will be leaving for Israel the day before the bazaar next year."

It only took an hour to make the great home bake table a has-been. I lost out on my usual purchase of corned beef but settled for some Kosher beef sausage, made in Winnipeg.

My phone just rang and it was Aileen Barer again, very excited. "Guess we were right about the bazaar being bigger and better this year, we've cleared well over $3,000." (Also to tell me that I had left my notebook on the table.)

I'll defy anyone to think about facts or figures while eating those delicious blintzes served with strawberries and sour cream.

Dora Albhouse was standing behind the empty lucky dip table when I arrived. Another sellout. Dora is a member of Hadassah but her sister Jennie isn't, although she works as hard as anyone at the bazaar. And as a ticket seller, Jennie can't be beaten.

The French room was also big business. No wonder, some of the suites and dresses were really good.

Mrs. Maurice Greene, president, acted as hostess for the affair of which Mrs. Bert Caine was co-convenor with Mrs. Klenman.

Other conveners were Mrs. M. Menkes, Mrs. A. Libby, Mrs. J. Barnett, Mrs. H. Israel, Mrs. G. Conn, Mrs. L. Shaffer, Mrs. R. Krasney, Mrs. J. Krasney, Mrs. E. Kramer, and Mrs. M. Shafroon.

Levitt looked after the door and the money.

The Beta Sigma Phi Sorority annual fall reception will be held this evening at the Victoria Golf Club. There will be the traditional candlelight service and Mrs. J. R. Kingham will conduct the ritual of jewels when pledge recipients will be the Misses Marion-Anne Dishaw and Jill McNaught.

Miss Lynn Robson will officiate for the Nu Phi Mu pledge ritual when pins will be received by the Misses Heather McFarlane, Linda McNeill, Linda Williams, Kathie Askew, Patricia King.

On the special guest list will be Mrs. T. H. Johns, Miss Elizabeth Forbes, and Miss Charlotte Hurford of Courtenay. Charlotte has been awarded the Beta Sigma Phi annual scholarship for the University of Victoria.

Miss Jessie Wardhaugh and Mrs. F. C. Breen will preside at the tea table after the ceremonies.

Tax Paper 'Interesting'

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposed plan of federal tax reform will be made public Friday, Nov. 7, and the government is making extensive plans for publicity.

A statement Wednesday by Finance Minister Edgar Benson said members of the Commons and Senate and representatives of provincial governments, as well as press, radio and TV, will be given briefings on the tax-reform proposals.

WHITE PAPER
Copies of the government's white paper will be tabled in the Commons and made available that evening and during the following week through 29 district tax offices across Canada.

Benson said a committee study of the report in parliament is expected to start soon after the white paper is published.

MAJOR GROUPS
First witnesses to be called are expected to be government officials who helped prepare the report. Later, a joint committee of the Commons and Senate will hear representatives of major national organizations.

The government will prepare legislation amending the present Income Tax Act on the basis of its proposals and the public and parliamentary discussion of them.

SEVERAL FACETS
The proposals are expected to affect both personal income and corporation profits taxes, and it is considered likely they will include some measure of tax on capital gains.

The white paper, now being printed, results from months of study by the government after preliminary consideration of a royal commission's recommendations two years ago for sweeping tax reform.

CARTER PLAN
The commission, headed by the late Kenneth Carter, Toronto accountant and tax consultant, was appointed by the former Conservative government and proposed a plan of integrating personal and corporate income taxes.

Asked about the white paper outside the commons, Benson said:

"I should say that it's a thorough revision of the taxation system in Canada.

"And it's one that is long overdue and the government has been working on it very hard for a long period of time and we hope it will be generally acceptable to the Canadian public."

He was asked whether it would bring in new taxation concepts.

"It'll be interesting," he replied.

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative MP George Hees said Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday to say "how in hell" he intends to trim public service manpower by 25,000 persons.

Replying to a Commons question from Hees, (Prime Minister said normal attrition would account for most of the reduction. Other positions would not be filled when they became vacant. And there would be dismissals.

Hees then asked whether it is fair to say there would be no firings from the government service.

When Trudeau replied "no" to that question, Hees asked him to say plainly "how in hell" he intended to pare down the service.

He was ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Last Aug. 13, Trudeau announced a firm clamp on government spending, saying he wanted to avoid tax increases.

He said 25,000 jobs would be cut from the public service, a 10-per-cent slice in the 1968 strength of 236,736.

John D on Trudeau:

Blows at Separatists Boost for Liberals

MONTREAL (CP)—Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Tuesday Prime Minister Trudeau's angry attack on Quebec separatists is an ill-concealed attempt to boost Quebec Liberals in a future provincial election.

Speaking to reporters at Montreal International Airport on his return after a one-week trip to the Soviet Union to boost Canadian wheat sales, Diefenbaker said Trudeau's attack was merely an attempt to disguise his government's failure to solve Canada's serious economic situation.

Trudeau said Monday his attack on separatists, particularly those in the Company of Young Canadians and the CBC, was designed to stimulate action and dialogue among Quebecers and government departments.

Diefenbaker said he saw no need to "cut the budget for the French-language network of the CBC to weed out separatists" as the prime minister had suggested.

"It's not necessary to burn down the whole house just to kill the lice."

He said State Secretary Gerard Pelletier, the federal minister responsible for the CBC, is in a good position to know the real situation.

"After all, Mr. Pelletier's wife is an employee there. Of course, that's just a coincidence. But it certainly must provide him with a fine source of information."

The former Opposition leader criticized Trudeau for maintaining a "stentorian silence" and Pelletier for his "unctuous unconcern" when the Conservatives asked for a parliamentary investigation into the CYC before setting up a royal commission inquiry.

"Like Horatius, Mr. Pelletier stood on the bridge with the slogan 'you shall not pass'."

It is not enough for Trudeau "to sally forth like a Sir Galahad to slay the dragon of separatism, while calling on everyone to help."

Such a "vicious attack" was made with an eye on a future provincial election.

On the question of future wheat sales to the Soviet Union, Diefenbaker said serious damage had been done through Canada's "cavalier attitude" but this is not irreparable.

Talks with government officials convinced him that charges of the Soviet Union on defaulting on their last wheat purchase agreement are without foundation.

First Session Produces 'Innovation and Reform'

OTTAWA (CP) — The first session of the 28th Parliament prorogued quietly Wednesday but MPs are to be back today for the start of the second session.

There was a dearth of the name-calling, bitterness and delays that marked the first session at its summer adjournment in late July.

Replies were made to 158 written questions on the order paper, leaving unanswered only seven of the 2,723 questions posed during the session that began Sept. 12, 1968.

The session came to a ceremonial close in the Senate with a prorogation speech from the Throne — written by the government — read by Chief Justice J. R. Cartwright.

Reviewing the legislative record and government action, the speech said the session was distinguished by innovation and reform.

VATICAN LINK

NATO forces had been realigned, diplomatic relations established with the Vatican, diplomatic talks started with Communist China, an Official Languages Act passed and action taken to head off inflation. The list was long and covered subjects ranging from the strength of the dollar to commercial fish subsidies.

In the Commons earlier, the NDP forced a vote, defeated 118 to 68, when the government refused to table 1,184 consultants' reports in reply to a series of 25 motions by John Skoberg (NDP—Moore Jaw).

The vote was on the first motion and Skoberg withdrew the others.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 154, Conservative 72, NDP 22, Creditiste 14, Independent 1, vacant 1.

Health Minister John Munro said Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield the idea of putting an escalator clause in federal pensions to keep them abreast of the cost of living is being considered in a general review of welfare legislation.

Regulations by Ottawa 'Should Be Publicized'

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal regulations, departmental directives and guides should be subject to public scrutiny through a Commons committee on statutory instruments recommended Wednesday.

Its report was tabled in the Commons by committee chairman Mark McGaughey (L—Windsor-Walkerville), who said later the committee had been able to find no reason, "except the force of tradition," why there should not be publicity in the making of regulations.

LITTLE TO HIDE

"Canadian governments appear to have remarkably little to hide and therefore nothing to lose from openness except their psychological investment in excluding practices," McGaughey said in a news release.

"Federal regulations cover everything from commercial fishing seasons to the use of drugs such as marijuana. Because regulations have the force of law, the processes by which they are made should be as open as the legislative process," McGaughey said.

"The existence of secrecy is likely to lead to popular suspicion of wrongdoing."

Publicizing regulations would also be valuable in that error and stupidity could be exposed. The committee recommended that:

• A new Commons standing committee be formed to scrutinize all regulations, ensure they are fully justified and refer regulations to specialty committees.

• The Regulations Act be expanded to include many kinds of "statutory instruments" not now covered, "especially the category of exempt regulations and departmental directives and guidelines which determine how civil servants will exercise statutory discretion affecting the public."

• The justice minister be given responsibility for deciding for all regulation-making authorities what documents are to be classified as regulations.

• Enabling acts be brought into line with a number of principle which would, among other things, prevent making of regulations with a retroactive effect or make them subject to judicial review.

• The government be unable to impose taxes by regulation.

Canada Primes Nuclear Needle

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday Canada will sponsor an initiative at the United Nations to get more reliable information on underground nuclear explosions.

He said in the Commons that the Canadian initiative will involve asking member countries to provide a list of their seismicographic activities, along with information on whether the disruptions were caused by nuclear explosions.

He told Barry Mather (NDP—Surrey) that Canada has been "very active" in discussions toward a comprehensive test ban treaty. The main problem had been to identify violations.

Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer) asked whether Canada is discussing the question of a nuclear test ban with China during current negotiations to establish diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Sharp:

Red-Link Reaction Assorted

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday he and the prime minister's office have received 183 letters from Canadian associations and private citizens opposing Canada's intention to recognize Communist China.

Sharp said the embassy of the Republic of China has sent two protest notes and a United States state department spokesman has expressed concern.

"A small number of other governments have indicated confidentially they have certain reservations about the decision," he said.

Sharp added that a number of Canadians have expressed approval of the move and "several governments have similarly indicated they welcome the Canadian initiative."

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Wednesday he has faith in the CBC administration to clear up separatist-oriented programs in Radio-Canada.

If the brass failed to clear up the situation, the government would have to think of other measures, the prime minister said in reply to questions from Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lithuania).

Fortin had asked the prime minister to say what concrete steps he was taking in connection with separatist leanings within Radio-Canada, the CBC French network, if his allegations were based on fact.

Trudeau said allegations against the CBC's French network made by Creditiste Leader Real Ouellette and other MPs were more serious than the ones he had made.

It's a matter of choice

The Director of Education at Johnson & Johnson explains how to choose the MODESS napkin that's right for you. Choose from three different shapes: tapered, deep-tapered, and regular.

The three different Modess napkins are tapered, deep-tapered, and regular-shaped. Now every woman can choose the one she's sure will fit her needs best.

Every Modess napkin gives the smooth, neat fit that's essential in pant suits like this by Miss Sun Valley.

SANITARY protection has changed a lot in the past few years. Now there are many more napkins to choose from: different shapes, different sizes.

You don't hurry into your favourite dress shop and buy the first dress you see. Well, neither do you buy the first box of napkins you see. If you do, you stand a good chance of getting a napkin that won't fit you at all.

Take the time to find the best fit. Napkins that fit? Definitely! Now that napkins come in different shapes and sizes, you can find one that fits you. What's more you should.

A napkin that fits can't slip. And if it can't slip, it won't chafe or show.

A napkin that fits is protection against accidents. It won't curl along the edges so that your lingerie is spotted.

It's a shape that really counts. Fit is determined by the shape of the napkin. That's why Modess napkins come in three different shapes: two tapered and one regular.

A tapered napkin is shaped: wide in front and narrow in back. It's designed to follow your body contours, and so fit snugly.

A regular-shaped napkin is rectangular, but slightly moulded at both ends. This is the original napkin, and many women find it provides the best fit.

Descriptions of the three different Modess napkins are coming. But first let's look at three factors common to every Modess napkin. Each is a major reason why Modess napkins can promise security.

Moisture-proof protection

Every Modess napkin has a thin, flat film of moisture-proof polyethylene extending the full length and width of the napkin. In the tapered napkins this film, or shield, lies flat between layers of absorbent fluff filling. In the regular-shaped napkin it's actually bonded to the outside.

This polyethylene shield is absolutely moisture-proof. The menstrual flow can never spot through a Modess napkin.

Fast absorbency means maximum comfort

Every Modess napkin is wrapped in a soft, perforated cover. These perforations actually speed up absorbency. The menstrual flow is drawn through them into the centre of the napkin where it is dispersed. And the napkin cover stays relatively dry. It retains the soft comfort it had when you first put it on.

Concern with hygiene

A third feature common to every Modess napkin is hygiene. Modess napkins are made by Johnson & Johnson. For years we have manufactured hospital and baby products, so that hygienic conditions are the rule throughout our plants. It's nice to know that such care is taken in the production of something as personal as your sanitary napkin.

Now, back to the choice of a napkin shape for you. Remember, that while shape is what determines fit, there are also other napkin differences which you should consider before making your final choice.

MODESS CAREFREE Sanitary Napkins

The Carefree napkin was designed especially for younger women. This doesn't mean you can't wear it if you're over thirty, but means it's tapered to fit a youthful figure and to absorb a regular flow. The Modess moisture-proof polyethylene shield extends full-length and full-width through the centre of each Carefree napkin.

MODESS SOFT-FORM Sanitary Napkins

The Soft-Form napkin is deep-tapered. Extra depth makes it super absorbent. If your flow is exceptionally heavy, and a tapered napkin fits you best, this is the napkin for you. The moisture-proof polyethylene shield is built into the centre of this napkin, too.

In each box of Soft-Form napkins you get a free supply of blue, opaque, plastic sanitary envelopes. These are ideal for carrying fresh napkins and disposing of used ones.

MODESS Regular Sanitary Napkins

The Regular napkin follows the standard rectangular shape, and is designed for a regular flow. This is the Modess napkin with the unique protective shield, called the "boat" shield.

It extends across the bottom and part way up the sides (see dark line on cross-section at left). If you have a problem with spotting, consider this napkin seriously. It gives the extra protection no other napkin can.

Maybe now you know enough about

Modess napkins to choose the best one for you. If not, try them all. Start with the one that you think will suit you best, just the way you do when you try on a dress.

Once you've found the best fit, you'll find that your napkin will be a whole lot easier to forget. And when you think about it, that's what a napkin should be: reliable enough to forget.

Car Questions Thick As Dust

CHICAGO (UPI) — A 1922 Essex automobile has been found by firemen in the basement of a South Side home. There is no opening in the basement large enough for the car to get in.

James McTigue, a recluse in his late 70s, died in the home last week. He left no information regarding the car, and no relatives or friends have come to claim his body at the morgue.

The car, discovered by firemen after a blaze at the house Sunday, was covered with dust but otherwise undisturbed. It still bears 1925 Arizona licence plates.

How long the car was there, why it was there, how it got there — it was resting as if the basement of the old house had been built around it — remains a mystery.

Trudeau at Bar

Bennett Feels Equal To Second 28 Years

Quebec Bill Aimed At English?

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government's new language legislation is titled "an Act to promote the teaching of the French language in Quebec."

The title of the bill, which appeared Wednesday on the order paper of the national assembly of Quebec, strengthens speculation the legislation will place emphasis on teaching of French in English-language schools.

The bill is to be tabled in the assembly today by Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal.

One of the documents studied by the cabinet was called "The progressive introduction of the French language in English-language schools."

Premier Bennett says that, the way he feels now, he is looking forward to keeping his seat in the legislature for another 28 years.

He was commenting on the fact that Tuesday marked the 28th anniversary of his election as an MLA. He has represented South Okanagan in the provincial House since 1941, with a brief interruption in the early post-war years when he ran unsuccessfully in a federal election. He turned 69 on Sept. 6.

The premier phoned the press gallery Wednesday to announce that the government would lend "a new look of youth and energy" to the session which opens Jan. 22 by having two of its younger MLAs move and second the Speech from the Throne.

The speeches by Robert Wenzman (SC-Delta) and newcomer Burton Campbell (SC-Revelstoke-Slocan) will be heard Jan. 23.

Boycott Queen Enjoys Task

By DON COLLINS

When Pamela Smith arrives on the scene these days, she looks to be pretty much what she is—23 years of age, daughter of an upper-class New York couple, graduate student in anthropology.

Pretty deceptive credentials for someone who is also a mainspring in the boycott that is being staged in B.C. on behalf of the striking California and Arizona grape pickers.

However, her qualification for the job of full-time boycott organizer in B.C. for the United Farm Workers, shows up in her attitude.

"UNTIL WE WIN" "I'm going to stay with this until we win," she said in Victoria Wednesday.

"I really enjoy what I am doing because I consider the farm workers' fight to be a great human rights cause."

And human rights, Pamela says, are what life is all about. She was in Victoria to help plan the latest move in the program—a boycott of Safeway stores.

MAJOR BUYER Originally, the boycott involved only the purchase of California and Arizona table grapes. But the union now wants people to stop shopping at Safeway. It says the big food chain, with headquarters in California, has been a major purchaser of the grapes and has urged other chains to do the same.

A Safeway official in Vancouver did not want to take responsibility for comment Wednesday. He said the only man who could do so would be out of town until Monday.

Earlier, a company official told an interviewer the boycott was an act of discrimination.

RAILY PLANNED Miss Smith spent part of her day in Victoria discussing the issue with labor leaders who hope to hold a public rally. The unionists have already been armed with large quantities of pamphlets and bumper stickers. But no date has been set for the rally.

The boycott campaign is already in progress in Vancouver.

"I find I'm getting a lot of help from students," she said. "That's where I'm getting all my volunteers from."

Miss Smith got involved in the boycott work in Seattle after graduating from university there and has been on the union's staff in Vancouver since Aug. 7.

DULL JOBS "I had intended to get my master's degree in social work, in the new field of community organization," she said. "But what I found was that the field placements were very dull. The grape boycott required this kind of work and I did it for five months on a voluntary basis."

She said she felt the United States "no longer takes human beings into account."

Need for Haste Questioned Pope Pushes Moderation

VATICAN CITY (AP) — While the world Roman Catholic bishops' synod moved toward recommending sweeping reforms in the use of papal power, Pope Paul said Wednesday he would accept only moderate and gradual change in the Roman Catholic Church.

The Pope criticized a "hurried need for revision" and said the church cannot be "changed at will." He said the crisis in the church boils down to a "lack of confidence—confidence in the church as it is."

While the Pope spoke at his weekly general audience in St. Peter's Basilica, the synod in a hall of the adjoining Apostolic Palace heard new requests that the pontiff seek the advice of his bishops more often.

Belgium's Leo Cardinal Suenens, an advocate of church reform, said one of the Pope's recent decrees contained "some incorrect sentences from the doctrinal point of view."

The cardinal also brought up before the synod a suggestion that bishops, as well as cardinals, be allowed to elect popes.

At Wednesday's session, the 146-member synod assigned a special commission to draw up specific proposals for applying the doctrine of collegiality, or sharing by bishops, in papal decision-making.

A key proposal that already has won nine subcommissions' majority support asked the Pope to consult with all bishops before issuing major rulings. Pope Paul's encyclicals on birth control and on priestly celibacy were cited by synod members as cases in which he should have sought advice beyond the Roman Curia.

Another proposal asks the Pope to convoke a synod at least every two years on an agenda prepared through consultation with the bishops.

Leger Raps False Reasoning

OTTAWA (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger says he has to restrain anger when he answers persons who suggest his work in a leper colony in the Cameroons is west-central Africa is aimed at "building something."

"I went there to rebuild myself," he told a meeting of the Canadian Club in Ottawa Wednesday.

There is an element of anger as well in Cardinal Leger's reaction to those who argue that aid to the underdeveloped countries is good because it serves as insurance against the unrest of hungry natives, that it is a contribution to political stability.

SELF-INTEREST

The argument suggests it is enlightened self-interest to give aid to the underdeveloped nations if only to cultivate a market for the goods developed nations have to sell.

For Cardinal Leger, such reasoning seems false. The white man, he told his audience, has occupied and exploited the best, most fertile areas of the world for the last 400 years and has established supremacy on that basis.

"Now we help the Third World on one condition: That this pattern shall not be disturbed. . . ."

"What is lacking in the West today is a deep-seated conviction that justice and friendship is owing to the Third World."

"It seems to me that what we share and the reasons why we share should not be calculated by the balance sheet."

Guilt, the cardinal said, should be part of the motivation. The history of the slave trade cannot be wiped out.

"This is my sin as a white man."

Moreover, "this terrible history, for which the West has not yet paid its bill, is not yet completed."

The slave trade in Africa, he said, has an underground but vigorous life even now. At the same time, racial segregation as practised in South Africa remains as a form of semi-slavery.

The developed nations have to realize, Cardinal Leger said, that the true dimension of development cannot be measured only in economic terms.

There is no doubt in my mind that advertising is a powerful means of communication.

And an efficient one.

So why don't we use advertising to sell ideas as well as products?

Things like safe driving.

Or recruitment of police and social workers.

Even understanding between nations.

Lake Cowichan Lacking Attractions?

Call Goes Out for More Doctors

LAKE COWICHAN — Lake Cowichan Chamber of Commerce members expressed concern Tuesday over a shortage of doctors in the area.

"Sometimes we can't get a doctor for four or five hours," said Al Kotcherowski, who introduced the topic.

The Chamber's president, Don Rodenhuis said, "We have two doctors for an emergency area with a population of approximately 8,000 people. That is 4,000 per doctor and the patient to doctor ratio is 800 to one."

"There is supposed to be another doctor coming next month and that will make it 2,800 to one doctor. I wonder if there is any way the Chamber could assist the medical profession in Lake Cowichan to make it more attractive to doctors?"

"It is not a case of dollars and cents," said Gordon Louie. "A doctor can come into Lake Cowichan on his own and have ready-made facilities, associate with the others and have a good setup for weekends."

There is no problem with money because everything is insured. There are hardly any individuals paying their own bills. Our doctors have contacted numerous doctors and made the area sound attractive. I am sure of it."

"There were over 20 applications sent to doctors and two got through," said Bert Brown, village alderman. "The rest got picked up by other places."

One member said there is nothing in the area to attract a doctor from his family's point of view but the proposed skating and curling complex is a step in the right direction.

Members agreed that the two doctors now living in Lake Cowichan, Dr. J. J. Morrow and Dr. C. W. Mithor, are working to full capacity.

There was a third doctor but he left in the spring.

A motion was passed by the Chamber to invite one of the Lake Cowichan doctors to the next general meeting.

Second Thoughts Over Venture

Planes 'Danger' on Lake

NORTH COWICHAN—Opposition to the use of Quamichan Lake as a landing area for commercial float planes has come from some residents of the lake.

And Duncan Kinmen, who had considered allowing landing facilities at the lake's Kinsmen Park are having second thoughts about the venture.

Mrs. G. M. Graham, Miss D. E. Ayles and Miss Laylen, residents on the lake, told North Cowichan council Wednesday commercial aircraft landings would be dangerous because of the many people who use the lake for recreational purposes.

The proposal for landing facilities has been made to North Cowichan by Airwest Airlines.

Council told the three lake residents their objections would be taken into consideration when council makes a final decision, probably at the next general meeting.

Ald. Margaret Robertson, reporting on a recent Duncan Kinmen meeting, said the club was having second thoughts about the airline proposal.

She said members are wondering if they have a moral or constitutional right to allow a commercial venture in the park. She said the club would like to donate the park to the municipality, but continue to carry out its development and maintenance.

Ald. Robertson pointed out the North Cowichan recreation commission also objected to the proposed commercial aircraft venture.

Ald. Gerry Smith said, "If they (Kinmen) turn over the park I shall oppose a commercial airport at the lake because it would interfere with a recreational area." The problem will be discussed with the Kinmen and the North Cowichan recreation commission.

Father of Accused

Argument Sparked Big Fight

LADYSMITH—The father of a 23-year-old woman charged in the fatal stabbing of her ex-husband fought savagely with the victim the night of the slaying, a preliminary hearing was told Wednesday.

The fight was described by Edward Ronald Hall, father of the accused, Anita Louise Carfelle, who is charged with non-capital murder.

He testified his daughter had received a divorce from her husband, John Noel Carfelle, the day before the incidents of Oct. 3 that led to Mr. Carfelle's death.

Mr. Hall testified he and his

Tiger-Cats' Collapse Hits Coffey Chances

Decision on who deserves rating as the outstanding player in the Canadian Football League this season may well have been made by the finger injuries which removed Hamilton quarterback Joe Zuger from service.

Up until then, it was generally conceded that Ottawa-quarterback Russ Jackson was getting a stiff challenge from Hamilton's place-kicking end, Tommy-Joe Coffey.

Coffey still has credentials that deserve the rating but Jackson is having his best-ever season and the betting factor could be that Tiger-Cats have dropped out of contention for the Eastern Conference championship since they lost their regular signal-caller.

Meanwhile, led by Jackson's passing and running, the Ottawa club has a 10-2 record and needs only a victory in its last two games to retain conference honors.

Jackson has the CFL passing championship all but clinched. He is second to Calgary's Jerry Keeling in completions, 181 to 217, but has a 3469-3023 margin in passing yards and leads in touchdown throws, 31-19.

But Jackson is also one of the top rushers in the CFL. Only six runners in the Eastern Conference have gained more than his 490 yards and his 8.8 average is easily the best. He has also scored three touchdowns.

Coffey leads the CFL in scoring with 128 points and the EFC in receptions with 60 and in touchdown catches with 10.

Smashup Leaves Two Dead

NANAIMO — Two men died Wednesday evening when the cars they were driving collided head on at the top of Chase River hill about four miles south of here.

Dead are William Prendergast, 55, of Lost Lake Road, Wellington and Herbert E. Wilson, 61, of Lipton Road, Ladysmith.

RCMP said Mr. Prendergast was dead on arrival at Nanaimo Regional general hospital. They said Mr. Wilson died later in the same hospital of multiple injuries.

Cranberry fire department, RCMP, civil defence volunteers and rescue equipment were called to the scene of the crash shortly after 5 p.m.

Gasoline spilled on the highway had burst into flame. Sand was used to douse the fire, and fire trucks hosed the roadway down to remove gasoline and broken glass.

Slugs Around

A gardener's battle against pests is never really over. All through the spring months we do our best to outwit the wily cutworm, who likes nothing better than to chew through the stems of our newly set-out plant at soil level, and no sooner has this menace abated than the aphids and thrips and leafhoppers appear on the scene. Then, as soon as the weather turns cool, out come the slugs.

These slimy creatures are everywhere this year, chewing holes in the stems and gnawing at the succulent young shoots of our plants with their rasp-like tongues. You can't kick over a stone anywhere in the garden without finding at least half a dozen of the little beasts, and the soil is full of their eggs, looking like globs of dirty grey tapoca.

In case you haven't been introduced to Mr. Slug yet, he looks in his younger days rather like a short section of earthworm, somewhat pointed at the rear end, and with a couple of horns or feelers on his head, like a snail. In fact, he is a snail, but without a shell. He leaves his trademark wherever he goes, both in the form of chewed-up plants and in the slimy trail he exudes as he travels. You can see these trails quite clearly, glistening in the morning sunlight, particularly on rocks and stepping stones.

While these slimy trails show quite clearly where he has been, you hardly ever meet up with Mr. Slug in person during the daylight hours unless you lift up the ground-hugging foliage of some low-growing plant or turn over a stone in the dampest and most sunless part of the garden. What you will find there will probably give you the shudders.

While I have been calling him Mister Slug, actually the creature has a very versatile sex life, possessing both male and female sex organs. Because of this convenient arrangement, any time he meets up with ANY other slug, they can breed, and BOTH of them can off and lay their internal eggs in our soil.

There are many different kinds of slugs, ranging all the way from small black ones that live mostly underground and chew holes in our potatoes and dahlias tubers, up to enormous monsters in Ceylon weighing five pounds or more, but fortunately with the intriguing habit of eating their own children!

There are several different ways of controlling slugs in the garden, and on a small plot about the most convenient is to put down slug bait or slug pellets in the damp and shaded parts of the garden, and tucked in under the overhanging foliage of any special plants to be protected.

The poison used is metaldehyde, a form of solidified alcohol used also in "canned heat" for heating up picnic lunches, and popular with Slid Flow characters as the source of a cheap bag. Metaldehyde pellets possess a fatal attraction for slugs, and they will turn aside from the juiciest plants to nibble at the bait. Its effect is to dissolve the creatures into a horrible mass of slime.

In sections of the garden where a more general treatment is needed, I have been having pretty good luck by watering plants and soil with a weak solution of ordinary household disinfectant such as Lysol, Dettol, Cresolin or Jeyes Fluid, about two teaspoons per gallon of water. I suspect this acts more as a deterrent and repellent rather than as a slug killer, but a low rock wall in our garden that provided a happy home for thousands of slugs has been as clean as a whistle since I started using the disinfectant.

Spiro Secret Weapon

President Richard Nixon caused a great deal of speculation when he announced so far in advance that he was going to make a major pronouncement concerning Vietnam.

By selecting Nov. 3 as the date, he has given the press and other news media an opportunity to guess what he is going to say and do. The rumors are getting wilder each day.

I can reliably report that, despite all the trial balloons that the White House is sending up, one of the things he plans to announce is that he is making his vice-president, Spiro Agnew, his liaison between the White House and the intellectual community.

A spokesman said, "No one in the administration has a better understanding or a deeper interest in the intellectuals than the Vice President. Time and time again Mr. Agnew has gone to bat for the educated classes in the country, particularly the students. The President feels that by announcing Mr. Agnew's appointment as his personal representative, he will be able to take some of the steam out of the moratorium protests. The feeling is that the Vice President is the only one who can communicate with the students and protesters."

I asked the spokesman how the President had discovered this.

"The President has always known that his Vice President has been a popular figure on the nation's campuses. Not only has Mr. Agnew had rapport with students, but he is also respected and admired by professors and college presidents. They see in Mr. Agnew, a man of warmth, generosity and intelligence and someone who can state their case to the President."

"Did the President come to this decision on his own?"

"No, he did not," the spokesman said. "He discussed it with representative college students."

"Which ones?"

"David Eisenhower and his wife, Julie. I don't think there is any doubt that they speak for the entire college generation."

"Will Vice President Agnew be to the Nixon administration what Eric Goldman was to the Johnson administration?"

"Yes, except that as vice president Mr. Agnew will have more influence on intellectual matters in the country. It is hoped that when students or educators, writers, historians, philosophers and artists have something to say, they will put it in the willing ear of Mr. Agnew. We want them to feel the Vice President is one of them."

"Has the Vice President been informed of his appointment?"

"Yes and he's very excited about it. He loves working with youth and with educated people. He feels that they're the hope of the future and that what they have to say is important to the direction in which this country is going."

"He is particularly impressed with their eagerness to speak out on the issues of the day and he feels that the more the intellectual community is heard from, the less mistakes the administration will make. He doesn't believe if you've seen one campus, you've seen them all."

"The President was most fortunate to have someone of Mr. Agnew's intellectual standing available," I said.

"President Nixon feels that way. At first he was going to appoint Gen. Lewis B. Hershey to the job, but David and Julie persuaded the President that Mr. Agnew would be a better choice."

"I don't see how Vice President Agnew can take on this job with everything else he has to do," I said.

"The President hopes to ease up on Mr. Agnew's other duties so he can devote all his attention to the intellectuals and students. For a start, he told the Vice President he no longer has to meet him at the airport."

The Odd Trio

LONDON (NANA) — Charlie Bronson's entourage in Turkey is the talk of the "in" set in London. He is starring there in The Dubious Patriot, with Tony Curtis co-starring. Peter O'Toole directing — a more diverse trio it would be hard to find. Tony is his usual prima donna self, Bronson always looks so sinister, more so in real life even than on the screen, in spite of five assorted children, one wife, 88 pieces of baggage and nine rooms in the best hotel in the location (one of the rooms occupied by a Miss Sarah Bronson who turns out to be a shaggy dog).

Michael Caine says he doesn't know what he would do if he didn't have his lovely girl friend from the Philippines with him, while he makes a movie somewhere in Austria, near Innsbruck. And even then, he says, the evenings are dull.

I was asking Ursula Andress whether she likes London — she is starring with Stanley Baker and David Warner in Perfect Friday. "I adore London," she replied. "But I never get a chance to see it, I'm working all the time." She is staying at the Mayfair home of affable Johnny Sheppridge — Warren Beatty always stays there when he is in London. Jean Paul Belmondo is making a film in Marseilles and when he is working that is all he does, so it is just as well Miss Andress is telling in London.

I was fascinated by the fuss Debbie Reynolds made about not wanting a cigarette sponsor for her TV show, when all the time she was a smoker herself.

Yul Brynner was the savior of his son's play, Opium, in Dublin. When Yul arrived on that Monday, everything was chaotic. It was to open the same night but the scenery was not ready and the rehearsal time had been cut. Yul realized the situation and roared, "I came to see my son act!" Everyone was galvanized into action, and 22-year-old Leo Brynner, the only member of the cast, was able to perform that night. The reception of his performance was good. At the party afterwards in Yul's hotel suite, the bald one hugged the press agent in charge of Roc and the Cocteau story of drug-taking and said fervently, "Thank you for helping my boy," the press agent felt something crack and for a moment thought the bear-hug had broken a rib. "Only my glasses," he told me ruefully.

I keep telling you about the burglars of Britain. Director-producer Bryan Forbes is the latest to be robbed — twice! The first time, the police asked him to keep it quiet. Now, with nothing much left to take, Bryan has complained in print. Honey Rabbits, the experienced and excellent publicist for Commonwealth United here, was robbed five times — the thieves even came into his bedroom while he slept and stole the clock on his bedside table. But now, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes have a dog in the bedroom, and the burglaries have stopped.

Anger Self-Defeating

"A chip on the shoulder," a wise man once said, "is too heavy a load for the body to carry."

Two neighbors fought and quarrelled. The causes were trivial enough, but not the results. The 20-foot high fence one of them erected in order to avoid his friend, succeeded in shutting out the sun from his own home.

Isn't this the nasty product of all spite-fences? No one suffers as much from anger as the angry man himself. Hated people survive hatred; they are never completely damaged until they begin to repay hurt with hurt, hate with hate.

It is a psychological truth that in 15 minutes of anger we can expend as much energy as in an entire day of productive labor.

Anger disorders our nerves, literally deposits poison in our blood stream, undermines our health, destroys our stability.

Anger is a kind of acid that can and does more harm to the vessel in which it is stored than to anything upon which it is poured.

When a rattlesnake is cornered it becomes so angry that it often bites itself. This is exactly what happens to those who harbor stored-up hate. They are cornered into self-destruction.

The word "anger" is only one letter removed from the word "danger". There is inherent danger in anger: those we seek to hurt will survive our temper while we remain tempest-tossed.

We are more likely to turn into angry men as our youthfulness gives way to age. We lament our own loss of strength, morbidly pick on those around us, as if they were responsible for our growing physical weakness.

This is what makes so poignantly meaningful, relevant and beautiful, these words of the late Professor Joseph Klausner, a prayer he wrote at the age of 83:

"This is my last prayer: May my heart never harden in old age, and may I never stop loving human beings... even though the horrors committed in Europe during the last war could make a man hate mankind."

"Nothing degrades a man more in his old age than envy and hate and the complaint that things were better in the good old days."

"Those who say everything has gone to the dogs are those who want all progress. No trait could be worse."

"I pray I remain pure in heart, then my old age will not put my youth to shame."

Old men who can pray this way remain beacons to those who want to have the stamina to get older.

Heart Surgeon Admits Fatal Error

NEW YORK (CP) — Dr. Christian Barnard, the South African surgeon who performed the first successful human heart transplant, says he once made an error which cost the life of a seven-year-old boy in a University of Minnesota operating room.

Barnard also says he almost killed Louis Washkansky during the first successful heart transplant because of a technical error.

An excerpt from his autobiography published in McCall's magazine says that in the Minnesota operation Barnard cut by mistake into the child's heart.

Barnard quoted the chief surgeon, Dr. Walton Lillehei, as saying: "We've all made these mistakes."

During the Washkansky surgery in Groote Schuur Hospital in Cape Town, Barnard says there was a time during the operation when he feared an error would put air bubbles into Washkansky's brain and either kill him or turn him into a living vegetable.

Dr. Barnard said that during the operation he had to connect a heart-lung machine directly to Washkansky's failing heart before transplanting the heart of a young girl.

The surgeon writes that he was ready to hook up the machine, when he said "clamp the line," speaking more to himself than anyone else.

But a nurse thought he was giving an order and clamped it. There was a sudden swish followed by the sound of blood spilling onto the floor and he realized they had clamped the line without turning off the heart-lung machine.

The pump was turned off. Turning to the nurse, Barnard said "keep your hands off if you don't know what you're doing."

The nurse replied: "But you said to clamp it."

He then realized his mistake, which he says, was caused by his own "lack of clear command."

Barnard gave the orders to remove the lines from Washkansky's heart, connect them, and restart the heart-lung machine so its own "debubbling process" would clear out the air.

A few hours later, on Dec. 3, 1967, the world knew of the first successful heart transplant in a human.

Washkansky died fewer than three weeks later.

Vancouver Hits Financing Pool

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver city council decided Tuesday it would be supporting the debt of all of British Columbia's municipalities under a recently-proposed municipal financing authority.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell outlined the proposal in September. It would set up a pool of Capital financing bonds from regional districts in September.

A motion from Ald. Earle Adams, chairman of the council finance committee, approved by council said the city "is unalterably opposed" to the scheme.

BLOW TO CREDIT
Ald. Adams said a levy for an insurance fund to back the bonds would cost Vancouver $600,000 a year and the city would lose its good credit rating.

In another move, council decided to get more information from its traffic engineer before deciding to restrict more left turns on major streets.

A motion from Ald. Brian Calder calling for the restrictions to speed of traffic was tabled pending further study.

BOND REDUCED
A performance bond required from Four Seasons Development of Toronto for a development near Stanley Park was decreased to $200,000 from $1,000,000.

Four Seasons was also given the go-ahead for detailed planning for its $20,000,000 hotel, apartment and specialty shop proposal.

'Aged Entitled To Own Rights'

By NANCY BROWN
Fighting for the right to a dignified old age, Dr. Charlotte Whitton told 700 members of the Women's Canadian Club Monday that old people have a shuddering horror of being pushed away into segregated housing.

There was standing room only in the Empress ballroom as she said the only reason the aged put up with the kind of treatment they received was traditional, innate good manners.

"They have a shuddering horror of being locked away in a segregated housing development for the aged, in a kind of a residential club with the members all of a kind."

"They recoil as they are descended upon by a bunch of jolly green service club gents come to entertain them."

"Their abiding anxiety is to still matter to someone; to have as long as possible a home of their own; and to have a privacy that cannot be violated by good humor and insensitive help," said Dr. Whitton.

She said an imaginative approach to the old could see that home visiting nursing services, eating facilities and other allied services could prolong the years in which an old person could remain in his or her own home.

"Most old people live to the end of their days. They are capable of looking after themselves if a few facilities are provided."

"Only about 10 per cent go beyond life to need custodial care as they end their days," said Dr. Whitton.

She saw a need to continue a means test for people in need.

"How can you meet a need if you don't know what the need is?" she demanded.

The most pitiful group of people in Canada, she felt, were to be found in the group eking out a living just below the middle income level.

"The very rich and the very poor have found they can exert pressure for change and improvement. The pitiful ones are those trying just below middle-class wages to fend for themselves today and to put by something for tomorrow."

Dr. Whitton questioned the present-day movement to lower the voting age to 18.

"If enfranchisement is to be given to these youngsters on their 18th birthday," she said, "they will just be exchanging the baby bonus cheque for a ballot."

Most unjustifiable instance of age discrimination, she said, was against the older driver.

"The older driver pays more for insurance," she said.

"There is a great tendency in court cases to assume guilt or liability against the driver who is over the limit for retirement in the area concerned."

She debunked a "youth cult and quash" which, she said, has a tendency to assign power and resources in grave disproportion to the youth group.

Whitton: 'They want to matter'

"The aged and aging surely rank in their entitlement consideration with the Company of Young Canadians and the vociferous millions of the young youth who have never yet assumed or discharged any responsibility to the nation," she said.

"It is recognized that children should all be given a secure home and care," she said. "Surely in the last decade of their lives our old people are entitled to as much as the youth in the first two decades of life?"

"If youth be set on doing his or her own thing, all right, let him or her earn the right and the means to do that thing."

"It is time to proclaim the rights of the mature and oldsters as well: that we are not going to pay for their thing, but we are going to continue to enjoy our own thing for ourselves," she declared.

"The aged and aging on the whole are a proud and gallant element in our social structure. They are fiercely jealous of their right to remain persons, to be considered as such, not to be made subjects of ridicule or of widely heralded and jaded charitable outpourings of money or service."

Dr. Whitton acknowledged the existence of a generation gap, but said it is not a mere matter of calendar years.

"It is much less definable and much more deplorable; for the gap is one in the sense of responsibility; and the lack of that sense is most prevalent in so many of the upcoming generation which aspires to be considered fully self-sufficient and which claims privileges, indeed over-privilege, rather than simple rights."

"I feel our whole outgoing generation of later middle age, aging and aged is falling down and not rallying to defend the barricades by talking back for the faith and truth that we know."

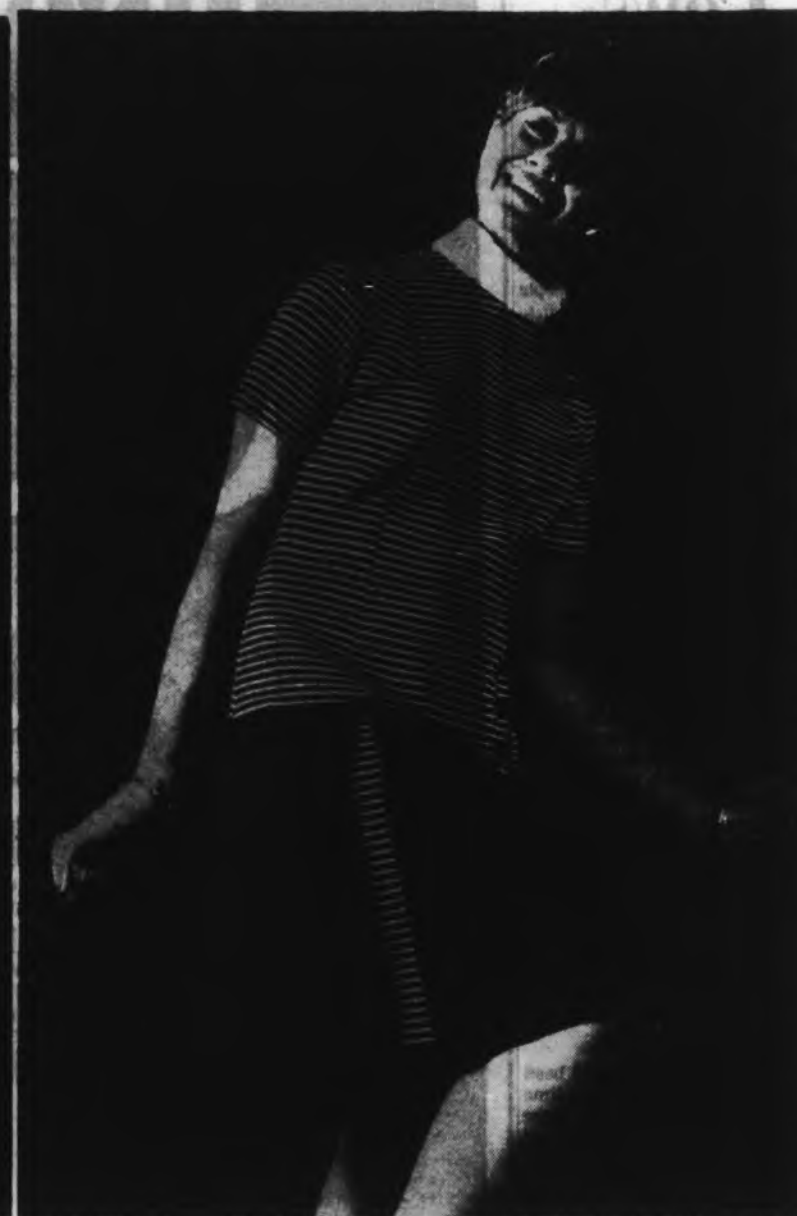

"One thing surely should be said firmly, clearly and courageously to the benighted youth of today," said Dr. Whitton.

"That is, to have and keep always in their awareness that no small part of the privileged power and position they claim it to be their right to enjoy or exploit, was purchased by the savings of two of the predecessor age groups from Canada in two world wars."

Power Base Cows Young

By PAT MURPHY

Confronted with bigness in government, business, labor and education, many young people felt that there was an establishment conspiracy to hold them down, members of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce were told Wednesday.

Ronald Ritchie, of Toronto, a director of Imperial Oil Ltd., said such problems as inflation, poverty and the immensity of institutions would still have to be faced by the new generation, reluctant or not.

Speaking of inflation, he said a runaway economy seemed to have developed which made inflation endemic and incurable.

OLD PROBLEM

It was, in a sense, only a new aspect of an old problem — how to keep the economy growing without tragic side effects.

In the 30s, the side effect was a depression. Economists told how to cope with that, but not how to deal with the other side of the cycle when it got out of control.

Bigness in government, business, labor and education was another facet of society that it didn't seem to be able to control, Mr. Ritchie said.

UNION'S TURN

He said big business had been on the firing line for a long time and now big unions were coming in for their share of criticism. Big universities were all around, but hadn't solved such fundamental problems as the amount of self-government they should be given. Society was governed and controlled by big power bases but did not really know how to handle them.

Mr. Ritchie said the new generation was unique in that so many of its members were being given the opportunity for secondary and higher education and that they took affluence for granted.

LOTS OF DUST

"These factors have inevitably resulted in a change of thinking on the part of young people, but we do not know to what extent. It may take us a generation to find out. Meanwhile, there is a lot of dust being stirred up," the speaker said.

"We are keeping our young people in a state of suspended animation. We tell them to go to school, sometimes until their early 20s, and while they are in school they are not full-fledged citizens. We have seen some of the results in their thinking in universities across the continent," Mr. Ritchie added.

NO REMEDIES

The speaker offered no remedies, but said answers would have to be found and it was one of the tasks of the new generation to find them.

J. Allyn Taylor, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, was present at Wednesday's meeting. Mr. Taylor is in Victoria for a meeting of a joint Canadian-United States Chamber of Commerce committee which is holding closed sessions in the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Ritchie is chairman of the Canadian delegation at the conference, which is believed to be discussing inflation among other topics.

Mounties to Comb Osland File

Gregory

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL
Two top-flight RCMP homicide investigators have been brought in to assist Victoria and Saanich police in their eight-month-old search for the murderer of William Osland.

Victoria Police Chief John Gregory announced his request for outside help at a press conference Wednesday, following an earlier meeting between himself, Mayor Hugh Stephen and Deputy Attorney-General Gilbert Kennedy. "Far from being concluded," said Chief Gregory of the investigation into the death of the 35-year-old businessman who disappeared Feb. 3 and whose body was discovered 22 days later wrapped in a plastic sheet at the bottom of Victoria Harbor.

"A completely fresh approach," said the chief, will be taken by the two "highly qualified" RCMP officers. "This team will examine all the evidence already collected and statements obtained.

They may even talk to previously questioned persons." Both men, in their late 30s, were described by RCMP Superintendent Harold Price as "very experienced" in the investigation of murders. They are Inspector R. H. Simmonds of the Burnaby RCMP detachment and Sgt. E. L. Naaykens of Kamloops, formerly with the force's Criminal Investigations Branch.

Supt. Price said he was instructed by the attorney-general's department to "handpick two top investigators" to look into the Osland case.

Without giving any names, Chief Gregory at the press conference in his office indicated that at least one of the people already questioned knew something about the murder. "Certainly somebody on the ship knew something about it," said the chief, referring to the Robert M. Emery, an old U.S. vessel being converted in

OTTAWA (UPI) — Steven Truscott has been released from Collins Bay penitentiary, George Street, chairman of the National Parole Board, confirmed late Wednesday in Ottawa.

Truscott

Street, however, refused to say when the release took place and said it took place under an assumed name.

Truscott, now 24, has been the centre of a lengthy dispute since his conviction for murder at the age of 24. "I don't think he (Truscott) could survive with every newspaper in the country hounding him," Street said. An official statement will be issued this morning he added.

ELIGIBLE IN JUNE
Truscott was eligible for parole in June of this year. Prison and parole authorities have expressed the hope that Truscott could be paroled quietly and without publicity.

Spy Charge

Czechs Free B.C. Man

PRAGUE (Reuters) — A Czechoslovak-born Canadian citizen, Rudolph Holata, detained by Czechoslovak security police since last January on a charge of spying for Britain, has been released from prison, Canadian embassy officials reported Wednesday night.

The doors of Limerick Prison opened to Holata, 47-year-old employee of the Canadian transport ministry at Vancouver airport, and he took a local bus to Prague where he telephoned the Canadian embassy.

Holata originally left Czechoslovakia in 1951. He admitted at his trial that he returned to spy for Britain a few months later on a promise by British intelligence that he would receive forged documents to bring out his wife as well.

In North Vancouver, Mrs. Holata, told of the news by a reporter, said: "That's wonderful that's wonderful. I'm overcome. This is so sudden."

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — With Conservative and Creditiste support, the Liberal government is going to put the controversial Company of Young Canadians through a parliamentary committee investigation.

Only the New Democrats object. The decision to probe the company was the first government decision announced Wednesday when the Commons reopened to prorogue the last session of Parliament and set the stage for the new. Making the announcement, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier made it quite plain that the investigation was required because of charges by "usually responsible sources" that the Young Canadians had been used "to cover the furtherance of subversive activities."

Lebanon Premier Quits Over Fights

From CP

Lebanese Premier Rashid Karami resigned Wednesday after bloody clashes between the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas. The fighting unleashed a storm of protest at home and abroad and brought threats from other Arab countries.

Iraq offered the guerrillas military aid. Syria closed its border with Lebanon. Libya recalled its ambassador, and Algeria threatened to break diplomatic relations with Lebanon.

Thousands of Arabs demonstrated in the streets of Beirut. Elsewhere in the Middle East, there were these developments:

● The Middle East news agency reported from Damascus, Syria, that Israeli forces invaded Lebanese territory and occupied the southern village of Kafr Kala on Wednesday night.

● In Israel, four bombs rocked a residential area of Haifa, killing one person and injuring 12. Arab guerrillas were blamed. Another Israeli was killed in a later blast.

● The Egyptian military command said a number of Israeli jet aircraft tried to bomb Egyptian military positions along the Suez canal Wednesday but were driven off by anti-aircraft fire.

The most recent authorities to make this accusation were the municipal leaders of Montreal, who called on the federal government for a royal commission investigation following the looting, shooting and fire-bombing that savaged the city streets during the 16-hour police strike.

Leaders of other cities and towns across Quebec have fallen into line behind Montreal. Objections to the pattern of protest and dissent that the company has followed since its founding by former prime minister Lester Pearson three years ago, have come from many other sections of the country, especially the west.

The Company welcomes the opportunity "to confront our accusers before a parliament."

Who Made No-Standing Bar Rule?

Chairman Didn't Stay in Chair

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chairman of the British Columbia Liquor Inquiry Commission said Wednesday he personally tested the no-standing-and-drink regulation enforced in the province's beverage rooms and was ordered to sit.

County Court Judge C. W. Morrow said he was ordered to sit down when he visited the Devonshire Hotel beverage room and Hotel Georgia cocktail bar in Vancouver Tuesday night. He added: "I'm not sure who is responsible for the no-standing regulation, the B.C. Hotels' Association or the Liquor Control Board."

In the "Devonshire Public House, which was quite crowded," he was served a glass of beer without ordering it.

He said the waiter looked "shocked" when he started a table hop. "You should let me carry your drink for you," he quoted the waiter as saying. The judge was travelling incognito.

From the waiter he eventually came to the attention of the manager who advised the judge the no-standing rule was worked out by the B.C. Hotels' Association.

Judge Morrow said he concluded from this (the no-standing bar) was not a Liquor Act provision, but changed his mind when he tried a glass-in-hand table hop at the Georgia lounge.

"The waiter said it was against the law." Here the judge dropped his incognito cloak and was then told it was a house rule. Boyd Farris, counsel for the Hotels' Association, says he's going to ask the LCB for the answers.

Docks Stand Silent

Paralysis Warning Ignored

There were no new attempts Wednesday night to end B.C.'s dock strike despite a new wave of warnings that industry is facing serious paralysis.

Four B.C. organizations sent telegrams to Prime Minister Trudeau during the day seeking special legislation that would send the 3,200 longshoremen back to work.

Questions concerning the strike were also raised in the House of Commons.

Meanwhile, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey told reporters he is prepared to come to Vancouver if need be, but that for the time being he is going to rely on the telephone in his attempt to find a solution.

Layoffs have already occurred at a number of the province's lumber industry operations and there were new signs of trouble Wednesday.

In Calgary, a coal industry spokesman said Coleman Collieries Ltd. planned a shutdown that would mean a layoff for about 450 men.

Unsound Pollution Solution

Overcoming air pollution remains a major problem lacking real action — but something can be done about noise pollution. These young motorists took sign literally and sneaked car through Edmonton quiet zone unnoticed by patients. Now, if they all wore rubber-soled shoes . . . —(CP)

Withdrawal's Aftermath Worries Asian Countries

By IAN STREET

The economic aftermath of an American withdrawal from Vietnam and the closing of British military installations in Southeast Asia were discussed behind closed doors at the Colombo Plan conference Wednesday.

Secretary-General John Haden said later that most delegates on the economic review committee felt the effects of the military withdrawals upon the economy of the region had been "somewhat over-estimated."

However, George Rosen, chief economist for the Asian Development Bank, who is attending the conference as an observer, said some Southeast Asian countries were worried enough to have requested a full-scale economic review.

"We have been asked by the Council of Ministers of Southeast Asian countries to conduct a look ahead at some of the problems and longer-term trends in the region that could result from the possible end of hostilities in Vietnam and the British military withdrawal from Singapore and Asia," he said.

The economic study will be conducted by the Asian Development Bank and the final report should be complete by June, 1970.

Mr. Rosen said it was expected that the end of the Vietnam war would create "a shock effect" in the region, but added that the countries concerned "think they may be able to absorb it—particularly if there is an aid increase."

If, however, the American and British withdrawals are phased so they "tail off very gradually," he added, it was

Political TV Plug Costs Cut in Half

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the three major American television networks, hoping to head off a congressional crackdown on the cost of election campaigning, said Wednesday they will slash rates for political advertisements.

The National Broadcasting Co. said it will reduce rates in next year's congressional elections by 50 per cent. The American Broadcasting Co. said its rates will be cut by 33-1/3 per cent.

The announcements came as the presidents of NBC, ABC and CBS testified before a Senate commerce committee.

Julian Goodman, president of NBC, said the 50-per-cent discount will apply to the five television stations it owns, but he said the network is seeking ways to help the 195 TV stations it serves to offer time at reduced cost to local candidates.

Goodman said plans also are in the making to offer reduced-rate time slots to the 1972 presidential contenders.

Another plan would make available some free half-hour segments, he said. If Congress waives the law that requires broadcast stations to give equal time to candidates seeking the same office.

President Leonard Goldenson of ABC said his network has already granted political discounts of 33-1/3 per cent for spot announcements on its own TV stations and that the rate will be extended to radio.

In the 1972 presidential election, Goldenson said, ABC will establish a 33-1/3-per-cent reduction in both spot announcements and selected program time for the top candidates.

LADYSMITH — RCMP are investigating reports of threatening telephone calls made to Mrs. Erina Hall, mother of the accused, Anita Louise Carifelle, Mrs. Hall told a preliminary hearing Wednesday the anonymous calls were threats against her daughter.

On Hill

Smashup Leaves Two Dead

NANAIMO — Two men died Wednesday evening when the cars they were driving collided head on at the top of Chase River hill about four miles south of here.

Dead are William Prendergast, 55, of Lost Lake Road, Wellington and Herbert E. Wilson, 61, of Lipton Road, Ladysmith.

RCMP said Mr. Prendergast was dead on arrival at Nanaimo Regional general hospital. They said Mr. Wilson died later in the same hospital of multiple injuries.

Cranberry fire department, RCMP, civil defence volunteers and rescue equipment were called to the scene of the crash shortly after 5 p.m.

Gasoline spilled on the highway had burst into flame. Sand was used to douse the fire, and fire trucks hosed the roadway down to remove gasoline and broken glass.

Police said hydraulic jacks had to be used to pry the two men from the wreckage of their cars.

The terms of alderman Jack Lee, Jack McLeod and Wallace Balke expire at the end of the year.

Ald. Lee said Wednesday he has not decided yet whether or not he will stand for re-election.

First of Season

History Society Meeting Tonight

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River and District Historical Society will hold its first general meeting of the season tonight at 8 p.m.

The meeting will be held in the museum. Guest speaker will be John Kyte, formerly of

Game Officer

PORT ALBERNI — Appointment of a new game officer here has been announced by the department of recreation and conservation, fish and game branch. He is Bill Hazeldine of Parksville who formerly served in the Bella Coola area. Mr. Hazeldine will replace Des Haddenston who was transferred to a more senior position at Prince George.

The fight was described by Edward Ronald Hall, father of the accused, Anita Louise Carifelle, who is charged with non-capital murder.

He testified his daughter had received a divorce from her husband, John Noel Carifelle, the day before the incidents of Oct. 3 that led to Mr. Carifelle's death.

Mr. Hall testified he and his wife went to their daughter's apartment at 320 First Avenue and saw Mrs. Carifelle with "some welts across her arms . . . her face had some marks all over it . . . her neck had marks and she said, our hero's been at it again."

HEATED WORDS — Mr. Hall said he and his former son-in-law exchanged heated words.

The two, according to testimony, scuffled in the living room until Mr. Hall was knocked down, then kicked in the face. The two men fought toward the outside veranda.

"He was trying to get hold of my head or trying to get hold of my throat. I don't know how I got with my back against the rail. I was dumped head first over," Mr. Hall said.

"I scrambled to get back up there again . . . I had it in mind that my wife and Anita were still up there."

The fight went down an alley toward a parking lot, he said.

"He was on top of me with both hands on my throat. He was trying to choke me and beat my head against the rocks," testified Mr. Hall.

He said he tried in vain to peel the fingers from throat. He then tried to suffocate Carifelle by shoving his hand into Carifelle's nose and mouth, but failed, he said.

FINGER IN EYE — "I stuck my finger into his eye right up to the knuckle as far as I could go. I was just going to stick my fingers into his other eye when his fingers relaxed . . . I sensed people on either side of me . . . lifting Sonny (Carifelle) . . . I seemed to have a lot of blood on my face . . . there was a gush of blood about the time I poked my finger in his eye."

"I figured it was him or me at the time," Mr. Hall testified.

He described himself as 54 years old, six feet, one and a half inches tall and weighing 170 pounds. Mr. Carifelle was just under six feet tall, 25 years old and stockier, the hearing was told.

Mr. Hall said that near the end of the fight, he had picked up a rock his fingers could hardly encircle but someone (later testimony revealed it was Mrs. Hall) told him not to and another unidentified person took the rock away.

The hearing continues.

Lake Cowichan Lacking Attractions?

Call Goes Out for More Doctors

LAKE COWICHAN — Lake Cowichan Chamber of Commerce members expressed concern Tuesday over a shortage of doctors in the area.

"Sometimes we can't get a doctor for four or five hours," said Al Kotscherowski, who introduced the topic.

The Chamber's president, Don Rodenbush said, "We have two doctors for an emergency area with a population of approx-mately 8,000 people. That is 4,000 per doctor and the popular patient to doctor ratio is 800 to one.

"There is supposed to be another doctor coming next month and that will make it 2,800 to one doctor. I wonder if there is any way the Chamber could assist the medical profession in Lake Cowichan to make it more attractive to doctors?"

"It is not a case of dollars and cents," said Gordon Loutet. "A doctor can come into Lake Cowichan strictly on his own and have ready-made facilities, associate with the others and have a good setup for weekends."

There is no problem with money because everything is insured. There are hardly any individuals paying their own bills. Our doctors have contacted numerous doctors and made the area sound attractive. I am sure of it."

"There were over 20 applications sent to doctors and two got through," said Bert Brown, village alderman. "The rest got picked up by other places."

One member said there is nothing in the area to attract a doctor from his family's point of view but the proposed skating and curling complex is a step in the right direction.

Members agreed that the two doctors now living in Lake Cowichan, Dr. J. J. Morrow and Dr. C. W. Miwhort, are working to full capacity.

There was a third doctor but he left in the spring.

A motion was passed by the Chamber to invite one of the Lake Cowichan doctors to the next general meeting.

Capt. Marshall on maiden run, then school children rush to sample new ferry's attractions

New Ferry Queen 'Pretty Swell'

CAMPBELL RIVER — The brand-new car ferry Quadra Queen — has settled smoothly into her run between Campbell River and Quathiaski Cove on Quadra Island.

The newest of the B.C. Government's ferry fleet arrived in Campbell River last week in brilliant autumn sunshine with flags and pennants fluttering from her upper rigging.

Known officially as Hull 165, the 30-car, 200-passenger ship was built by Allied Shipbuilders of North Vancouver. The 750-ton vessel is 160 feet long, about 50 feet bigger than her predecessor.

At her helm was Capt. Bob Marshall of Gowlland Harbour with Mate Roland Grafton of Heriot Bay standing by. Both seamen have recently retired, having been employed on the old Quadra Queen since shortly after the service was inaugurated in the spring of 1960.

Chief engineer on the maiden voyage was Albert Glendenning.

The new Queen made her first trip at 7 a.m. October 17, with Capt. John Oswald at the wheel. Capt. Oswald is acting senior skipper at present.

Senior mate is Gilbert Krook of Heriot Bay. Both men are longtime residents of Quadra Island and so is Don Enderby, who has been deckhand on the run since the service started.

Two extra men per shift have been taken onto the ferry, a deckhand and an oiler. The Queen operates from 7 a.m. until 10:30 p.m. daily, with additional trips from Campbell River at 11:30 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.

Life isn't over by any means for the first Quadra Queen who has served the residents of Quadra Island faithfully for the past nine years.

She has gone to the dry-docks for an overhaul and will emerge in about a month to begin a new life on a long-awaited ferry service between Whalton on Cortes Island and Heriot Bay on the east coast of Quadra Island.

Captain Marshall, who had the honor of commanding the Quadra Queen II on her maiden voyage, is a veteran skipper on the G.C. coast, having been master of ships for the past 43 years. His home is Vancouver where he has lived since 1912.

Now that he has retired, the not-so-old master mariner spends considerable time at his favorite recreation, hunting. He also likes to "monkey around" with a saw and hammer" and has built himself a cabin on Quadra Island.

However, he still has time to put in a shift or two when the ferry service is short of help. He thinks the new Quadra Queen is a great improvement over the smaller ferry from the standpoint of passenger capacity and convenience.

More than one hundred students who travel the route daily from Quadra Island to schools in Campbell River think she is "pretty swell," too.

Deckhand Enderby's father, Frank Enderby, who has lived on Quadra Island for more than 40 years, says "she's a dandy all right."

But Mr. Enderby is more concerned with her seaworthiness than her beauty. "Wait till she's been through a few southeasters," he said, "then we'll know how good she is."

North Cowichan Bids $8,000 This Year

Bylaw Launched for Anti-Pollution Fund

NORTH COWICHAN — Council gave the first three readings Wednesday to a bylaw creating a reserve fund to fight water pollution in the North Cowichan area.

According to the terms of the bylaw, $8,000 will be set aside this year for the fund.

The action follows a recommendation made several weeks ago by Ald. John Cannon that a special pollution control fund be established.

Wednesday afternoon he said, "If we speak of $8,000 this year, this does not mean similar amounts will be set aside every year." He said it would not be fair to future councils to specify at this time a set amount for coming years.

Ald. Cannon explained the amount this year is based on information from the B.C. Research Council and "therefore it is not a case of shooting in the dark."

He said, "It will take a capital project to save the lakes and I think we should make every effort to save the quality of water in the lakes in the municipality."

He said borrowing money for the purpose would be unsatisfactory. "Pollution in our area is not imminent but we have to safeguard for the future and the fund will enable us to get dollar value for each dollar spent."

"As far as the bylaw is concerned it is not irrevocable, but the total amount of money involved this year is less than $1 per person."

"I have thought about this problem for many months and this at least is some action. History will show the profit of this measure and I don't think future councils will be less responsible," Ald. Margaret

Robertson agreed with him and said, "I think $8,000 for this purpose is the minimum."

Mayor Donald Morton noted efforts will be made to find enough surplus money to put into the special fund although it will be difficult because "we are nearly at the end of the year."

In other business, Cameron Ostrom of Arbutus Point, Maple Bay, will be informed council will be able to supply water in that area if he is prepared to foot the bill for a municipal water line under a local improvement scheme.

Mr. Ostrom said that in the past his house was supplied by a private line from French Spring, "which has been put out of business by the B.C. Hydro tractors."

He said, "As we are the only users of the existing line from French Spring, it could be tapped and a meter installed to alleviate our dire need for water."

Second Thoughts Over Venture

Planes 'Danger' on Lake

NORTH COWICHAN — Opposition to the use of Quamichan Lake as a landing area for commercial float planes has come from some residents of the lake.

And Duncan Kinsmen, who had considered allowing landing facilities at the lake's Kinsmen Park are having second thoughts about the venture.

Mrs. G. M. Graham, Miss D. E. Aylen and Miss Laylen, residents on the lake, told North Cowichan council Wednesday commercial aircraft landings would be dangerous because of the many people who use the lake for recreational purposes.

The proposal for landing facilities has been made to North Cowichan by Airwest Airlines.

Council told the three lake residents their objections would be taken into consideration when council makes a final decision, probably at the next general meeting.

Ald. Margaret Robertson, reporting on a recent Duncan Kinsmen meeting, said the club was having second thoughts about the airline proposal.

She said members are wondering if they have a moral or constitutional right to allow a commercial venture in the park. She said the club would like to donate the park to the municipality, but continue to carry out its development and maintenance.

Ald. Robertson pointed out the North Cowichan recreation commission also objected to the proposed commercial aircraft venture.

Ald. Gerry Smith said, "If they (Kinsmen) turn over the park I shall oppose a commercial airport at the lake because it would interfere with a recreational area." The problem will be discussed with the Kinsmen and the North Cowichan recreation commission.

Pitlamper Hit By $500 Fine

LAKE COWICHAN — Patrick Kourek, 21, of Lake Cowichan, was fined $500 in Lake Cowichan Provincial Court Monday for pitlampering.

Court was told that Lake Cowichan RCMP received a call at approximately 11:30 p.m. Sunday, reporting a gunshot. Police stopped accused after he threw a rifle out of his car. A deer was found in the back of the vehicle.

Beatle on Trip —Not Dead

LONDON (AP) — "I am alive and well and unconcerned about the rumors of my death," says Beatle Paul McCartney. "But if I were dead, I would be the last to know."

At least, that's what the Beatles' business organization Apple said he said. The millionaire pop musician was on a touring tour somewhere in England with his wife, two children and a dog and refused to let it be known where he could be found.

Apple said Wednesday that McCartney telephoned the denial of his demise to London on Tuesday night.

"Paul refuses to say anything more than that," said Derek Taylor, Apple's chief spokesman. "Even if he appeared in public just to deny rumors it wouldn't do any good. If people want to believe he's dead, then they'll believe it—the truth is not at all persuasive."

Apple and news media have been flooded with telephone calls, cables and letters about rumors in North America that McCartney has been dead for years.

"They are all ridiculous," Apple said.

"It's a lot of nonsense," said fellow Beatle John Lennon.

The rumors are too stupid to bother denying, said George Harrison, another member of the famed quartet.

Beatle drummer Ringo Starr could not be reached for comment.

The rumors claim the Beatles have been dropping clues since 1966 about McCartney's supposed death.

A disc jockey for a Detroit radio station claimed to have assembled numerous clues.

A record-spinner in New York was pulled off the air for re-

counting the rumors that brought a flood of telephone calls from Beatles fans and jammed the radio station's switchboard.

Most of the clues supposedly appeared on Beatles album jackets.

The cover of the Beatles' Magical Mystery Tour album is supposed to disclose a phone number in London, which, when dialed, answers: "Paul McCartney is dead." The number is 231-7436. No such number exists on the London telephone exchange.

Another supposed hint was the license number of a car in the picture on the cover of Abbey Road, the group's latest album. The license plate was said to bear the characters "28 IF," interpreted by some to mean that if McCartney were alive, he would be 28 years old.

McCartney was born June 18, 1942, which makes him 27, not 28, and the license plate is "28 F" with the 1 a figure, not a letter.

Iain MacMillan, the photographer who took the picture for the album, said the car "just happened to be standing there; it had been left by someone on holiday—nobody with any connection with the Beatles—and a policeman tried to move it away for us, but he couldn't."

In the same photo, McCartney's feet are bare, which to some is another sign of death.

"It was a hot day and he just took his shoes off and left them on the sidewalk," said MacMillan. "It didn't seem symbolic to me."

On the cover of the album Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, the Beatles are wearing uniforms, and McCartney has an emblem on the sleeve saying "OPD," which some interpret to mean "officially pronounced dead." The uniforms, complete with the badge on McCartney's sleeve, were rented from a costume shop, worn for the picture and returned.

Polish Pianist Fails to Inject Color

By BILL THOMAS

The Polish pianist Witold Malcuzyński was heard in recital Wednesday by a near-capacity audience at the McPherson Playhouse.

He offered a technically flawless performance that was quite colorless. The program of romantic music by Liszt and Chopin was beautifully performed, but at no time, for me, was there any feeling of emotional involvement with the music.

It could be that Malcuzyński has been playing this type of music for too long and that he has become typed with Liszt and Chopin to the point where he has become bored with the music. This could be a totally inaccurate impression, but it is the one he left with me.

The Liszt variations on a theme by J. S. Bach opened the program and set the tone for the rest of the evening.

He went up and down the keyboard with more pounding than poetry, but it must have been the spectacular that the audience wanted, for the offering was roundly applauded.

If the program offered a test piece that called for any depth and interpretation, it must have been the second item on the program, the Chopin sonata in B Minor.

Malcuzyński went through the four movements with style and elegance but failed to inject color into even the gentle largo. It was a great pity, for this work can be a vehicle for great emotional contact with any audience. Here again the play-

Baby Bars Jail Stay

A 33-year-old mother of four was told Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court that she would have been held in jail pending the preparation of her probation report if it weren't for her one-month-old baby.

"She deserves to stay in jail, but I think one must view the interest of a baby as transcending the interest of the public," Judge William Ostler said.

Larue Bongard of Lake Cowichan had pleaded guilty to seven charges of false pretences.

Court was told Mrs. Bongard had obtained cash and goods valued at approximately $280 by issuing worthless cheques to Victoria food and department stores.

The offences had taken place over a period of three months, court was told.

She was remanded for sentence until Nov. 4.

William R. Giles, 19, of 670 Strand Road, was fined $35 for possession of liquor at Esquimalt Lagoon. Giles had pleaded guilty to the charge.

Timothy B. Hodgetts, 30, of 580 Ledham Road, was fined $20 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing liquor.

"Yes, I have something to say, your honor," said William M. Cosgrave, 20, of no fixed address.

"I have spent two weeks in jail, waiting for my probation report, and I have found out that it's definitely not the place for me."

Cosgrave had pleaded guilty to a charge of theft under $50. Court was told at an earlier hearing that he had stolen a transistor radio from a parked car on Yates.

Two citizens observed the accused and managed to hold him until the police arrived.

I think my short stay in jail has changed my entire outlook on life," said Cosgrave.

He was fined $50 by Judge Ostler.

Vanished Complainant Ordered to Pay Costs

A woman who first laid a charge of common assault against a Victoria man and then didn't show up for the trial in Victoria Provincial Court was ordered Wednesday to pay $35 or face a jail term of two weeks.

The order was made after a charge of common assault against Wesley Anderson of Suite 1, 41 Toronto Street, had been dismissed because the complainant didn't appear in court.

Rosina Green of Suite 2, 41 Toronto, swore the information against Mr. Anderson about a month ago. Mr. Anderson pleaded not guilty at the time and was remanded for trial until Wednesday.

"The Crown's witness has not appeared, your honor, and I have no evidence," Prosecutor Cory Stoltz said.

He told court the informant had moved away from her former address, and no summons could be issued.

"If you can show me how I can make this woman pay, I'll gladly do it," Judge William Ostler said, turning to Dermot Owen-Flood, defence counsel for Mr. Anderson.

Mr. Owen-Flood was able to supply the necessary information, and the order for payment of costs to Mr. Anderson was made.

"This practice must be stopped," Judge Ostler said.

"These people lay an information, and then they haven't even enough interest in the case to show up in court or advise the court of their new address."

He said it was unfortunate that Mr. Anderson had to go through all the trouble of hiring a lawyer and calling his witnesses.

Bank Robbed Inside Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Five hooded bandits carrying revolvers and walkie-talkies hit a downtown bank from the inside Wednesday and escaped with about $100,000.

Police and security guards said they are still trying to find out how the bandits got into the Provincial Bank of Canada branch before it opened for business. They may have been hiding in the basement.

Police Hunted Right to Brazil News from Clubs, Societies

TORONTO (CP) — Pains-taking, step-by-step investigation, through more than 500 lines of inquiry that stretched as far as Brazil, led police Wednesday to what they said was the solution to the slaying of a Toronto policeman.

Charged with capital murder was Vincenzo Fazzari, 22-year-old laborer who came to Toronto three years ago from the Reggio district of Italy. In court, he was remanded to Oct. 30 for preliminary hearing.

Held as material witnesses and remanded in custody until Oct. 28 were Dee James, 25, of Toronto, and Joseph Maye, 34, of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Constable David Goldsworthy, 26, was shot three times and severely beaten the night of Oct. 5 while he was on solitary patrol in a lonely industrial area of northern Metropolitan Toronto. He was believed to have been investigating a factory burglary.

His body was found early Oct. 6 in a field, not far from where his patrol car had been left with its lights on and engine running.

The constable's revolver was missing but beside the body was a notebook. In it, apparently freshly written, were the names Betty and Jeffrey, his wife and two-year-old son, "thank you," a man's name and "black goatee."

Police said the break in the case came 10 days ago when the owner of a restaurant five miles from the scene of the slaying checked a faulty toilet. In the tank he found a revolver, a Brazilian-made copy of a Smith and Wesson. Part of the mechanism was missing and a part had to be ordered from Detroit before the weapon could be fired for ballistic tests.

Through the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the revolver was traced from a factory in Brazil to Miami, then into Alabama and several east-coast states to a town in northern New York.

Early Wednesday, 20 detectives surrounded a house in a Toronto suburb. Fazzari was arrested in a bedroom without resistance.

Sentence Next Monday

Ralph Dale Gardner, 25, of 1825 Miles, who was to have been sentenced Wednesday in Supreme Court for dangerous driving, will be sentenced Monday.

Gardner was convicted Monday by a 12-man jury which had reduced the charge to dangerous driving from criminal negligence causing the death Aug. 13 of Brian Modeste of 1877 Modeste.

Two Driving Charges

Fines Total $1,250 for Sailor

A 19-year-old sailor was fined $1,250 Wednesday after a jury of one woman and 11 men found him guilty in Supreme Court of dangerous driving and driving while impaired.

Warren Green of CFB Esquimalt stood at attention in the prisoner's dock as Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton pronounced sentence.

"In time of war, you are the men who give us protection at home," Mrs. Justice Wootton said. "You are a young man of previous good character with every opportunity of being useful to your country, and with that in mind, I shall not send you to jail."

He imposed fines totalling $1,250 — $750 for dangerous driving and $500 for impaired driving. He also prohibited Green from driving anywhere in Canada for three years.

Court was told the fines would be deducted from Green's pay at the rate of $100 a month.

Mr. Justice Wootton said Green would be liable to six months' imprisonment if he failed to pay the fines.

"I hope you become a good sailor and never get into this kind of trouble again," he said.

Green was originally charged with criminal negligence causing the death of Verda Lynne Fawns, 19, of 441 Thetis Crescent. She was killed in a two-car collision on the Old Island Highway shortly after midnight on March 3.

The jury found Green not guilty of criminal negligence but guilty of dangerous driving and impaired driving.

VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1969

MOUNTIES TO COMB OSLAND FILE

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL

Two top-flight RCMP homicide investigators have been brought in to assist Victoria and Saanich police in their eight-month-old search for the murderer of William Osland.

Victoria Police Chief John Gregory announced his request for outside help at a press conference Wednesday, following an earlier meeting between himself, Mayor Hugh Stephen and Deputy Attorney-General Gilbert Kennedy.

"Far from being concluded," said Chief Gregory of the investigation into the death of the 35-year-old businessman who disappeared Feb. 3 and whose body was discovered 22 days later wrapped in a plastic sheet at the bottom of Victoria Harbor.

"A completely fresh approach," said the chief, will be taken by the two "highly qualified" RCMP officers.

"This team will examine all the evidence already collected and statements obtained. They may even talk to previously questioned persons."

Both men, in their late 30s, were described by RCMP Superintendent Harold Price as "very experienced" in the investigation of murders.

They are Inspector R. H. Simmonds of the Burnaby RCMP detachment and Sgt. E. L. Naaykens of Kamloops, formerly with the force's Criminal Investigations Branch.

Supt. Price said he was instructed by the attorney-general's department to "handpick two top investigators" to look into the Osland case. Without giving any names, Chief Gregory at the press conference in his office indicated that at least one of the people already questioned knew something about the murder.

"Certainly somebody on the ship knew something about it," said the chief, referring to the Robert M. Emery, an old U.S. vessel being converted in Victoria at the time of the murder for use in San Francisco as a restaurant-display ship. Police questioned numerous people known to have been on board the Robert M. Emery on Feb. 3, the day Mr. Osland disappeared. The ship left under tow Feb. 5, in San Francisco, its name was changed to the Ss. Tarantino, and five more people were questioned and the ship carefully inspected when Victoria and Saanich police visited the ship's new port.

Mr. Osland, lawyer David Hummel and contractor Siegfried Marquardt were partners in Diversified Management and Development, which operated a dozen companies and was carrying out the conversion of the display ship.

At 1:30 p.m. Feb. 3, Mr. Osland told his secretary, Mrs. Conny Yasyszczuk, that he was going to the ship and then to the Red Lion Inn. He left the office at 1106 Cook. According to testimony at a coroner's inquest, which ruled Osland's fate to be murder, Mrs. Yasyszczuk was the last known person to see Osland alive.

On Feb. 26, navy divers entered the Inner Harbor and promptly brought up Mr. Osland's body. It had been wrapped in a plastic sheet, tied with quarter-inch rope and weighted down with a 150-pound valve flange.

Mr. Osland died from three crushing blows to the head. His ankles and wrists were bruised, apparently before Continued on Page 7

Truscott's Time Up

Truscott

Street, however, refused to say when the release took place and said it took place under an assumed name.

Truscott, now 24, has been the centre of a lengthy dispute since his conviction for murder at the age of 14.

"I don't think he (Truscott) could survive with every newspaper in the country hounding him," Street said. An official statement will be issued this morning he added.

ELIGIBLE IN JUNE

Truscott was eligible for parole in June of this year. Prison and parole authorities have expressed the hope that Truscott could be paroled quietly and without publicity.

Truscott became the youngest person to be sentenced to hang after he was convicted in 1959 in the rape-slaying of 12-year-old Lynne Harper, near the air force station at Trenton, Ont. The youth has steadfastly denied his guilt.

NATION AROUSED

The imposition of the death sentence on such a young person aroused national indignation. A few months after the conviction, the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

A reconstruction of the youth's trial formed the basis of a book by Toronto writer Isabel Lebourdais. The book, The Truscott Case, rearoused the Continued on Page 2

Spy Charge

Czechs Free B.C. Man

PRAGUE (Reuters) — A Czechoslovak-born Canadian citizen, Rudolph Holata, detained by Czechoslovak security police since last January on a charge of spying for Britain, has been released from prison, Canadian embassy officials reported Wednesday night.

The doors of Limerick Prison opened to Holata, 47-year-old employee of the Canadian transport ministry at Vancouver airport, and he took a local bus to Prague where he telephoned the Canadian embassy.

Holata originally left Czechoslovakia in 1951. He admitted at his trial that he returned to spy for Britain a few months later on a promise by British intelligence that he would receive forged documents to bring out his wife as well.

In North Vancouver, Mrs. Holata, told of the news by a reporter, said: "That's wonderful that's wonderful. I'm over- come. This is so sudden."

Ship Afire, All Safe

LONDON (Reuters) — All 10 passengers and 19 of the crew of the cargo liner Loch Loyal were picked up Wednesday night by two West German vessels after fire broke out aboard the British ship off the Azores.

The remainder of the 58-man crew have stayed on board the 10,405-ton liner and are in no danger, the Royal Mail Line spokesman said.

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — With Conservative and Creditist support, the Liberal government is going to put the controversial Company of Young Canadians through a parliamentary committee investigation.

Just-ended session produces "innovation and reform." Page 37

Only the New Democrats object.

The decision to probe the company was the first government decision announced Wednesday when the Commons reopened to prorogue the last session of Parliament and set the stage for the new. Making the announcement, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier made it quite plain that the investigation was required because of charges by "usually responsible sources" that the Young Canadians had been used "to cover the furtherance of subversive activities."

The most recent authorities to make this accusation were the municipal leaders of Montreal who called on the federal government for a royal commission investigation following the looting, shooting and fire-bombing that savaged the city streets during the 16-hour police strike.

Leaders of other cities and towns across Quebec have fallen into line behind Montreal. Objections to the pattern of protest and dissent that the company has followed since its founding by former prime minister Lester Pearson three years ago, have come from many other sections of the country, especially the west.

The company welcomes the opportunity "to confront our accusers before a parliamentary committee."

Closed-Door Discussion

By IAN STREET

The economic aftermath of an American withdrawal from Vietnam and the closing of British military installations in Southeast Asia were discussed behind closed doors at the Colombo Plan conference Wednesday.

Secretary-General John Hadwen said later that most delegates on the economic review committee felt the effects of the military withdrawals upon the economy of the region had been "somewhat over-estimated."

However, George Rosen, chief economist for the Asian Development Bank, who is attending the conference as an observer, said some Southeast Asian countries were worried enough to have requested a full-scale economic review.

"We have been asked by the Council of Ministers of Southeast Asian countries to conduct a look ahead at some of the problems and longer-term trends in the region that could result from the possible end of hostilities in Vietnam and the British military withdrawal from Singapore and Asia," he said.

The economic study will be conducted by the Asian Development Bank and the final report should be complete by June, 1970.

Mr. Rosen said it was expected that the end of the Vietnam war would create "a shock effect" in the region, but added that the countries concerned "think they may be able to absorb it—particularly if there is an aid increase." If however, the American and British withdrawals are phased so they "tail off very gradually," he added, it was Continued on Page 2

Who Made No-Standing Bar Rule?

Chairman Didn't Stay in Chair

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chairman of the British Columbia Liquor Inquiry Commission said Wednesday he personally tested the no-standing and drink regulation enforced in the province's beverage rooms and was ordered to sit. County Court Judge C. W. Morrow said he was ordered to sit down when he visited the Devonshire Hotel beverage room and Hotel Georgia cocktail bar in Vancouver Tuesday night. He added: "I'm not sure who is responsible for the no-standing regulation, the B.C. Hotels' Association or the Liquor Control Board."

In the Devonshire Public House, which was quite crowded," he was served a glass of beer without ordering it.

He said the waiter looked "shocked" when he started a table hop.

"You should let me carry your drink for you," he quoted the waiter as saying. The judge was travelling incognito.

From the waiter he eventually came to the attention of the manager who advised the judge the no-standing rule was worked out by the B.C. Hotels Association.

Judge Morrow said he concluded from this (the no-standing bar) was not a Liquor Act provision, but changed his mind when he tried a glass-in-hand table hop at the Georgia lounge.

"The waiter said it was against the law."

Here the judge dropped his incognito cloak and was then told it was a house rule.

Boyd Farris, counsel for the Hotels Association, says he's going to ask the LCB for the answers.

Education, Business Links Sought

Teacher: "Businessmen think the whole function of a school system is to produce people tailored to their needs."

Businessman: "Teachers have spent so long in the classroom that they have no understanding of the economics fact of life."

Reconciling the traditional misunderstandings of these two groups is the aim of an experiment in communication being planned for Nov. 7 in Nanaimo's Shoreline Hotel.

The business-Education Co-operation Conference will be one of the first of a series across the province, organized by the B.C. Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with local teachers' associations.

CHIEF ORGANIZER

The Chamber's chief organizer is Frank Belinder of Trail, immediate past-president of the B.C. School Trustees' Association. Nanaimo co-ordinator is publisher C. W. Ramsden.

Educators and businessmen will spend the day getting to know each other as people, airing and explaining pet peeves, and hopefully, coming to understand each other better.

"We will have no part in a smooth talk campaign to win teachers," says Mr. Belinder in a statement announcing the program.

"We want to examine honestly and objectively an important relationship."

EDUCATION PROCESS

"We want to find out the areas in which the businessman, with all the facilities of plant and office at his disposal, can assist the educational process and the people who accept responsibility for it."

"We hope that, in return, we can engender some understanding of the fact that business is as fraught with problems as is education."

"It's an exercise in honesty and goodwill and if we all treat it in that light we're bound to improve something."

Molvo Lake

Work Proceeds Through Winter

CAMPBELL RIVER — Molvo Lake development will continue during the autumn and winter, Campbell River parks director John Snook said recently.

The project involves construction of camp sites, enlarging beach and picnic areas, construction of public washrooms, grading and levelling a parking area.

The area involved, on the eastern end of Molvo Lake, has been a popular spot for picnics, swimming and water-skiing since a beach and parking area were cleared there four years ago by the Lions club.

It has also been the target of considerable vandalism.

Club members and municipal employees had found it almost impossible to keep the beach free of litter and broken glass and to keep the tables and garbage cans from being destroyed, he said.

COMMUNITY HALL

In a report to aldermen, Mr. Snook also said that improvements were being made to the community hall. The floor had been sanded and refinished, and the front of the building would be finished in rough cedar siding and painted. A new stage was also being added. It was a portable one in two parts.

Weather and bad drainage have slowed work on the two new tennis courts in Centennial Park.

After grading and levelling the area, an underground spring was found and a drainage system had to be added, he said. Construction of fencing around the courts would proceed as soon as blacktopping had been completed.

Crib Hand Perfect

CAMPBELL RIVER — Dave Warner drew the cribbage player's dream last week — a 28 hand.

He was playing with Don McAuley, Bill Jessel and Jack McFadden during a lunch break at Elk Falls Company mill where he is employed as a storeman. He was dealt three fives and the Jack of spades and turned up the five of spades.

Duncan Driver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver newspaper seller Jacob Friesen, 74, died in hospital Tuesday from injuries suffered when he was struck by a car Monday night.

The car was driven by Camille August Hemeroyck of Duncan, police said.

Baby Bars Jail Stay

A 33-year-old mother of four was told Wednesday in Victoria Provincial Court that she would have been held in jail pending the preparation of her probation report if it weren't for her one-month-old baby.

"She deserves to stay in jail, but I think one must view the interest of a baby as transcending the interest of the public," Judge William Ostler said.

Larue Bongard of Lake Cowichan had pleaded guilty to seven charges of false pretences.

Court was told Mrs. Bongard had obtained cash and goods valued at approximately $200 by issuing worthless cheques to Victoria food and department stores.

The offences had taken place over a period of three months, court was told.

She was remanded for sentence until Nov. 4.

William R. Giles, 19, of 670 Strandlund, was fined $25 for possession of liquor at Esquimalt Lagoon. Giles had pleaded guilty to the charge.

Timothy B. Hodgetts, 20, of 580 Ledham Road, was fined $20 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing liquor.

"Yes, I have something to say, your honor," said William M. Cosgrave, 20, of no fixed address.

"I have spent two weeks in jail, waiting for my probation report, and I have found out that it's definitely not the place for me."

Cosgrave had pleaded guilty to a charge of theft under $50. Court was told at an earlier hearing that he had stolen a transistor radio from a parked car on Yates.

Two citizens observed the accused and managed to hold him until the police arrived.

I think my short stay in jail has changed my entire outlook on life," said Cosgrave.

He was fined $50 by Judge Ostler.

Vanished Complainant Ordered to Pay Costs

A woman who first laid a charge of common assault against a Victoria man and then didn't show up for the trial in Victoria Provincial Court was ordered Wednesday to pay $35 or face a jail term of two weeks.

The order was made after a charge of common assault against Wesley Anderson of Suite 1, 41 Toronto Street, had been dismissed because the complainant didn't appear in court.

Rosina Green of Suite 2, 41 Toronto, swore the information against Mr. Anderson about a month ago. Mr. Anderson pleaded not guilty at the time and was remanded for trial until Wednesday.

"The Crown's witness has not appeared, your honor, and I have no evidence," Prosecutor Cory Stoke said.

He told court the informant had moved away from her former address, and no summons could be issued.

"If you can show me how I can make this woman pay, I'll gladly do it," Judge William Ostler said, turning to Dermot Owen-Flood, defence counsel for Mr. Anderson.

Mr. Owen-Flood was able to supply the necessary information, and the order for payment of costs to Mr. Anderson was made.

"This practice must be stopped," Judge Ostler said.

"These people lay an information, and then they haven't even enough interest in the case to show up in court or advise the

He said it was unfortunate that Mr. Anderson had to go through all the trouble of hiring a lawyer and calling his witnesses.

Bank Robbed Inside Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Five hooded bandits carrying revolvers and walkie-talkies hit a downtown bank from the inside Wednesday and escaped with about $100,000.

Police and security guards said they are still trying to find out how the bandits got into the Provincial Bank of Canada branch before it opened for business. They may have been hiding in the basement.

Toronto Murder Arrests

Police Hunted Right to Brazil News from Clubs, Societies

TORONTO (CP) — Painstaking, step-by-step investigation, through more than 500 lines of inquiry that stretched as far as Brazil, led police Wednesday to what they said was the solution to the slaying of a Toronto policeman.

Charged with capital murder was Vincenzo Fazzari, 22-year-old laborer who came to Toronto three years ago from the Reggio district of Italy. In court, he was remanded to Oct. 30 for preliminary hearing.

Held as material witnesses and remanded in custody until Oct. 28 were Dee James, 25, of Toronto, and Joseph Maye, 34, of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Constable David Goldworthy, 26, was shot three times and severely beaten the night of Oct. 5 while he was on solitary patrol in a lonely industrial area of northern metropolitan Toronto. He was believed to have been investigating a factory burglary.

His body was found early Oct. 6 in a field, not far from where his patrol car had been left with its lights on and engine running.

The constable's revolver was missing but beside the body was a notebook. In it, apparently freshly written, were the names Betty and Jeffrey, his wife and two-year-old son, "thank you," a man's name and "black goatee."

Police said the break in the case came 10 days ago when the owner of a restaurant five miles from the scene of the slaying checked a faulty toilet. In the tank he found a revolver, a Brazilian-made copy of a Smith and Wesson. Part of the mechanism was missing and a part had to be ordered from Detroit before the weapon could be fired for ballistic tests.

Through the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the revolver was traced from a factory in Brazil to Miami, then into Alabama and several east-coast states to a town in northern New York.

Early Wednesday, 20 detectives surrounded a house in a Toronto suburb. Fazzari was arrested in a bedroom without resistance.

James, who worked with Fazzari at a west end cement plant, was arrested on his way home from work Tuesday. Maye was taken into custody later at his Niagara Falls home.

Sentence Next Monday

Ralph Dale Gardner, 38, of 1825 Miles, who was to have been sentenced Wednesday in Supreme Court for dangerous driving, will be sentenced Monday.

Gardner was convicted Monday by a 12-man jury which had reduced the charge to dangerous driving from criminal negligence causing the death Aug. 18 of Brian Modeste of 1071 Modeste.

MOUNTIES TO COMB OSLAND FILE

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL

Two top-flight RCMP homicide investigators have been brought in to assist Victoria and Saanich police in their eight-month-old search for the murderer of William Osland.

Victoria Police Chief John Gregory announced his request for outside help at a press conference Wednesday, following an earlier meeting between himself, Mayor Hugh Stephen and Deputy Attorney-General Gilbert Kennedy.

"Far from being concluded," said Chief Gregory of the investigation into the death of the 35-year-old businessman who disappeared Feb. 3 and whose body was discovered 22 days later wrapped in a plastic sheet at the bottom of Victoria Harbor.

"A completely fresh approach," said the chief, will be taken by the two "highly qualified" RCMP officers.

"This team will examine all the evidence already collected and statements obtained. They may even talk to previously questioned persons."

Both men, in their late 30s, were described by RCMP Superintendent Harold Price as "very experienced" in the investigation of murders.

They are Inspector R. H. Simmonds of the Burnaby RCMP detachment and Sgt. E. L. Naaykens of Kamloops, formerly with the force's Criminal Investigations Branch.

Supt. Price said he was instructed by the attorney-general's department to "handpick two top investigators" to look into the Osland case.

Without giving any names, Chief Gregory at the press conference in his office indicated that at least one of the people already questioned knew something about the murder.

"Certainly somebody on the ship knew something about it," said the chief, referring to the Robert M. Emery, an old U.S. vessel being converted in Victoria at the time of the murder for use in San Francisco as a restaurant-display ship.

Police questioned numerous people known to have been on board the Robert M. Emery on Feb. 3, the day Mr. Osland disappeared. The ship left under tow Feb. 5. In San Francisco, its name was changed to the Ss. Tarantino, and five more people were questioned and the ship carefully inspected when Victoria and Saanich police visited the ship's new port.

Mr. Osland, lawyer David Hummel and contractor Siegfried Marquardt were partners in Diversified Management and Development, which operated a dozen companies and was carrying out the conversion of the display ship.

At 1:30 p.m. Feb. 3, Mr. Osland told his secretary, Mrs. Conny Yasyszczuk, that he was going to the ship and then to the Red Lion Inn. He left the office at 1106 Cook. According to testimony at a coroner's inquest, which ruled Osland's fate to be murder, Mrs. Yasyszczuk was the last known person to see Osland alive.

On Feb. 26, navy divers entered the Inner Harbor and promptly brought up Mr. Osland's body. It had been wrapped in a plastic sheet, tied with quarter-inch rope and weighted down with a 150-pound valve flange.

Mr. Osland died from three crushing blows to the head. His ankles and wrists were bruised, apparently before Continued on Page 7

Paroled, In Hiding

Truscott's Time Up

OTTAWA (UPI) — Steven Truscott has been released from Collins Bay penitentiary, George Street, chairman of the National Parole Board, confirmed late Wednesday in Ottawa.

Truscott

Street, however, refused to say when the release took place and said it took place under an assumed name.

Truscott, now 24, has been the centre of a lengthy dispute since his conviction for murder at the age of 14.

"I don't think he (Truscott) could survive with every newspaper in the country hounding him," Street said. An official statement will be issued this morning he added.

ELIGIBLE IN JUNE

Truscott was eligible for parole in June of this year. Prison and parole authorities have expressed the hope that Truscott could be paroled quietly and without publicity.

Truscott became the youngest person to be sentenced to hang after he was convicted in 1959 in the rape-slaying of 12-year-old Lynne Harper, near the air force station at Trenton, Ont. The youth has steadfastly denied his guilt.

NATION AROUSED

The imposition of the death sentence on such a young person aroused national indignation. A few months after the conviction, the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

A reconstruction of the youth's trial formed the basis of a book by Toronto writer Isabel Lebourdais. The book, The Truscott Case, rearoused the Continued on Page 2

House to Probe Young Helpers

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — With Conservative and Creditiste support, the Liberal government is going to put the controversial Company of Young Canadians through a parliamentary committee investigation.

Only the New Democrats object.

The decision to probe the company was the first government decision announced Wednesday when the Commons reopened to prorogue the last session of Parliament and set the stage for the new.

Making the announcement, State Secretary Gerard Pelletier made it quite plain that the investigation was required because of charges by "usually responsible sources" that the Young Canadians had been used "to cover the furtherance of subversive activities."

Lebanon Premier Quits Over Fights

From CP

Lebanese Premier Rashid Karami resigned Wednesday after bloody clashes between the Lebanese army and Palestinian guerrillas. The fighting unleashed a storm of protest at home and abroad and brought threats from other Arab countries.

Iraq offered the guerrillas military aid. Syria closed its border with Lebanon. Libya recalled its ambassador, and Algeria threatened to break diplomatic relations with Lebanon.

Thousands of Arabs demonstrated in the streets of Beirut. Elsewhere in the Middle East, there were these developments:

● The Middle East news agency reported from Damascus, Syria, that Israeli forces invaded Lebanese territory and occupied the southern village of Kafr Kala on Wednesday night.

● In Israel, four bombs rocked a residential area of Haifa, killing one person and injuring 12. Arab guerrillas were blamed. Another Israeli was killed in a later blast.

● The Egyptian military command said a number of Israeli jet aircraft tried to bomb Egyptian military positions along the Suez canal Wednesday but were driven off by anti-aircraft fire.

Unsound Pollution Solution

Overcoming air pollution remains major problem lacking real action — but something can be done about noise pollution. These young motorists took signs literally and sneaked car through Edmonton quiet zone unnoticed by patients. Now, if they all wore rubber-soled shoes . . . —(CP)

Closed-Door Discussion

By IAN STREET

The economic aftermath of an American withdrawal from Vietnam and the closing of British military installations in Southeast Asia were discussed behind closed doors at the Colombo Plan conference Wednesday.

Secretary-General John Haden said later that most delegates on the economic review committee felt the effects of the military withdrawals upon the economy of the region had been "somewhat over-estimated."

However, George Rosen, chief economist for the Asian Development Bank, who is attending the conference as an observer, said some Southeast Asian countries were worried enough to have requested a full-scale economic review.

"We have been asked by the Council of Ministers of Southeast Asian countries to conduct a look ahead at some of the problems and longer-term trends in the region that could result from the possible end of hostilities in Vietnam and the British military withdrawal from Singapore and Asia," he said.

The economic study will be conducted by the Asian Development Bank and the final report should be complete by June, 1970.

Mr. Rosen said it was expected that the end of the Vietnam war would create "a shock effect" in the region, but added that the countries concerned "think they may be able to absorb it—particularly if there is an aid increase."

If however, the American and British withdrawals are phased so they "tail off very gradually," he added, it was Continued on Page 2

Spy Charge

Czechs Free B.C. Man

PRAGUE (Reuters) — A Czechoslovak-born Canadian citizen, Rudolf Holata, detained by Czechoslovak security police since last January on a charge of spying for Britain, has been released from prison, Canadian embassy officials reported Wednesday night.

The doors of Likomerice Prison opened to Holata, 47-year-old employee of the Canadian transport ministry at Vancouver airport, and he took a local bus to Prague where he telephoned the Canadian embassy.

Holata originally left Czechoslovakia in 1951. He admitted at his trial that he returned to spy for Britain a few months later on a promise by British intelligence that he would receive forged documents to bring out his wife as well.

In North Vancouver, Mrs. Holata, told of the news by a reporter, said: "That's wonderful that's wonderful. I'm over- come. This is so sudden."

Ship Afire, All Safe

LONDON (Reuters) — All 10 passengers and 19 of the crew of the cargo liner Loch Loyal were picked up Wednesday night by two West German vessels after fire broke out aboard the British ship off the Azores. The remainder of the 58-man crew have stayed on board the 10,405-ton liner and are in no danger, the Royal Mail Line spokesman said.

Who Made No-Standing Bar Rule?

Chairman Didn't Stay in Chair

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chairman of the British Columbia Liquor Inquiry Commission said Wednesday he personally tested the no-standing-and-drink regulation enforced in the province's beverage rooms and was ordered to sit. County Court Judge C. W. Morrow said he was ordered to sit down when he visited the Devonshire Hotel beverage room and Hotel Georgia cocktail bar in Vancouver Tuesday night. He added: "I'm not sure who is responsible for the no-standing regulation, the B.C. Hotels' Association or the Liquor Control Board."

In the Devonshire Public House, which was quite crowded," he was served a glass of beer without ordering it.

He said the waiter looked "shocked" when he started a table top. "You should let me carry your drink for you," he quoted the waiter as saying.

The judge was travelling incognito.

From the waiter he eventually came to the attention of the manager who advised the judge the no-standing rule was worked out by the B.C. Hotels Association.

Judge Morrow said he concluded from this (the no-standing bar) was not a Liquor Act provision, but changed his mind when he tried a glass-in-hand table hop at the Georgia lounge.

"The waiter said it was against the law,"

Here the judge dropped his incognito cloak and was then told it was a house rule. Boyd Farris, counsel for the Hotels' Association, says he's going to ask the LCB for the answers.

W. J. Brown, right, helps New Zealand delegate Graham Fortune.

'All Problems Must Be Solved Yesterday'

By CLEMENT CHAPPEL

"When a problem comes up, it has to be solved yesterday."

This wry comment comes from Nat Burden, a former RCAF wing commander whose official title is deputy secretary-general, operations, of the Colombo Plan conference currently polishing Victoria's sector of the Pacific Rim.

Casting about for ways to fill his retirement years, Mr. Burden filled out a public service application form in Ottawa and wound up with signing powers on a $500,000 blank cheque from the treasury board.

Early Example

His job: to organize the soup-to-nuts operations of a full-scale international conference.

At the time he was hired — September, 1968 — Mr. Burden had no idea that he, and the Colombo Plan conference, would end up in the retirement-years city ne plus ultra, which, by the way, presented the first instance of how soon problems had to be solved.

He suddenly found out that hotels customarily insist on two years' advance notice of a conference this size. Since the final decision to come to Victoria was made only last February, Mr. Burden thought he would have to solve the accommodation problem more than a year before he knew where it was going to take place.

However, the importance of the Colombo Plan has its way, the Empress did a little "juggling," says Mr. Burden, and the way was opened for Victoria to welcome the most cosmopolitan conference of its conference career.

Meanwhile, Mr. Burden was the sole member of the conference secretariat; just him and a large organizational chart with more than 100 blank spaces.

To start with, Mr. Burden travelled to South Korea, where the 1968 conference was held. In bare terms, he had to copy the show put on by the Korean government, sometimes referring to other conferences, notably the 1967 edition in Japan.

In Korea, he noted, there were dozens of students, more than willing to offer their services free of charge as hosts and aides. Every last one of their Canadian counterparts are on full salary, from locally hired stenographers (about 50) to advisers, clerks, assistants and information officers (about 10) borrowed from federal departments in Ottawa.

Electronics

Visitors to the main conference room—legislative chamber of the parliament buildings—will notice a great bank of electronic equipment set in the northeast corner. This provides the channels for the complex simultaneous translation and speech recording necessary to the conference.

Borrowed from the armed forces, and operated by forces men, it functions well enough but doesn't match up in terms of modernity to the Japanese system used in 1967. At that conference, Japanese industry just handed over a full set of translated equipment, only a fraction of the bulk of the older, tube-operated set that was the only one Mr. Burden could find in Canada big enough for the job.

While most delegates to the conference speak English, there are some French-speaking visitors from Vietnam and Cambodia.

Cogs Turning

Filling the blanks in his organization chart wasn't easy. Mr. Burden had to "beg, borrow and steal" people from every level and every department in the federal civil service. These people, on leaves lasting about five weeks, have so far succeeded in turning the cogs in Mr. Burden's instant administration.

Have there been any foul-ups? None of a "major" character, he says. "It's the detail that kills you." Is there enough paper in this office? Enough water-jugs in that conference room? Is there water in the jugs? Are there washrooms available?

What couldn't be predicted was the peculiarity of wishes and needs of people from Eastern cultures. Mr. Burden was able to warn the Empress—where the 160 delegates are billeted—that there would be an increase in demand for Oriental dishes, as well as purely vegetarian diets. And Victoria's Chinese restaurants have had new customers lately.

Beer Cheaper

Victoria's regular tourist amenities are ready and waiting for requests—one delegate caught a 16-pound salmon. But other requests had to be turned down. Victoria just doesn't have that kind of night life.

Those with a taste for beer have been pleased to find it doesn't cost $1.20 a bottle, as it did in Korea. And security measures aren't even noticed.

able—quite the opposite from the conference last year, only 20 miles from the demilitarized zone dividing Korea.

Special consideration had to be given to the CBC international service, which writes, edits and sends out news stories for consumption in the 24 participating countries. The Canadian National Film Board is everywhere, pointing cameras and thrusting microphones, gathering material for Canada's cinematic culture bank.

Many Details

Quite separate from the main sessions of the conference in the Legislative chamber, there are working parties and committee sessions and a whole separate conference of information officers, who review each year the methods of distributing Colombo Plan information to those directly involved in carrying out the decisions made here.

Delegates are in demand as guest speakers at local club meetings and at schools. The secretariat has to arrange all this, and more.

The three-week conference is considered a long one of its type, and when it ends Oct. 31, the work will be far from done. About a week later, everybody will have left Victoria, and provincial civil servants will be back in their offices usurped by the conference.

Space Filled

Conference officials now occupy almost all the government offices that are normally used during the B.C. legislative session, as well as space in the just-completed archives buildings beside the provincial museum.

After that, the entire debriefing will take until February, with publication of the 20th annual report of the Colombo Plan. Then Mr. Burden will be looking for a new job.

Rugby Player Listed 'Poor'

University of Victoria rugby player Peter Cubie, 25, remains in poor condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital today following surgery for a blood clot Saturday. He collapsed after a game in Nanaimo and was rushed to hospital here.

Two Reminders Today

Did Victoria Forget Big Sports Festival?

By PAT MURPHY

When city council meets today it will receive two letters asking why something hasn't been done about Victoria's participation in British Columbia's big two-week festival of sports in the spring of 1970.

The letters will be from the provincial department of travel industry and the Victoria Visitors' Bureau.

John Buckley and R. E. Walker of the provincial department were present at a meeting of the bureau Wednesday to ask it to intercede with city council and try to get some action on the matter.

Mr. Walker said the deadline for participation in the festival was months ago, but an application would still be considered.

He added that more than 70 responses had been received from B.C. communities, and Vancouver and Victoria were the only holdouts.

What was wanted from Victoria was an indication that a viable organization would be formed, assurance that district facilities would be made available, and possible underwriting of the local aspects of the event.

Victoria's contribution would be repaid, Mr. Walker added, as all events were to be self-supporting.

At this point Ald. Percy Frampont and Ald. Thomas Christie, who were present at the meeting, said the whole thing was a complete surprise to them.

Mr. Walker said no letter had been written, but full-page newspaper advertisements had been taken in the spring to publicize the project and solicit municipal participation.

He added that two representatives of his department visited the mayor about a month ago and came away with the impression that something would be done.

If letters were written immediately, said Ald. Frampont, he would personally see they reached council today.

Mr. Buckley observed the event, which could be annual, promised great things for the tourist industry and particularly Victoria, which could use a shot in the arm in May, just before the summer season began.

Bureau directors adopted in principle a proposal that the slogan, "Follow the Birds to Vancouver Island . . . Canada's Island in the Pacific," be pushed.

Sam Lane told directors there was a tremendous resurgence of tourist traffic in the Pacific, and Vancouver Island's location on the Pacific Rim should be hammered home.

A proposal to buy the Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure for a small amount, will be carried to city council by Ald. Frampont.

At a recent bureau executive meeting, it was proposed the carrier, which will be withdrawn from service, be bought, stationed in the area and used as a museum.

"Haven't we got enough museums already?" asked director Bob Wright.

Mr. Lane, who was in charge of the cruise ship program stop over undertaken by the bureau this year, announced negotiations were in progress to have ships call more often and for longer visits.

One positive step had already been taken and the

Italy, which interrupted its tour during the summer for Victoria stopovers, totalling 223 hours, would stop for a total of 448 hours in 1970.

The directors passed a resolution of commendation and thanks for Mr. Lane's work on the action committee which handling the cruise ship stop-over program.

Directors discussed a proposal to hold a seminar during which ideas would be advanced and discussed by representatives from all branches of the tourist industry.

The hope was expressed that out of the meeting would come some sort of authoritative voice which could speak for the Greater Victoria tourist industry.

Aldermanic Runner

Army Career Background For Candidate

Alfred Hood Wednesday became the third candidate to declare he would run for an aldermanic seat on Victoria council in the December municipal election.

A retired army colonel, Mr. Hood said Wednesday he could offer the city experience in the audit field and personnel management and in the application of organizational principles gained in his final two service appointments.

Because he is retired he can devote full time to civic affairs, he said.

He said he would work to ensure efficient financial management of the city budget, and would be concerned, among other things, with the hospital situation and the plight of older citizens.

Mr. Hood now is one of three members on the Greater Victoria Library Board representing the city of Victoria and a member of the housing committee of the Bishop Orlidge Centre for the Family, formerly the B.C. Protestant Orphanage.

Mr. Hood was born in Victoria in 1912, and was raised here. He began his career with the provincial public works department and was working there as an auditor when his regiment was called up at the outbreak of war in 1939.

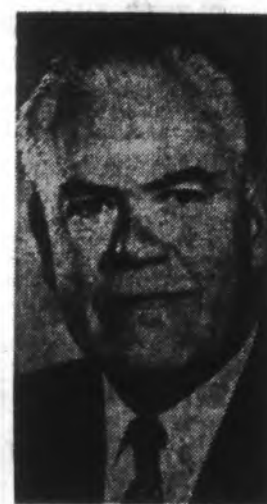

WIDE RANGING CAREER

He retired in 1965 with the rank of colonel after a military career that took him to England and Europe during the Second World War and after the war to India and Pakistan with the United Nations and to Poland as military attaché with the Canadian embassy.

Before retirement he was director of manpower control and management and director of organization in Ottawa during the initial phases of integration-unification.

He was administrative director of the Children's International Summer Village held in Victoria last July and August.

He was active in all sports in his younger days in Victoria, and is a member of the Royal Colwood Golf Club and the Victoria Men's Canadian Club.

Wheels Meals Cost Up

The cost of noon meals supplied by Meals on Wheels will rise from 50 to 60 cents Nov. 1, the committee announced Wednesday.

The new price will be set for all recipients but those who suffer financial hardship from it will get a 10-cent refund.

The committee decided this would be more acceptable than applying a form of means test.

The price increase is necessary because Goodwill Enterprises, which supplies the meals, is suffering severe financial loss. Each meal costs them 90 cents, and the loss since last March exceeded $7,000.

Could Be Verse

Earl's Keeping Rhyme Time

The Earl of Levy is conducting a limerick contest from his small house perched under the clock in the Mayfair shopping centre.

The Earl has been there since Saturday and he says he won't come down until Greater Victoria attains the goal of $694,000 for the United Red Cross-Red Feather Appeal for the 25 Community Chest agencies.

The Earl said Wednesday that, despite criticism by NDP leader David Barrett, returns were coming in faster than last year. To noon Wednesday, he said, $350,000 had been collected, which is 50.4 per cent of the total.

COMMUNICATIONS

A loudspeaker was installed in the small elevated house Wednesday and now the Earl can speak to people on the ground.

Between 7:30 and 8 p.m. Friday, the YMCA will put on a gymnastics display, using a trampoline, near the clock.

Anybody who wants to send the Earl a limerick can address it to him in care of the administration building of Woodward's store.

A winner is to be picked and rewarded with dinner at the Red Lion Motor Inn, where the Earl is usually the colorfully-dressed doorman and crier.

Here are two limericks he received Wednesday:

Least all should have cause to rue it, with dollars and cents we must do it, start making a deal with the United Appeal, to give and for Levy renew it.

There was a lady in our town, who thought she must have a new gown, but when she saw many who hadn't a penny, instead she helped Levy come down.

Car Crash Report In Error

A photograph in the Colonist on Sept. 23, of a car that crashed into a downtown building, erroneously identified the car's owner as Norman Shaw of 2019 Chambers Street. He was in fact the driver of another car involved, and was not at fault in the accident.

The Colonist regrets the error, and any embarrassment it might have caused Mr. Shaw.

Millions March On Again

A second Miles for Millions march is being organized for Nov. 15 by University of Victoria students.

A 26-mile hike by an estimated 12,000 people Nov. 25, 1967, raised slightly more than $100,000 for aid to underdeveloped countries.

Proceeds of the second Miles for Millions march will be split 50-50 between Greater Victoria children's work and overseas aid.

Student spokesman Jim Armstrong said Wednesday that the Nov. 15 march would be 25.2 miles, most of it along the 1967 route.

Marchers will ask sponsors to pay them so much for every mile completed, collecting as many sponsors as possible.

No quota has been set yet. The march already has the support of the Greater Victoria school board and the Douglas Rotary Club, which are providing backup organization.

'Ignorant Pedestrians' Will Be Fined

Police Lowering Boom on Walkers

By HUBERT BEYES

Victoria pedestrians are ignorant, careless and pathetic, according to Inspector Richard Berry of the Victoria police traffic department.

Fines will be imposed from now on, and every offender will be hit where it hurts in the wallet, Insp. Berry said Tuesday.

One of the biggest problems, he said, was the large number of people completely ignorant the Don't Walk signals at controlled intersections.

"They walk at any time, no matter what the light says. By doing that, they not only endanger their lives, but they also block the flow of traffic," he said.

Insp. Berry said the decision to launch a major offensive against pedestrians was made following a survey last Saturday which showed that pedestrians virtually ignored the traffic lights.

"More than 500 pedestrians walked against the Don't Walk light at five major intersections in a four-hour period," the inspector said.

"We had policemen stationed along Douglas at the intersections of Flaggard, Johnson, Yates, View and Fort. It was the same at every intersection. People just walked across without regard for lights, traffic or their own lives."

He said all offenders were warned that they might be liable to a $2.50 fine.

"And that's what will happen now," the inspector said.

"It's not going to be a mere crackdown. People would forget soon and fall back into their old habits."

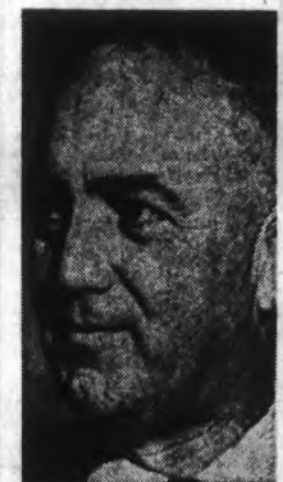

"This time we will make a continued effort until the situation becomes better," he said.

Motorists must take a fair share of the blame for the rising number of accidents, the inspector said, but "for every lousy driver there are at least two lousy pedestrians."

Insp. Berry said an increased effort to educate pedestrians was especially important in view of Safe Driving Week which will be observed Dec. 1 to Dec. 7.

"We'll never have any safety for anyone unless pedestrians also smarten up and start behaving a little more responsibly."
